45-Hr. Week Proposed by AFL's Green, Auto Maker

Union Head Wants 1½ Overtime Rate; Wilson Still Living in 90's, Truman Says

By The Associated Press

Two proposals for lengthening the work week as a means of curbing the cost of living drew Capital attention yesterday and prompted President Truman to remark that one proponent was living in 1890.

Both suggestions hinged on a 45-hour work week designed to increase production to meet increased demand and thereby halt spiraling prices.

AFL President William F. Green told the Senate Banking Committee that labor would consider adding five hours to its 40-hour schedule—at time-and-a-half rates—if Congress in turn would approve effective methods of combating inflation.

Green said he meant methods like those provided in President Truman's 10-point anti-inflation program, minus standby wage control powers.

Wilson Plan Ridiculed

At the other end of the Capital, President Truman was expressing his views on the 45-hour work week as advanced by Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors, with straight time pay for the overtime.

Mr. Truman told his news conference he was sorry to say that Wilson is living in 1890. He added that he preferred a plan by another Charles E. Wilson (president of General Electric) who recently cut prices of GE products.

[The United Press quoted an unidentified representative of General Motors as replying:

"It's all right for Mr. Truman to accuse Mr. Wilson of living in the 1890's. But I notice he is driving around in one of Mr. Wilson's 1947 Cadillacs."—Editor's Note.]

Productivity Rising

Productivity of the worker has figured largely in current discussions of ways to overcome the gap between supply and demand. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported last night that the gross national output—production by all workers in the labor force—has increased from $400 per capita in 1889 to $1200 in 1947.

Edwin Clague, head of the bureau, told a news conference that if the present upward trend of workers' productivity in manufacturing continues until 1950 the output per man hour (one man working one hour) will be 40 per cent greater than in 1939. He added, however, that he did not expect that to happen.

Green told the banking committee his idea that labor and management agree voluntarily to a 45-hour week was a "practical recommendation" for a joint "contribution to the anti-inflation fight."

Chairman Tobey (R., N. H.) interrupted: "There is nothing to hinder that being done pronto, is there? No legislation is required."

"No," Green replied, adding that extra hours now could be worked at overtime rates. But he said a recommendation from Congress would point up the plan.

Asserting that the continued rise

Post Route Boy, Struck by Truck, Clings to Papers

If Eugene Ware's Washington Post route customers didn't get their papers on time yesterday, it was because he refused to let go of the papers when they took him to the hospital.

The boy, 14, of 616 L st. sw., suffered a possible skull fracture when he was struck by a truck on M st. near 1st st. sw., as he delivered the papers.

Driver of the truck was Leroy L. Maddox, 26, of Charles County, Md.

When the ambulance driver tried tried to take the paper bag from Ware, the boy clung tightly, took them to Casualty Hospital with him.

6 Witnesses Deny Murphy Was Drunk

Two Doctors Say Fire Chief Was Affected by Smoke

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Six defense witnesses, including two physicians, yesterday denied that Fire Chief Clement Murphy was either drunk or unsteady on his feet at a three-alarm fire last February.

That testimony was heard as the defense completed the bulk of its case on all but the broad count that his personnel transfer system brought inefficiency.

Murphy and other defense witnesses also denied he made improper use of a Fire Department ambulance, and denied a charge that he used abusive language to a battalion chief.

On another count of profanity, the fire chief admitted using some strong language to a subordinate, but said he did not use all the language charged.

Smoke Cited by Doctors

When the trial before a civilian board resumes at 10 a. m. today, Chief Defense Counsel Martin F. O'Donoghue said he would probably start on the final count involving transfers.

Dr. John A. Reed, chairman of the Police and Fire Surgeons Board for 20 years, and Dr. William D. Claudy, also a member of the board, both testified that Murphy was not intoxicated at the three-alarm fire, at 15th and L sts. nw.

There was no odor of alcohol on Murphy's breath, said Dr. Reed, and "in my opinion he was seemingly 'smoked'—overcome by excessive smoke."

Dr. Claudy, who said he administered some oxygen to Murphy which he accepted "reluctantly," said, "He was moderately affected by smoke, I am surprised he was not more affected."

Witnesses Differ on Drunk Count

Murphy previously testified that he had "two or three" bottles of beer before going to the fire, and four prosecution witnesses have testified he was drunk at the blaze.

Under cross-examination, Dr. Claudy said he had made no examination of Murphy for intoxication as there was "nothing to lead me to believe he was intoxicated."

Support of Murphy's sobriety statements came from Deputy

Gas Cutback Urged to Hike Oil Output

New Cold Spell Due With Mercury Dropping to 20; Snow Forecast

A 60-day cutback in gasoline production to meet the cold weather fuel oil crisis was proposed yesterday as the Weather Bureau forecast subfreezing temperatures for Washington.

Snow was forecast for early today with temperatures dropping to 20 degrees. Clear skies with a high of 26 were forecast for later in the day.

The recommendation for the gasoline cutback to increase fuel oil output was made by the National Petroleum Council, an industry advisory group of 85 members. The plan was laid before Secretary of Interior Krug who can call on all oil companies to go along with the curtailment if Attorney General Tom C. Clark approves antitrust aspects of the plan. Such industry allocation agreements are legalized by the recently passed anti-inflation bill.

New Cold Spell Due

The cold wave brought a three-to-four-inch blanket of snow to Garrett and parts of Allegany county in western Maryland last night.

Despite traces of snow about 6 and 8 a. m. and noon yesterday, Washington's weather was moderate, with the low temperature 33 degrees at 12:20 a. m. and the high 42 at 12:04 p. m.

The new cold spell, second this week, is a manifestation of the frigid wave which swept down into the Midwest from Canada yesterday and began fanning out toward the Eastern seaboard, northern Florida and the Gulf.

Meanwhile, Federal, State and local agencies continued their efforts to meet the fuel oil shortage.

The National Petroleum Council said about 40 additional tankers will be added to the East Coast oil shipping service by mid-February, greatly relieving oil shortages throughout the Eastern States.

J. Thomas Kennedy, head of the District Fuel Oil Coordinating Committee, said he would meet today with local fuel dealers to formulate a conservation program here.

Police to Cooperate

Kennedy, who said the situation was "a tight proposition, with the dealers living from hand to mouth daily," said a stockpile of 50,000 gallons had been accumulated for emergency use. "Just a drop in the bucket if we have a run," he said, "We are not seeking hardship cases, but we can take care of them at present."

In Maryland, Prince Georges County Chief of Police Ralph Brown and Montgomery County's Chief Charles M. Orme were appointed liaison officers to act with the District fuel coordinator in case of emergency fuel oil shortages.

'Man Named George' Linked To Mrs. Hobbs' Pregnancy

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Mrs. Esther Pickard Hobbs once confided that "a man named George" was responsible for her pregnancy, a former landlady of Mrs. Hobbs testified in District Court yesterday.

The witness, Mrs. Mabel Steele, 2070 Belmont rd. nw., also asserted that Mrs. Hobbs told her in the spring of last year that she had an abortion performed by a nurse in Maryland.

Mrs. Steele was the first witness appearing yesterday for Attorney James J. Laughlin, who with Dr. Henry L. Peckham, jr., are being tried for procuring and performing an abortion on Mrs. Hobbs. Laughlin's erstwhile girl friend, "on or about" last March 20 and 22.

Laughlin's alibi defense was further strengthened yesterday by his two attractive daughters who told the court that "Dad" had been home all night on March 20 and at home most of the day and all night March 21.

Miss Betty Laughlin, 23, was first of the sisters to take the witness stand.

Under direct examination by her father and by Defense Counsel T. Emmett McKenzie, she declared that, accompanied by her sister, Mary, 21, she visited Laughlin's office in the National Press building March 20 at "about 6:40 p. m."

GSI Claims Strike Union Has Lost Voice

Says It Must Win NLRB Poll Victory Before Negotiating

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The rift between GSI and the striking CIO cafeteria workers union widened yesterday as Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach, on White House orders, began attempts at settling the 18-day-old dispute.

J. C. Niehuss, GSI personnel chief, declared that now even if the union—Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers (UPW-CIO)—submitted anti-Communist affidavits, negotiations could not begin unless the union also won an NLRB representation election.

Niehuss said that GSI has hired 1300 employes on a "permanent" basis and "it would be unfair" to sign a contract with a union unless it represented them. He contended that 300 of the number "have resigned from the union, presumably," since they had disregarded the strike and continued working.

Confers With Fleming

The Labor Department head held an hour and a half "exploratory" session with Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administration head, as the first step toward settlement efforts.

The FWA has the authority to close the cafeterias and is permitted to terminate the GSI contract on six months' notice. Schwel-

Congress Sets Early Action On Budget

Committee of 102 Expects to Complete Figures in Month; Tax Overrider Seen

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Capitol's annual Battle of the Budget opened yesterday with a GOP footrace to cut spending and taxes.

These developments followed close on the heels of another plain hint of a tax-cut veto:

1. A 102-man House Senate committee formally organized to frame a legislative budget by "early in February." The group elected Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) chairman and named two subcommittees to recheck the President's estimates.

Martin Sees Final Passage

2. Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.) predicted a congressional overrider of a tax-cut veto and virtually dared Democrats to press the President's own tax plan "as is." Mr. Truman is willing to grant low-bracket tax credits only if corporate excess profits are taxed to pay the way.

3. Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) pointed up the Democratic tax split by proposing a four-billion-dollar version of the 6.3-billion-dollar Knutson bill. Doughton's amendment followed the lines of the Republican bill except for modified percentage cuts for individuals.

Rayburn May Enter Fight

4. Reports spread that Former Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) is getting ready to move into the Democratic controversy on tax cutting in an effort to work out a compromise satisfactory to the President. Rayburn reportedly will take a hand when Democrats frame their motion to recommit the Knutson bill.

President Truman at his press conference meanwhile underlined his previous tax stand. He said he has made his position perfectly clear—that any individual tax reduction must be offset by corresponding increases in corporation taxes. Observers think this means a Knutson bill veto.

As the congressional joint committee started overhauling his new 39.7-billion-dollar budget, to clear the way for tax action, the President called on Congress for $1,320,174,315 more in supplemental appropriations for the present fiscal year.

800 Million for Tax Refunds

Biggest single item was 800 million dollars for Bureau of Internal Revenue tax refunds, slashed last year by Congress over White House objections. Other estimates: $1,219,063,555 total for the executive branch including 150 million dollars for the Army to pay additional Government and relief expenses in occupied areas and 157 million dollars to meet higher Post Office expenditures. In additions he asked $205,716 for the legislative branch, $100.00 for

Truman to Take His Time About Announcing Candidacy

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Sparring with reporters yesterday, President Truman indicated that he would take his time about announcing what most people take for granted—that he will run for a full, four-year term in '48.

Mr. Truman has no avowed rival for the Democratic presidential nomination.

He himself let slip a remark in yesterday's banter that implied he expects this situation to continue. A reporter pointed out that several Republican candidates had come out into the open, but no Democrats. Had the President any idea when there would be an announcement?

Oh, said Mr. Truman, one would be made before the Democratic National Convention opens in Philadelphia, but there was no hurry about it.

"I notice you said there will be 'one,'" said the reporter.

Mr. Truman, smiling, said that every American had the right to be a candidate for President on either party ticket.

When a reporter, having Henry Wallace in mind, asked about a third party, Mr. Truman observed that a candidate would have a better chance carrying the standard of one of the two big parties.

"Mr. President," he was asked, "do you see any chance or do you have any hope that Henry Wallace will follow the example of (A. F.) Whitney?"

The Chief Executive said no comment.

"Do you plan to do much traveling this year?" he was asked.

He said he didn't, although he might go back down to Key West for a vacation.

"Does that perhaps mean a back porch campaign?"

He said there probably might be a front porch campaign, but a moment later he explained that he wasn't speaking for himself—that anybody could wage a porch campaign.

The Chief Executive, at the outset of the press-radio conference, said he didn't have any announcements, but was available for questioning.

He said that he had asked several men to take over the chairmanship of the Civil Aeronautics Board, but had been unable to get one to accept. Asked if he thought such jobs should carry higher salaries, he said that he had always said so.

Commenting on the St. Lawrence Seaway project, which comes up for debate in Congress next week, Mr. Truman said he regarded it as vital to defense and also a good economic undertaking for the United States and Canada.

2,000,000 in Bavaria Strike In Demand for More Food

Clay Blames Reds For Work Stoppages Elsewhere in Bizonia

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Communists are using food shortages in Germany as an excuse to foment strikes "to slow down European recovery," Gen. Lucius D. Clay said yesterday.

The American military commander in Germany told a news conference he would ask Congress for additional funds to counteract this activity by increased food shipments to the British-American zones. Meanwhile, he said, both Military Government and German authorities were "taking vigorous measures" to overcome "bad distribution," which he blamed in part for the shortages.

Clay and his political adviser, Robert Murphy, were called home by Army Secretary Royall for a first-hand report on the German situation. They are scheduled to return to Germany Sunday, after appearing before Congressional committees studying President Truman's budget requests for occupation funds.

He was "not worried about the strike situation in Germany" at present, Clay said, because most

24-Hour Walkout Protests Rejection Of Ration Program

Frankfurt, Germany (Friday), Jan. 23 (U.P.).—A 24-hour general strike by an estimated two million workers started at midnight throughout Bavaria, in the United States zone, in protest against the food situation.

Transport and other overnight workers were first affected by the walkout, which was the biggest in Germany since the end of the war.

Other workers will fail to report for their jobs this morning.

In Munich 4000 workers at the great railroad repair yards jumped the gun and struck at 10:30 last night.

Labor union leaders called the general strike affecting the entire state of Bavaria including Munich, Germany's third city, at a five-hour meeting yesterday.

Whether response to the strike order would be fully effective could not be determined until normal working hours this morning.

Under the strike order only skeleton crews manning hospitals, food-processing plants, communications centers and press associations were left on the job in addition to police and persons em-

Russia Warned Bluntly by Bevin That Its Policy Will Lead to War

London, Jan. 22 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin announced today that steps were being taken to form a western European bloc to combat a "ruthless" attempt by Russia to dominate the Continent.

Bluntly, he warned the Russians that pursuit by any nation of a policy of trying to dominate Europe "will inevitably lead" to another world war.

Sees Russia Unmasked

The Soviet Union's reaction to the Marshall Plan, Bevin said, had unmasked Russia's desire to control western Europe as well as the states already within her orbit.

He described the delicate situation in strife-torn Greece as being of the kind which could touch off another world conflagration.

Outlining Britain's hardening policy against Russian attacks on the Marshall Plan, Bevin delivered the sharpest attack he has made on the Soviet Union in his two and a half years as foreign secretary. He held out hope, however, that the democratic unity of western Europe would overcome East-West ideological differences "sooner or later."

"We are entitled to organize kindred souls in the West, just as they (the Russians) have organized kindred souls in the East," he declared.

Bevin told Commons: "I believe the time is ripe for the consolidation of western Europe.

Bevin disclosed that British ambassadors in Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg were instructed to propose treaty talks jointly with the French.

Military Pacts Indicated

He expressed the hope that treaties "will be signed" with those three small countries. Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg have a customs union—Benelux—which became operative January 1. Britain and France already have close military ties in the 50-year Dunkirk pact signed last March.

Although Bevin did not specify whether the treaties proposed to the Benelux countries had military provisions or were strictly economic in character, a Foreign Office spokesman said later that it would be "quite correct to assume" the Foreign Secretary was speaking about treaties similar to the Dunkirk pact.

"If we are to preserve peace and our own safety," the Foreign Secretary said, "we can only do so by the mobilization of such moral and material forces as will create confidence and energy in the West and inspire respect elsewhere."

Bevin explained that "other historic European countries, including the new Italy," would be invited into the united group and said that in the Middle East Britain will continue to "build up a system of cooperation in the economic and other fields, which will carry with it the responsibility for mutual defense of both sides."

"All these steps, both in the Middle East and in western Europe, are in keeping with the United Nations," Bevin added.

Balkan Neighbors Assailed

"When the ideological quarrel between the four powers (Britain, Russia, the United States and France) is satisfied—and it will be, sooner or later—and provided the will to peace takes its place, all these things which I have spoken of will fit into a world pattern."

Bevin's speech, opening a two-day foreign policy debate in Commons, drew immediate protests from the two Communist members of Parliament and objections from some left-wing members of the Foreign Secretary's own Labor Party.

It was praised, however, by the deputy Conservative leader, Anthony Eden, who described the plan for a western democratic bloc as "the best hope of restoring European political stability."

Bevin described Greece as one of the world's danger points and said the Communist-led revolt there "is a ruthless attempt, con-

Truman Asks $805,044 More for D. C.

Requests Include $36,000 to Restore Penny Milk Program

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

President Truman asked Congress yesterday to add $805,044 to the District's 95.5-million-dollar appropriations for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

Among the proposed new appropriations for the District was a $36,000 item to restore the full penny milk program which has been cut in half as a result of increased costs and faces total curtailment if money is not forthcoming.

The President at the same time forwarded to the Capitol the Commissioners' request that contract authorizations for city construction be increased from a total of $5,966,800 now on the books to $7,271,000.

Of the $1,304,200 increase in contract authorizations, $988,200 would be for public school projects including Beers, Central High, Crummell, Montgomery, Nalle, Sousa Junior High, Taft Junior High and Young schools.

The President also asked that Howard University be granted a $1,640,000 contract authorization, to be used in addition to $1,377,920 already appropriated for building a $1,707,520 engineering building and women's dormitory units costing $1,310,400.

District officials explained the contract authorization increases were asked to meet higher building costs. For the schools the following list shows the requested new contract authorization as the first figure and the existing authorization as the second figure, after each school name:

Beers Elementary, addition, $577,000, $487,800; Central High, alterations, $71,000, $66,000; Crummell Elementary, addition, $136,000, $115,000; Montgomery Elementary, $708,000, $606,000; Nalle Elementary, $882,000, $664,000;

Vandenberg Still Approves 4¼-Year Aid

Tells Atlanta Editor He Won't Dispute Marshall Plan Term

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg made it clear yesterday that the still favored a 4¼-year authorization of the Marshall Plan.

He stuck to his position in spite of Herbert Hoover's warning of Wednesday that Congress must not give "even a moral commitment" for longer than one year.

Without referring directly to the Hoover statement, Vandenberg disclosed his views during questioning of Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. McGill had pleaded for a clear 4¼-year commitment by Congress to assure Europeans that the United States would not "pull out" and leave them to communism.

"I'm not quarrelling with your concept that the beneficiary countries must have such assurance," said Vandenberg, who will be the decisive influence in shaping the bill that comes before Congress.

"If the Europeans have any feeling that we're all through after 15 months, then even the 15-month program will be a failure. But continuity of our aid must be contigent on their self-help."

Vandenberg said, however, that it would be impossible to fix a 4¼-year sum "because we're not only unable to pierce the normal veils of uncertainty but we are unable to pierce the Iron Curtain." It was at Vandenberg's request that a 4¼-year ceiling figure of 17 billion dollars was dropped from the draft bill submitted by the Administration.

"Who knows," he asked yesterday "whether 17 billion dollars is too much or too little?"

Vandenberg also hinted, during questioning of othere witnesses, that he was beginning to see the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 as a guide in solving the knotty prob-

Air Force Plans to Spend Billions in Plane Program

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Backed by an Attorney General's ruling on its constitutionality, the Air Force is preparing legislation to authorize a long-range multi-billion-dollar plane procurement program.

Approval of the plan, officials said, would save millions by ordering aircraft and equipment in much larger quantities than now. Plane contracts probably would run for five years or more instead of the present 24 months.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark's opinion, submitted several days ago to Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington, holds that a proviso in Section 8, Article 1 of the Federal Constitution barring money appropriated by Congress "to raise and support armies" from being available for more than two years, do not apply to funds for buying airplanes.

Based on the ruling, Air Force chiefs also plan to ask Congress to permit current aircraft procurement funds to be available "until expended." Some 298 millions appropriated for plane building in prior years will lapse next June 30 unless this authority is voted, a spokesman said.

That would pay for several hundred military aircraft, depending upon the types ordered.

Clark's opinion confirmed a stand taken by Brackley Shaw, Air lem of administering the European Recovery Program.

Vandenberg Still Approves 4¼ Years for Marshall Plan

In the morning, Vandenberg asked Luther Gulick, of the National Planning Association, what he thought of creating a joint congressional committee "specifically clothed with responsibility to keep track of what's going on."

Likes Watchdog Committee

Gulick thought such a committee would be "highly desirable" if it would serve as a "central channel for current knowledge, for investigation, and for quizzing the administrator of the program." Such a committee was set up under the act creating an Atomic Energy Commission to own and operate all atomic energy projects in the United States. Its counterpart for European recovery has already been proposed by Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.) in a draft bill.

In the afternoon Vandenberg disclosed more of his current thinking while questioning former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson. This time he dealt with the baffling problem of operating the recovery program efficiently and still safeguarding the Secretary of State's authority over foreign affairs.

Vandenberg Cites Atom Act

Vandenberg first read the section of the Atomic Energy Act under which a civilian administration is set up with full powers, flanked by a military liaison committee. The military committee has access to all information and can go to the President, through the service chiefs, whenever it feels national security is being endangered.

"If the Secretary of State is sitting on the top board created in the administrative structure for ERP," Vandenberg asked Patterson, "isn't it possible to let the new administrator go ahead unless the Secretary of State feels a decision collides with foreign policy?"

"I don't think you need a board in this as you did in the case of atomic energy," Patterson answered. He felt a board would simply be a brake on action and decision.

"Well," answered Vandenberg, "we can substitute the Secretary of State himself for the military liaison committee in the Atomic Energy Act, and then we can carry out the analogy completely."

Patterson testified today for the committee for the Marshall Plan, a group of prominent private citizens headed by former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. These were some of the views he put forward on behalf of his committee:

On a 4¼-year authorization: "The Administrator and his European cooperators cannot do the job that is to be done if they must face an annual prospect of complete stoppage. Let us not pull up the plant every year to examine the roots."

Hits Advocates of Cut

On the proposed $6,800,000,000 cost for 15 months: "The proponents of a cut to four or five billion are not looking at the objective; they are looking at something else. They believe, for instance, that we can do certain things about inflation by cutting the program, or they have in mind some particular kind of cut in taxes . . . Any attempt to secure such advantages at the expense of the European Recovery Program would be shortsighted folly."

On free grants versus repayable loans: "Let us not pretend that we will be repaid lategrr in dollars—in other words in goods—for most of this outlay. The primary criterion for making grants or loans must certainly be the particular country's ability to repay, but let us not create a hopeless load of debt for any participating country."

"Phompt Enactment Vital"

On the timing of American aid: "There is, in our view, great need for the prompt enactment of this legislation. Any prudent observer must know that delays in starting a great program like this make the job harder, longer and more expensive."

Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) asked Patterson, as a former Secretary of War, whether the United States should seek military bases in partial return for its aid.

"Personally I would not want to see the question of military bases overseas put into this situation," he replied.

"Let's Not Be Sordid"—Connally

"It would be a sordid way to get bases," Senator Tom Conally (D., Tex.) remarked, "to go to hungry people and say 'You're hungry; now if you give us bases, we'll give you a biscuit."

"Seventeen billion dollars is more than a biscuit," Wiley retorted.

William J. Donovan, wartime head of the Office of Strategic Services, told the committee the Marshall Plan was a vital weapon in what he called "a subversive war" now raging in Europe. But he said it was dangerous to regard the plan as "an economic Maginot Line which is automatic in its resistance and its effectiveness."

Would Aid Anti-Red Press

The plan must be buttressed, he said, by seeing that anti-Communist labor unions and other democratic groups in Europe get gasoline, printing presses, newsprint and a news service to encourage them. He also suggested putting the program under the National Security Council recently set up by act of Congress.

CALL FOR UNITY—Demonstrating against food shortages, a crowd of 30,000 German workers mass in Main Market Square—formerly Adolf Hitler Square—in Nuernberg Wednesday. A local trade union chairman addressing the crowd stands beside a sign which reads: "We demand the unity of Germany." The Bavarian Trade Union Federation yesterday ordered a walkout of an estimated two million Bavarians to begin a 24-hour food strike. It is expected to affect close to one million workers in the American Zone stantly maintained, to bring that country into the Soviet orbit."

He said Britain would withdraw her troops from Greece as soon as "her northern neighbors and everyone else" promise to leave Greece alone.

He declared the United Nations has "been flouted by the Balkan neighbors of Greece," who repeatedly have been accused of arming, training and supplying the leftist guerillas fighting Athens government troops.

The refusal of Soviet satellites to recognize United Nations authority involved "a very serious danger that they and their Soviet mentors may make a great blunder," Bevin said.

He added that "provocations like this lead sometimes" to serious developments which "we, and I hope they, are anxious to avoid."

Russia, Bevin said, has expanded her frontiers as a result of the war "from the Kuriles to Stettin, Trieste and the Elbe."

Declaring that the "Communist process goes ruthlessly on" in eastern Europe, Bevin said Russia, by all the evidence, "is not satisfied with this tremendous expansion."

"I am sure this House and the world," the former trade union leader declared, "will realize that if a policy is pursued of trying to dominate Europe by any one power, by whatever means, direct or indirect, one has to be frank with one's self, and you are driven to the conclusion that it will inevitably lead again to another world war.

"I hope this idea will be discarded by all."

"We are not now seeking a form of political union with France, although we shall work with the closest possible contact, and work for ever-increasing cooperation between the two nations," Bevin said.

Reiterating his support of the Marshall Plan, Bevin called it "sound sense" to promote European recovery.

"Neither can I see anything wrong in the American insistence that the nations of Europe should do everything to put their house in order as a condition of American aid," he added.

Molotov Threats Recalled

Speaking of the United States, he said "I am not thinking of the country misrepresented in propaganda as a sort of Shylock of Wall Street, but as a young vigorous democratic people, a country not only of great wealth and great resources, but one whose actions are moved by a good will and a generosity which many of us in the Old World are apt to take for granted."

Recalling the scene when the Paris Conference of the Foreign Ministers of Britain, France and Russia on the Marshall Plan broke up in anger last July, Bevin said:

"Mr. Molotov threatened both ourselves and France that we would have to look out for squalls if we went on with the European recovery program. My answer was that Great Britain had been accustomed to threats, that we would face them and that they would not move us from doing what we believed to be right."

2,000,000 in Bavaria Strike In Demand for More Food

ployed by the American Military Government.

Not Communist Inspired

Nominally, German government employes were not affected, because they are forbidden by law to strike. But few of them were expected to show up for work because they can plead that there is no transport.

There was no indication of Communist inspiration of the strike and labor union leaders said that it was called purely against the Bavarian government which had rejected a seven-point food program.

But Communists were active in attempting to foment a general strike in Hesse state, also in the American zone.

Hesse union leaders met to discuss the possibility of a strike throughout their state.

Fritz Tarnow, secretary of the combined unions of the American and British zones, said the Hesse strike had been disapproved "despite the wishes of radical Communists."

To Issue Fats, Sugar

The Anglo-American control office in a major gesture to hungry Germans announced tonight that they would issue nearly 5000 tons of imported fats and 20,000 tons of imported sugar to relieve the food situation.

The control board also decided to put into effect a long-planned penalty system under which states that fail to deliver their quota of food from farm areas to other states will have their import allocations cut.

Bavarian strike leaders appeared to be trying to prevent disorder. Mass demonstrations were ordered in all principal cities, however, including one of 50,000 men here.

American military government authorities decided to maintain a strict hands-off attitude, partly because the strike is aimed at the German Bavarian administration.

Aim at Farmers' Hoards

Union leaders say the Bavarian government for more than a year has disregarded labor's demands for fairer food distribution.

The seven-point program, the rejection of which led to the mass strike, called for confiscation of food hoarded by farmers and the closing of "luxury" restaurants—presumably those serving black market foods.

The German Bizonal Economics Council will meet here tomorrow to pass an emergency food law. If labor leaders are dissatisfied with whatever the council decides, major general strikes in the Ruhr and other areas, including the great ports of Hamburg and Bremen, are expected within a few days.

Hamburg and Bremen were declared emergency areas today in view of the possibility of crippling walkouts.

The Ruhr was quiet after the 24-hour walkout of Cologne's 100,000 workers Wednesday and the similar strike of 70,000 workers in Nuernberg.

Self-Support Date Set Back

American and British authorities disclosed some figures on the food situation tonight. They said that up to November last American and British had brought $1,035,000,000 worth of food into their zones.

The two zones fell short of their export goal by 71 per cent and officials predicted that they would fall short by 60 per cent this year. This would mean that Germany could not be made self-sustaining until 1953, instead of 1951 as was hoped last year.

Donovan Says ERP Alone Is Inadequate

Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

William J. Donovan, wartime head of the Office of Strategic Services: The Marshall Plan, though vital, must be buttressed by other measures to win European support against communism.

Harvey W. Brown, president of the International Association of Machinists: Labor wants adequate, 4-year aid to Europe for America's own welfare.

Mrs. Margaret F. Stone of the National Women's Trade Union League of America: The full $6,800,000,000 should be authorized promptly, but the plan should use U. N. agencies wherever possible.

Luther Gulick of the National Planning Association: The authority of the President and the Secretary of State must be protected in ERP legislation.

Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution: A full 4½-year commitment is the most vitally necessary part of the program.

Robert P. Patterson, former Secretary of War: It would be shortsighted folly to reduce the $6,800,000,000 asked for the first 15 months.

Henry J. Taylor, commentator: Europe's needs are vastly overrated, and the American people are being propagandized for an unsound program.

House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture: Any cut in the proposed food exports would endanger the success of the entire undertaking.

Julius A. Krug, Secretary of the Interior: The ERP will help to develop foreign sources of materials badly needed by the United States.

Coast Navy School Fund Is Approved

Representative Anderson (R., Calif.) said yesterday a request for funds to purchase the Del Monte Hotel at Monterey, Calif., for a Naval post graduate school has been approved by the Budget Bureau and will be submitted to Congress in a supplemental budget for the fiscal year ending June 30.

walkouts have been brief and in the nature of "demonstrations." But he declared more food was essential if German production was to be increased.

In Germany yesterday, Bavarian trade union leaders called a two-hour general strike beginning at midnight to protest food scarcities. It was estimated two million workers would be idle.

And in Berlin, Lawrence Wilkinson, director of the military government economics division, broadcast last night to Germans that the United States and Great Britain would spend 750 million dollars this year on food for western Germany. He said the food bill would be 50 per cent greater than last year and pointed out that the two occupying powers were withdrawing nothing from Germany in repayment and had no intention of doing so for "at least four of five years."

Mrs. Truman, Daughter at Navy Aid Ball

Mrs. Truman and her daughter, Margaret, arrived at the Mayflower at 10 o'clock last evening to attend the Navy Relief dinner dance, and to hear Robert Taylor, idol of thousands of screen fans, serve as master of ceremonies at the program of entertainment.

In a nautical setting of swords, uniforms and life preservers, which decorated the ballroom walls, the fete got under way at the dinner hour, with diplomatic, official and service circles entertaining or being entertained at tables set up in the boxes that ring the ballroom floor.

The First Lady and Miss Truman were guests of the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John L. Sullivan, who had as other guests, Gen. Omar Bradley, newly named Chief of Staff, and Mrs. Bradley; the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet, the new Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Louis Denfeld, Senator and Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall and Robert Taylor.

One of the largest parties was given by John Nicholas Brown, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air, and Mrs. Brown, who entertained first at cocktails at their Georgetown home.

With them for dinner and dancing were the Governor of Maryland and Mrs. William Preston Lane; Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, the Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Clifton Cates; Senator Theodore Green; the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney; Vice Admiral and Mrs. Arthur Radford, Mrs. Truxtun Beale, Mrs. Hamilton Bryan, Admiral Sir Henry Moore, Comdr. Frank Hopkins, Royal Navy, and Mrs. Hopkins, and Capt. C. E. Courtner.

Disc Royalties Petrillo's Price For Lifting Ban on Recording

By The Associated Press

James C. Petrillo came forth yesterday with a plan for restoring harmony to the jangled jive of the recorded music world—on his own scale.

Through his lawyer, the president of the American Federation of Musicians suggested he might end the ban now imposed if granted a restoration of the union's welfare fund, derived from royalties on phonograph records.

The attorney, Milton Diamond, made the proposal to the House Labor Committee investigating charges that Petrillo exercises "monopolistic" control over the Nation's commercial music.

Following yesterday's hearings, Representative Kearns (R., Pa.) announced he will introduce a bill next week which would grant royalties on records and prohibit radio stations and other commercial outlets from using noncommercial records.

He told a reporter the bill would leave it up to the various record-making companies to bargain individually on the amount of royalties. The bill also would provide for separate markings of records for private and commercial use.

Under the Taft-Hartley law Petrillo's union is barred from collecting a union unemployment fund based on royalties because royalties can be distributed only to "participating" members of the union—that is, those who actually do the work involved.

Diamond urged Congress to enact a law which would permit "the continuation of the principle embodied in the collectively bargained contracts which existed until December 31, 1947."

Under those contracts, Diamond said, manufacturers paid into the fund one-fourth of one cent for each 35-cent record and up to five cents for each $2 record.

The witness declared that while the musician fights for "scraps," some disc jockeys, who play their records for radio broadcast are making huge salaries.

He said Jack Cooper, a former vaudeville performer, grossed $185,000 in 1947 as a disc jockey employed 40 hours a week by four Chicago radio stations.

Customers Get Meat Free As Butchers Wage Price War

St. Helens, Oreg., Jan. 22 (U.P.) Housewives went shopping today to find picnic hams for 45 cents a pound, beef roasts 39 cents a pound, and hamburger free.

For two weeks St. Helens butchers have waged a price war.

A butcher opened a new market with the announcement hamburger was 35 cents a pound.

The new market was swamped with customers, and other butchers matched the mark-down.

Hamburger prices skidded. One butcher cut it to three pounds for a dollar. Another went to 29 cents.

Finally, a leading market put up a sign announcing: "Hamburger free—one pound to a customer."

"I figured that if the rest of the boys wanted to sell the stuff at half price, I might as well do the next logical thing and give it away," said the butcher.

Anacostia Church To Fete Boordes

Members of Anacostia Baptist Church, 13th and W sts. se., today at 8 p. m. will fete the Rev. Thomas A. Boorde, pastor, and Mrs. Boorde on their golden wedding anniversary.

They were married January 22, 1898, in the Bethel Baptist Church, Uniontown, Pa. Both were then school teachers in Fayette County.

Law College Ordered to Accept Negro

Norman, Okla., Jan. 22 (AP).—District Judge Justin Hinshaw today ordered the State of Oklahoma to allow Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher, 23-year-old Negro, to enter the University of Oklahoma law school until equal facilities can be provided in a separate school or not to accept any first-year law school enrollments at the university this semester.

Judge Hinshaw accepted reports of Fred Hansen, assistant Oklahoma attorney general, which outlined the two alternatives as directed by the United States and State Supreme Courts.

Amos Hall of Tulsa, counsel for Mrs. Fisher, said after the hearing he did not know what action he would take but "something would be done."

Judge Hinshaw said the court retained jurisdiction in the case "to hear and determine any question which may arise concerning the application of and the performance of the duties prescribed by this order."

The case went back to Judge Hinshaw for final action, since it originally was filed in his State District Court.

The United States Supreme Court ruled the State of Oklahoma should provide immediate law school facilities for Negroes equal to those furnished other students. The ruling did not specify whether the State should admit Negroes to existing law schools operated by the State or provide separate facilities. The State Board of Regents has announced plans to provide a law course at Langston University for Negroes, at Oklahoma City, which they said would comply with the Supreme Court ruling and the State law which requires segregation of Negro and white students.

Film Actress Sent to Prison In Kidnaping of Benefactor

Los Angeles, Jan. 22 (AP).—Pretty Madge Meredith, completely emotionless, heard herself sentenced today to from five years to life in prison for the kidnap-assault of her one-time benefactor, Nick Gianaclis.

The 26-year-old former Iowa girl, found by Gianaclis cashiering in a delicatessen and elevated to film stardom in two pictures under his guidance, was convicted December 12 after a four weeks' trial. Already denied a new trial, today she was refused probation.

Superior Judge Charles W. Fricke granted her five days to put her affairs in order before leaving for Tehachapi Women's Institution.

Miss Meredith, with three male friends, were accused of luring Gianaclis, a 38-year-old restaurateur, and his bodyguard, Verne Davis, into the Holywood hills last June 30, slugging them with blackjacks and tying them in a lonely canyon.

One of the men, Albert Tucker, 29, who received a similar five years to life term, charged that Gianaclis framed the kidnaping for $500 to discredit Miss Meredith and ruin her movie career after a dispute over a house.

The other two men Damon Klinkenberg, a cook, and James Hatfield, a former policeman, received jail terms of 60 and 30 days, respectively.

Under a $500 weekly contract which, in seven years, could have gone to $3700, Miss Meredith starred in "Trail Street," and "Child of Divorce" and had a featured role in "Adventure of the Falcon."

Tito's Envoy Scouts Atom Bomb Story

By the United Press

European newspaper reports quoting Marshal Tito as saying Yugoslavia was going to use her own atomic bomb and sink the Anglo-American Mediterranean fleets were dismissed by Tito's ambassador yesterday as "fabricated and utterly absurd."

Yugoslav Envoy Sava N. Kosanovic said Tito had never made such statements, as claimed by some European papers.

"They constitute a malicious provocation, aimed not only at harming Yugoslavia but at poisoning the atmosphere and at hampering the efforts of all those who are working for a better understanding among nations," Kosanovic said.

Bishop Jailed In Daughter's Imprisoning

Goshen, Ind., Jan. 22 (U.P.).—A bishop of the Amish Church was jailed here today on a charge of keeping his 41-year-old daughter in chains.

Samuel D. Hochstettler, 75, readily admitted that he had kept his daughter, Lucy, imprisoned in an unlighted and unventilated room for 10 years, Sheriff Luther Yoder said.

The sheriff found the woman in chains and filth yesterday when he went to the Hochstettler farm home to investigate a complaint by a neighbor.

Yoder said Hochstettler's daughter had been in chains for the last three years, and before that was tied to the bed with rope for seven years.

Hochstettler was charged with assault and battery.

Neighbors said Lucy was normal when she left school at the age of 16 except for her desire to leave the Amish Church. They said her father began confining her to one room then and years later began to tie her to the bed.

When Yoder found her yesterday she was lying on a straw tick with filthy bedclothes, he said. Her hair was matted and she stared blankly at the sheriff, he reported.

Hochstettler has four other daughters and two sons, all of them living in this area.

Two Propose 45-Hr. Week

in living costs will bring demands for new wage increases, Green said labor "would rather see a reduction in the level of prices than to press for an equivalent increase in wages."

While wages rose 11 per cent from 1944 to 1947, Green said, living costs have climbed 31 per cent.

At a special night session of the banking committee, grain industry representatives, including two former OPA officials, spoke out against all legislation which would reimpose price, rationing or allocation controls.

3 Oppose Controls

Walter C. Berger, president of the American Feed Manufacturers Association and former chief of OPA's feed management division, told the committee:

"No ration program can be written under peacetime conditions which iwll do a better job of making meat, milk and eggs available to consumers of this Nation than allowing for free movement of the finished product, and free movement of prices."

Colin S. Gordon, vice president of the Quakers Oats Co. and wartime director of OPA's food price division, joined Berger in predicting that peacetime controls would result in a chaotic situation.

Dinsmore Worthing, treasurer and director of the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange, said that if the "present situation is left alone to clarify itself under the basic laws which have enabled this country to progress to the point that it is the leading nation of the world, our problems will work out with the least amount of hardship for all concerned."

Six Witnesses Back Murphy

Chief Frank G. Berry, Battalion Chief Nelson E. Bowen and Acting Precinct Detective Francis Davis. Capt. Morris Clark said he saw Murphy cross 10 or 12 sections of hose at the blaze, and said he did not stagger.

Defense Voices Objection

Questioning of the two physicians by Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher brought an outburst from defense counsel when Maher asked if they had seen any evidence of drinking at the fire scene.

"That's hitting below the belt," exclaimed O'Donoghue, "let's conduct this thing with dignity and decorum—not like a gutter fight."

Maher later said he was attempting to show that four bottles of whiskey were taken from a drug store near the blaze. The physicians said they had not seen the alleged drinking.

The ambulance incident took place later on the morning of the fire when Murphy said he summoned a first-aid man to set the dislocated thumb of "a friend." The "friend" was not identified during the hearing, except for the statement that "the patient" was not a member of the fire Department.

Murphy Denies Charges

Murphy denied he had ordered Rescue Squad Lieut. Dexter A. Beacham to "keep the call quiet" and off the records. The ambulance which responded was in service for "about two hours," Murphy said, and Dr. Claudy also was called on the case. Both Murphy and Beacham testified the ambulance had continual radio contact with fire headquarters.

Murphy flatly denied one of the abusive language charges in which he allegedly told Battalion Chief John L. Werheim, "You're one of those God damn overrated chiefs—if you don't know your job, I'll show it to you."

Werheim, who testified he was first president and organizer of the local firefighters' union, charged that Murphy "planted" papers on his desk on this occasion, to "test" his ability.

This was also denied by the fire chief. He admitted summoning Werheim about certain papers, but said he later apologized to Werheim when he learned he was not authorized to handle the papers. Werheim, in his testimony, said there was an apology which he refused.

Conflicting Statements Given

Conflicting statements on this charge were given by prosecution witness Battalion Chief Carlisle S. Peterson, departmental executive officer, and Pvt. Raymond V. Denton, defense witness.

Both are assigned to Murphy's outer office. Each denied the other was present at the time to overhear the Werheim incident. Denton confirmed Murphy's version, while Peterson confirmed Werheim's charge.

On the second language incident, Murphy admitted he told Lieut. William R. Sweeney on August 6, 1947, at what later turned out to be the scene of a model plane "crash," that, "When I get on the fire grounds I want you to get off your ———."

Murphy said he found Sweeney sitting idly on a Rescue Squad truck, while Sweeney testified he had orders to return to his company and Murphy did not give him a chance to explain that the supposed crash involved a model plane.

Sweeney said he later told Murphy, "I worked for Porter (Stephen T. Porter, former fire chief) and I'll work for you," to which Murphy allegedly retorted, "I don't give a God damn what you did for Porter, I'm the boss now . . ." Murphy denied he used that language.

Senator McMahon's Aide Supports Wallace

By the United Press

Charles E. Calkins, administrative assistant to Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), resigned yesterday to work in his home State for the third-party presidential candidacy of Henry A. Wallace.

Calkins said in a letter to McMahon that he was quitting because he found himself "in disagreement with the foreign policy of the Administration."

Congress Sets Budget Action

the judiciary and $805,044 for the District of Columbia.

Senate Appropriations Chairman Bridges, named to succeed House Appropriations Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) as head of the Congressional Joint Budget committee, said he will try for a quick decision on spending ceilings although he prefers a more scientific approach.

Quick Budget "Just a Guess"

Any limit set on spending before February 15, he said, would be "just a guess and begone." It would take until April 15, or even May 1, to make a really accurate estimate, and then only if Congress sets up for a continuing staff of Budget experts, Bridges said.

He nontheless set out to reach a "quick estimate" by early February, and set uptwo subcommittees to lay the groundwork.

Democratic Ideas Vary

The tax issue is related in this way: House Republicans seek a cut of at least three billion dollars in the President's budget. They say this would enable them to cut taxes 6.3 billion and make a substantial payment on the debt.

Democratic tax differences varied all the way from Doughton's stand for a four-billion tax cut to the position of Representative John Dingell (D., Mich.) to any loss of revenue must be made up by taxing corporate profits as the President asks. In between are wide Democratic variations on the President's plan.

By challenging Democrats to back the President's proposal "as is," Speaker Martin cued Republican election year strategy. Republicans will charge that any Deocratic variation on the plan is a repudiation of Mr. Truman.

Representative Harold Knutson (R., Mich.), whose tax bills have generously cut upper-bracket taxes, aimed this sly shaft at Doughton's substitute:

"It doesn't to enough for the little fellows."

Oil Men Urge Gas Cutback

is Rockville 2121, and Brown, whose number is Hyattsville 0120, will send a county policeman to investigate emergency calls for aid in securing fuel oil. Following verification, the police will endeavor to furnish an emergency supply with the cooperation of the District coordinator.

In Virginia, Alexandria City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto telegraphed a request to Governor Tuck asking that Alexandria be permitted to join the District coordinating committee's pool if State action is taken.

Governor Tuck earlier this week indicated he would ask the General Assembly for authority to seize fuel oil supplies in Virginia if oil companies did not cooperate in distribution "so as to keep our people warm."

D. C. May Get More Snow Removal Gear

A joint committee of the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board is expected to propose additional snow removal equipment for the District.

A "moderate" increase in snow removal gear would be recommended in a report to the next monthly board meeting, Dr. H. C. Dickinson, chairman of the board's engineering committee, said yesterday after conferring with William A. Xanten, superintendent of the Department of Sanitation.

Yesterday's conference, Xanton said, marked the first time his department and the Traffic Advisory Board have compared notes.

Another board member, Baxter Smith, said a report he prepared in 1940 was still "amazingly correct" and might serve as a guide for the joint committee report.

The 1940 report, written for the Federation of Citizens' Association, called for the expenditure of $210,000 over a three-year period. It was never carried out, Smith said.

Air Force Plans Program

Force General Counsel. Shaw gave an opinion to Symington holding that the Constitutional fathers intended only to prevent "large standing armies" uncontrolled by Congressional purse-strings in limiting military appropriations to two years.

Seen Within Law

He declared that the limit did not apply to "weapons" and that there "appears to be no legal objections to request to the Congress to appropriate funds to the Air Force for the procurement of aircraft and aeronautical to remain available until expndd."

Symington sent Shaw's opinion to Clark last October 31, asking for a ruling. He declared that "this is vitally important to us in that we simply cannot have an Air Force procurement progr in the interests of the taxpayer unless we can run it for more than 5 years."

The Attorney General's reply cited a 45-year old ruling by Solicitor General Hoyt (25 Op. A. O. 105) and declared that it came to "a sound conclusion" in holding tion did not apply to funds for buying weapons.

Clark Backs Opinion

"You should have no hesitation in acting on the opinion of your General Counsel," Clark stated. He also cited several occasions in which Congressional committee reports agreed with this interpretation of the Constitution.

Air Force legal and procurement experts now are conferring with Navy officials in preparing legislation to "save" current aircraft funds which will otherwise lapse and authorize the Services to contract for long range plane procurement programs.

The measure also will apply to research and development funds, it was said, to permit longer range planning in this field.

Board's Vote Split

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 22 (Spl.).—The county board of supervisors split its vote on proposed subdivision control ordinance here. The ordinance was turned over to W. A. Metzger, who will deliver his decision at the next regular meeting of the board.

Symphony Gets Paris Taxi Horns

Baltimore, Jan. 22 (AP).—Musicians and composers between them can imitate almost anything, from weather to war, says Reginald Stewart, conductor of the Baltimore symphony, but when it comes to the horn of a Paris taxicab——

It can't be done, Stewart decided, so four authentic taxicab horns were sent airmail rush from Paris in time for the symphony to play George Gershwin's "An American in Paris" February 1.

When Stewart sent out an SOS for the horns, E. E. Yaggy, jr., local businessman, cabled his agent in Paris. The horns were sent from the Champs Elysees just in time for rehearsal.

2 Senators Ask Extension of Rent Controls

Two Republican Senators yesterday called for continuation of rent controls until June 30, 1949, to prevent "inflationary" wage demands.

Ives

Senators Raymond E. Baldwin (R. Conn.) and Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) urged a Senate Banking Subcommittee to approve their bill to exend the present law, which expires February 29, for 16 months.

They said they saw a chance for "such an improvement in housing by that time" that rent controls could be ended then entirely. They said there is "no item in basic living costs that is scarcer than housing."

The Baldwin-Ives bill would strengthen the present rent control law by returning hotel rooms to controls, and freezing until June 30, 1949, the rents of tenants who signed leases calling for voluntary 15 per cent increases.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Veterans Committee, and a spokesman for New York City landlords called for continuation of controls for differing periods.

But William B. Russell, spokesman for Greater New York Real Estate Boards, asked for a general 15 per cent rent increase for tenants who did not sign the voluntary agreements.

Wife 'Censored' Papers, Divorce Suit Charges

Miami, Fla., Jan. 22 (AP).—In a suit for divorce charging mental cruelty, Vincent P. Spiriti of Miami today said his wife, Vivian, was so jealous she snipped all pictures of women from newspapers before letting him see them.

Spiriti further claimed that his wife ruined radio programs he was listening to by complaining, when a female voice came over the air, that since he was listening to a woman he was no longer interested in his wife.

Board Ordered

Projector Operators To Be Tested

A three-man Motion Picture Machine Operators Examining Board for the District was ordered yesterday by the Commissioners.

The board, to consist of two District officials and one paid civilian licensed as a motion picture operator, will "aid the Director of Inspection in determining the qualifications of applicants for licenses." Members will be appointed by the Commissioners.

Principal Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester Gray, who is chairman of the Regulations Committee, recommended the board. He said $300 a year had been authorized in the current District budget for hiring one member of the board to be paid at the rate of $10 a meeting.

Under Police Regulations, Gray said, all commercial motion picture operators must obtain licenses in the District. The regulation does not apply to amateurs who operate 20-mm. projectors, he emphasized.

Missing Girl, 12, Located; Charges Mistreatment

A 12-year-old girl, missing from her home in Gambrills, Md., since Sunday night, was located by Montgomery County police yesterday afternoon in a Silver Spring home.

The girl, Betty Jean Long, oldest of nine children, is now in the Rockville jail pending investigation of her report she was mistreated at home. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Long. Long, a painter, has been idle recently, suffering with rheumatism, his wife said.

Records at Annapolis Emergency Hospital show that the girl was brought there from her home October 20 suffering from bruises. Her mother said, however, after her disappearance that there had been no recent friction between Betty Jean and other members of the family.

Meridian Hill Hotel Bids Studied Again

The board of directors of Defense Homes Corp. met again yesterday to study the 23 bids submitted for purchase of Meridian Hill Hotel, the Government-owned residence hall for women at 16th and Euclid sts. nw.

However, the Defense Homes public relations office said there would be no announcement as to action by board, if any, until today. The property was once before offered for sale but the original successful bidders, a group of Chicago businessmen, failed to meet terms agreed upon.

Map Making Awards Given To U. S. Bureau Executives

Harry T. Kelsh, in charge of field mapping with the United States Soil Conservation Service, and William T. Pryor, project manager with the Public Roads Administration, received top awards here last night for their contribution to aerial map-making.

The awards were presented during the evening session of the American Society of Photogrammetry convention at the Wardman Park Hotel. Approximately 900 map experts are attending the convention which ends with technical sessions today and a dance tonight.

During yesterday's sessions, Rear Admiral R. O. Glover, United States Navy hydrographer, told the convention the United States entered both World War I and World War II with inadequate maps and that many times the Navy had to rely on maps so out-dated they were dangerous.

Another speaker, Newman Bumstead, National Geographic Society research cartographer, described in detail a method of processing maps for reproduction which eliminates scale changes due to the dimensional instability of materials used in catographic compilation and photolithography.

Edmund S. Massie, jr., of Arlington, with the United States Forestry Service, was installed as society preisdent. George G. Tschume, with Bausch & Lomb Optical Co., was installed as first vice president, and Philip G. McCurdy of the United States Hydrographic Office as second vice president.

Kelsh received the Sherman Fairchild Photogrammetric Award for research on an instrument to maintain the simplicity of a projection system in compilation of maps from aerial photographs. Pryor received the Talbert Abrams Award for a paper on "Aerial Surveys in Highway Location."

Britain's Lost Pacific Hopes in '41 Revealed

London, Jan. 22 (U.P.)—Britain relied on the United States to deter Japanese aggression in 1941, but wrote off most of her possessions in the Pacific as undefensible long before Pearl Harbor, it was revealed today in documents that had been shrouded in mystery since Singapore's surrender.

The dispatches made public today were compiled by Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, British Far Eastern commander in chief during the fateful year 1941. The dispatches relentlessly bare the secrets of Britain's shortcomings in the Far East before World War II.

Brooke-Popham's papers disclosed that from the day he arrived at Singapore he realized it was "impossible to exercise any form of direct operational control" in the vast, scattered Far Eastern command, where key points were undermanned and effectiveness impaired by jealousies.

"Efforts to establish international cooperation early in 1941 were rendered ineffectual by Washington's political objections, and steps taken to discourage Japan from war by emphasizing Britain's growing strength proved almost negligible because of inept British propaganda and poor press relations," Brooke-Popham said.

He said the British government's appreciation of Far East defenses as a whole was based on the United States Pacific Fleet.

"It was expected this deterrent would prevent the Japanese from allotting more than a limited number of warships for escort duties, which would limit convoys sent to the China Seas or expeditionary forces rounding the Philippines toward Malaya," he said.

In these days of high food prices it is more important than ever to conserve.

For instance, it is no longer necessary to use your milk and eggs in breading batter. Get Golden Dipt from your grocer or butcher. It contains the milk and eggs necessary.

Easy to use . . . eliminates batter making . . . saves cooking fat, too, because it doesn't soak up grease like home-made breading does.

Greek Troops Reported in New Drives

Athens, Jan. 22 (U.P.) — Greek troops have opened an offensive against the Communist-led guerillas on several northern and south-central sectors and have killed, wounded or captured 241 of them, news dispatches said today, quoting military sources.

The reports were not confirmed by official sources. But it appeared likely that what newspapers called an "offensive" actually was one of a series of jabs expected to be carried on all winter.

Maj. Gen. William Livesay, chief of the United States military mission, has hinted that the real offensive will not be started until spring, but that it is expected to clear out the guerillas by late spring or early summer.

In this connection, War Minister George Stratos signed an order today calling up 12 national defense battalions to be ready for action on February 12.

Four more guerillas from 26 sentenced to death a few days ago were executed at Mesolongion, north of Patras.

2 Yoke Robberies, Bus Station Theft Reported to Police

Police had two yoke robberies and a bus station theft on their records yesterday. They have arrested a suspect in the bus station robbery.

The victims were:

Zaleman King, 34, of 5709 Central ave., Capitol Heights, Md., yoked for $100 and some checks after he alighted from a bus at 53d st. and Central ave.

Gail C. Hamilton, a Naval Air Station sailor, lost $50 and a watch to a yoke robber at Florida ave. and N. Capitol st.

Robert E. Gadbury, Quantico Marine, had $120 lifted from him as he slept on a bench in the Greyhound Bus Station, but police quickly arrested an 18-year-old boy and found $120 on him.

France Sets Deadline on Monetary Fund

Paris, Jan. 22 (U.P.) — French Finance Minister Rene Mayer, intent on entering France in the global race for previous American dollars, tonight set this week as the deadline for an International Monetary Fund agreement to devaluation of the franc.

Mayer indicated that failure of the fund directors to approve the proposed devaluation would lead France to take unilateral action, over the vigorous protests of Britain.

France is maintaining a firm attitude toward British objections to the devaluation project, Mayer said, and has neither withdrawn nor changed the suggested program.

Under the plan to slash the value of French money. The "export franc" value would be cut from 119 francs to the dollar to a figure reported to be about 216 francs per dollar. The "domestic franc" would be cut by about 60 francs to the dollar, thus giving the French two monetary rates, one for internal trading and one for export.

Norway Film Offered

Per Host, Norwegian lecturer, will present in natural color film the out-of-doors life of Norway before members of the National Geographic Society at Constitution Hall tonight at 8:15.

Jones Urges RFC Control By Congress

By The Associated Press

Jesse Jones told Senators yesterday he would like to see the Reconstruction Finance Corporation continued as an independent lending agency, responsible only to Congress and with "dreamers, reformers and pure theorists" having no voice in its affairs.

Jones

Jones, former RFC chairman and former Secretary of Commerce, expressed his views in a statement filed with a Senate Banking Subcommittee. He mailed it from his home in Houston, Tex., where he is nursing a cold.

Later, Senator Buck (R., Del.), the subcommittee chairman, issued a statement in which he said he believed the subcommittee would recommend continuation of the RFC "with authority to make business loans in proper circumstance when private credit is not available and with powers as a standby agency for economic emergencies."

The Texan told the Senators it was not sound legislative policy to give other Government agencies powers to direct RFC to make loans, grants or other expenditures.

This practice, he told the subcommittee, "was indulged in much too freely under the War Powers Act, which gave the President authority to give other agencies authority to direct the RFC to do this, that or the other."

The subcommittee wound up hearings yesterday on continuing the life of the RFC beyond June 30. John D. Goodloe, RFC chairman, was the final witness.

He said there had been a "tightening of credit" recently, which he attributed to the "over-all inflationary situation." That situation, he added, is better reflected in the commodity markets than in the stock market.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation sent the subcommittee a statement urging that the RFC be given back the power to purchase preferred stock of financial institutions in cases of emergency.

But, the FDIC said, this power should be given the RFC only in the form of a permanent statute.

Brunswick Church Fire Routs Pastor, Family

Frederick, Md., Jan. 22 (Spl.).—Fire gutted the Penecostal Church in Brunswick yesterday and the apartment of the Rev. Jacob Heck, in the rear, was destroyed.

The fire apparently started from a hot-air furnace beneath the church pulpit. The Rev. Mr. Heck, his wife, young child and Mrs. Heck's mother were forced to flee their apartment without any of their personal possessions.

Friendship Man Named To Board of Registry

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 22 (AP).—Governor Lane appointed George R. Lewis of Friendship, Anne Arundel County, a member of the county's permanent Board of Registry today.

The appointment makes possible the functioning of the board which was approved by the County Commissioners last week.

Baghdad Riots Threaten Britain-Iraq Pact

London, Jan. 22 (AP).—The treaty of alliance between Britain and Iraq, signed a week ago but not ratified, was in danger of falling through today as the result of three days of riotous protects in Baghdad in which 11 persons were killed.

To quiet the demonstrations, Regent Emir Abdul Illah announced in Baghdad last night that "no treaty will be ratified with Britain that does not guarantee full national rights and aspirations."

Baghdad dispatches today said the Iraqi delegation headed by Premier Saleh Jabr which negotiated the treaty, had been ordered to return home from London immediately. Political circles in Baghdad were predicting that the cabinet would resign as a result of the crisis.

Placards demanding "execute the Iraqi negotiators" were carried in a funeral procession today for students killed in the Baghdad demonstrations.

The treaty signed at Portsmouth a week ago met an Iraqi demand for Britain to withdraw from air bases in Iraq and for the fields to be manned by Iraqi personnel. However, it provided that Britain could use the bases, and it involved pledges of mutual aid in event either country is involved [illegible] also obligated Britain to continue training and arming of Iraqi forces.

Four Face Gaming Trial

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 22 (Spl.).—Warrants against six persons were served here after a raid by county officers Tuesday in which two slot machines and several punch boards were seized.

School Survey Made In Prince William

Manassas, Va., Jan. 22 (Spl.).—A committee from the State Department of Education is visiting Prince William County schools this week to survey the construction needs of the county. Claude R. Graham of the State department heads the committee, which also includes Dr. William R. Smithy of the University of Virginia, I. D. Gasque, superintendent of schools in Warren and Rappahannock Counties, and Archie Robinson, Clarke County superintendent.

Report Lauds Md. Medical Care Program

Baltimore, Jan. 22 (AP).—Maryland's "unique medical care program has made remarkable strides" and achieved "any of its major objectives," a committee of county health officers reported today.

The committee added, however, that "the importance of coordinating the medical care program with preventive services has been somewhat neglected" and issued a 15-page interim report containing suggestions to remedy this.

Speaking of the need for routine checks of apparently well patients, the committee said in about 2000 recent examinations representing a cross section of Maryland's population, about 35 per cent of men and 50 per cent of women "were found to have physical defects of sufficient seriousness to warrant referral to the family physician or dentist for necessary attention."

Dr. Warthen Heads Group

The committee—on the coordination of curative and preventive services—was appointed last May by Dr. Robert Riley, State health director. Its chairman is Dr. William H. F. Warthen, deputy State health officer of Baltimore County.

Discussion of the report was the program for the first day of a two-day meeting here of Maryland health officers. Scientific papers will be presented tomorrow.

Major recommendations by the Warthen committee included:

1. Integration and close collaboration of county health departments and private practitioners.

2. A "continuing approach" to achieve the "ideal procedure" of having a public health nurse visit each case or family as soon as possible after admission to health department services.

3. Periodic review of medical care case summary records to determine if patients are receiving adequate medical care or if there is evidence of program services being abused by the patient.

Routine Checkups Given

4. Routine physical examination of apparently well patients.

5. Extension of "active and efficient" laboratory services.

6. Plans for a more complete utilization by health departments of the vocational rehabilitation service offered by the State Board of Education.

7. Full utilization of consultation clinics by medical care patients.

Attached to the report was a State Health Department statement on consulation services.

It said the University of Maryland School of Medicine and the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine would be asked to assist in the plan by nominating representatives to form a joint committee to advise the council on medical care.

Hagerstown Girl Wins Scholarship

LAURA SHATTO,
a Hagerstown, Md., High School student, is one of four national winners of the "Voice of Democracy" contest who will receive a $500 college scholarship, it was announced yesterday. Attorney General Tom Clark will make the presentation Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. in the Statler Hotel. Miss Shatto is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rollin P. Shatto of Hagerstown. The contest was sponsored by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Broadcasters and the Radio Manufacturers Association. The winners, all girls, will visit President Truman at the White House Tuesday

Bryan to Face Trial for Manslaughter

Fred A. Bryan, 43, former Fairfax Republican chairman, yesterday was indicted by a Fairfax grand jury on a charge of manslaughter in the October traffic death of Lemuel B. Morris.

Bryan

He pleaded not guilty before Circuit Judge Paul E. Brown. Bond of $1000 was continued until his trial February 23.

The jurors returned a true bill in less than an hour yesterday morning after hearing testimony from Dr. W. C. Welburn, Arlington County coroner, and Dr. Emanuel Newman of Falls Church.

The grand jury first considered Bryan's case Monday, along with 11 other indictments. But after what court officials said was the longest deliberation of a Fairfax grand jury in the last 12 years, they asked to return yesterday for more testimony.

Morris, who was a Republican candidate for county supervisor and a close friend of Bryan, died October 27, two days after he was injured when his car, driven by Bryan, collided with another near Tyson's Corner.

Bryan's appeal of a drunken driving conviction, growing out of the same accident, was not set for hearing in the current term of Circuit Court.

Court Centers On Proffitt In Bank Case

Richmond, Va., Jan. 22 (AP).—With the trial of Hugh N. Rakes and his wife recessed until Monday, Federal District Court here today centered its attention on one of five other contesting defendants in the Fredericksburg bank case.

Before the court was the case of Joseph E. Proffit, president of the Floyd County bank and a former member of the Virginia House of Delegates. Like Rakes and Mrs. Lillian C. Rakes, he is charged with aiding William Reeves Gardner in the misapplication of nearly $500,000 from he Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Fredericksburg.

Proffit is specifically charged with authorizing the acceptance of two Rakes' checks totaling $6500 and written on the Fredericksburg bank to "take up" checks for a like amount written on his own bank at Floyd.

The Government brought Eugene C. Sauers, former FBI agent, to the stand in an attempt to prove that Proffit gave his okay to payment of the checks and that he did so with the knowledge that Rakes was financing his dairy enterprises by keeping his checks "in the air" between banks at Fredericksburg, Purcellville and other cities in the State.

The merits of the case will be entirely up to the judge, the defendant having waived jury trial.

The recess of the jury trial until Monday was called by Judge Johnson J. Hayes due to the illness of defense attorney R. H. McNeill.

Md. Identical Twins To Wed Identical Twins

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 22 (AP).—Identical twin brothers made applications today for licenses to wed identical twin sisters.

Attaches thought they were seeing double when both couples walked into the county court house.

The sisters are Arvella and Louella Muntzing, 22; the brothers are Ocie and Elvern Simmons.

They plan to be married next week.

Richmond Rape Suspect Gives Up in Honolulu

Richmond, Va., Jan. 22 (AP).—Carl R. Burleson, 28, former Richmond policeman convicted of raping a woman in his police car a year ago and a fugitive from justice for many months, voluntarily surrendered to the FBI in Honolulu, the Richmond FBI office, announced today.

Va. Sales Tax Bill Due Soon, House Is Told

Richmond, Va., Jan. 22 (AP).—A declaration that the general sales tax—a money-getting measure that Governor Tuck called "objectionable" — will be offered shortly for the consideration of the Virginia General Assembly was made in the House of Delegates today as House and Senate committees began joint deliberation on the half-billion-dollar budget.

The disclosure that the sales tax spectre was about to become reality came from Delegate Samuel E. Pope of Southampton who arose as the House convened to propose such legislation and promise he would put it in unless it were offered first by some legislator "with more firepower."

Delegate Jack Witten of Tazewell already has a sales tax bill drawn up, Pope said, but it is not known when the bill will be introduced.

Highlight of Session

The brief flurry on taxes was the highlight of a generally quiet legislative session. Yesterday Tuck referred to the sales tax—among other taxes—as "objectionable levies." And in his opening tax message to the Assembly the Governor said he opposed the sales tax except as a last resort.

The House appropriations committee and the Senate finance committee, meanwhile, met to consider the budget and, if they choose, exercise at the legislative level further economies that the governor has stressed.

The budget hearings will continue for about two weeks, and then the two committees will deliberate separately.

Meanwhile today the first formal disapproval of any phase of the board reorganization program proposed by Tuck was placed on the Governor's desk.

Merger Disapproved

It was a report of a subcommittee of the State Board of Public Welfare, appointed to consider the merger of the four industrial schools for juvenile delinquents into two coeducational schools for whites and Negroes.

The Burch commission recommended such a merger in the interests of efficiency and economy. But the subcommittee, headed by State Senator Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington, said "no"—it would continue the operation of the schools as four separate units.

Both houses will convene tomorrow at noon.

Meanwhile the House committee on counties, cities and towns met for a half-hour today and in that time set a public hearing on Richmond city's charter bill for 3 p. m. next Tuesday.

Reported out were these measures:

House Bill 37, sponsored by Delegate E. Blackburn Moore of Berryville, to amend the town charter of Berryville fixing the legal tax limit at $2 per $100 of assessed valuation instead of $1 per $100 now in effect.

HB46—Which provides a referendum in the city of Alexandria on March 2 for election of members of the city council at large or by wards. The bill was sponsored by Delegate Armistead L. Boothe of Alexandria.

HB5—To provide a new charter for the city of Waynesboro, sponsored by Delegates George M. Cochran of Staunton and Felix E. Edmunds of Waynesboro, was referred to subcommittee.

Catonsville Flier Missing in Caribbean

Balboa, Canal Zone, Jan. 22 (AP).—Lieut. Edgar Charles Bayliss of Catonsville, Md., has been missing since Tuesday when his jet fighter ran out of fuel on a routine navigations training flight.

Caribbean Air Command headquarters said today that First

21 Die as Jews Lay Siege to Arab Village

Jerusalem, Jan. 22 (AP).—A Jewish-Arab battle raged around a roadblock, led to siege of an Arab village and brought traffic to a halt today on the main Jerusalem-Tel Aviv highway.

Eight Jews and 13 Arabs were killed in the battle and snipings along the highway.

The fighting centered around the Arab village of Yazur, just east of Jaffa. Seven Jewish settlement police escorting a convoy were mobbed, overpowered and beaten or stabbed to death when they encountered a roadblock at the village edge. Six other Jewish police were wounded.

Then reinforcements from Hagana, the Jewish militia, arrived, and the Jews said they had surrounded and sealed off the village. At least three Arabs were known to have been killed in the Hagana attack on the village, but Hagana reported killing up to 12.

Farther along the road, Arabs intensified their sniping, and one Jew was killed and two wounded.

Meanwhile, the Jewish Agency made a formal demand upon the Palestine government to clarify the extent of its efforts to guard the frontiers. The agency cited recent reports that hundreds of armed, trained and uniformed Arabs were entering Palestine from Lebanon, Syria and Trans-Jordan.

Dispatches from Damascus, capital of Syria, said Mustapha Hassan, chief executive of the Young Egypt political party, had predicted on a visit there that a "second front" soon would be established in southern Palestine. He said volunteer Arab fighters were moving into Egypt's eastern desert, and that the Egyptian government had turned over Hexstep Field to the Arab League for the training of aviators.

GSI Strike Rift Widened

lenbach said that since this was "the first case with which I have had direct connection since the Taft-Hartley Act became effective," he would have to be "unusually careful" to get "all the facts and the correct interpretation of the relationship between these facts and the Taft-Hartley Act."

He said Labor Department Solicitor William Tyson "has not yet furnished me his opinion on the question of interpretation."

The problem facing Schwellenbach is how to reconcile the position of GSI with that of the 1500 union members on strike for a 15-cents-an-hour increase in pay. Forty-two eating places in Government buildings are involved. At present GSI is operating 40.

AFL Voice Asked

Another potential problem has been posed by Charles E. Sands, international representative of an AFL restaurant union, who wired the White House that his group should be represented in conferences held by Schwellenbach on the matter.

Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill The Washington Post was scored again by Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) in a one-minute speech on the floor of the House of Representatives. The Congressman, who is chairman of a subcommittee of the House Labor Committee, declared:

"The Washington Post, which lets out a squawk every time you prick a pink or a Red, is at it again today. They are mad because a congressional committee wants to know by what authority the Administration, the President, and the Secretary of Labor, Mr. Schwellenbach, disregard the Taft-Hartley Act, and wants to know why it is they advocate closing those cafeterias.

The Washington Post, on its editorial page, yesterday commented that "congressional inquiries should be dedicated to enlightenment and not to persecution" and noted that Hoffman had "sought to make his investigating power as chairman of a House Subcommittee on 'Education' into a club for intimidation of newspapermen."

Milk Strike Averted

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 22 (AP).—A threatened milk strike, set for today, was averted when union members agreed early this morning to remain at work for an additional week while negotiations continue with five Cumberland dairies.

Bill to Admit Fiancees Of Soldiers Advanced

The House Judiciary Committee yesterday approved legislation to allow alien fiancees of American servicemen and former servicemen to enter this country up to December 31, 1948.

The committee's action is subject to House and Senate approval.

The deadline for fiancees to enter this country for marriage expired last December 31.

Chicago Hotel Rent Control Held Invalid

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 22 (AP).—The Chicago Rent Control ordinance regulating hotel rates for nontransient accommodations was held invalid today by the Illinois Supreme Court.

The court directed the Cook County (Chicago) Circuit Court to grant six hotels an injunction restraining the city from enforcing the ordinance.

Marshall Says Aid Means Sacrifices

Scarce Items Needed Abroad Include Farm Machinery, Nitrogen Fertilizer

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 22 (AP).—Secretary of State Marshall said today that sharing farm machinery and fertilizers with Europe under the proposed recovery program "may cause some hardship for a few American farmers." But he said the sacrifices here will be "insignificant" in comparison with the job to be done.

Marshall spoke before the National Cotton Council, delivering an address that was frankly designed to explain the Marshall Plan to agricultural interests. Similarly at Pittsburgh last week he appealed for businessmen's support of the recovery program.

The Secretary of State said that scarce items which would have to be shipped to Europe despite need in this country will include small amounts of nitrogen fertilizer, farm machinery and other supplies and equipment necessary "to enable Europe to increase its indigenous food supply."

Need of Cotton Stressed

"The sharing of these and other supplies with Europe may cause some hardship for a few American farmers," Marshall went on. "Such sacrifices and inconveniences as may result will be really insignificant by comparison with the many handicaps under which European farmers are laboring. They are minor when measured against the alternatives—the situation that would face American agriculture if the structure of world trade and social order should collapse."

Marshall said, too, that the shipments proposed to Europe may tend to hold prices high at home. But he commented that 1948 exports under the Marshall Plan will be less than the 1947 total of exports.

He told his cotton-minded audience that "one of the materials most needed is cotton."

During the first 15 months of the Marshall program—assuming Congress approves—cotton shipments "are planned to total three million bales," Marshall said. The 15 months period would begin April 1, this year and run to July 1, 1949.

Tobacco Shipments Planned

Shipments for the full four-year Marshall Plan are estimated at more than 10 million bales.

"The volume of cotton to be supplied by the other Western Hemisphere countries," Marshall said, "will be approximately half as much as the United States is to supply."

Marshall then took up another big Southern cash crop—tobacco—and announced that it "will be shipped to Europe in considerable volume."

"It is not as essential as food and clothing, of course," the Secretary said, "but even under austere living conditions and rationing it is found advisable to makes some concessions to human nature."

Marshall said that "farm incomes today are far greater than at any time in our history."

Market Support Cited

"But it is generally recognized," he went on, "that the present profitable overseas market for American farm products is being sustained in part by measures which are artificial and are uneconomic in the ordinary commercial sense.

"Dollars appropriated by the United States Government are being used to a considerable extent to pay for the shipments of American grain, cotton, and other agricultural commodities to the countries of western Europe.

"We have been forced to adopt this extraordinary procedure because only in this way could we hope to prevent a serious deterioration in Europe, with incalculable economic and political consequences to this country.

Warns Against Isolationism

"The additional aid we now propose for Europe would not be extended as relief to meet separate recurrent emergencies, but as part of a carefully developed constructive plan by which Western Europe can coordinate its efforts and regain its ability to support itself."

Admonishing against any kind of isolationism in respect to the European problem, Marshall said:

"We are a strong Nation," he said. "But we cannot live to ourselves and remain strong. We need friends, and particularly friends who share our outlook on the organization of society and on the importance of the individual. The cause of liberty cannot have too many defenders. And its defenders must stick closely together, for their collective effort, and not just their individual efforts, will be required if the cause is to be effectively served."

Test Tube Method Checking Cancer Held Successful

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., Jan. 22 (AP).—Experiments with an easily conducted test-tube method of checking for cancer were reported today by Dr. Albert M. Harris, pathologist for Sioux Valley Hospital here.

In an article published in the South Dakota Journal of Medicine and Pharmacy, Dr. Harris said his method was one in which the presence or absence of a precipitate determines whether the test shows positive or negative.

In the test, urine is mixed with freshly ground umbilical cord, rabbit serum and ether.

Dr. Harris said 100 preliminary tests, began last summer, "have been 98.9 per cent accurate on the negative side." Positive reactions were 45 per cent accurate.

T-E-W Housing Bill Backers Plan Drive for House Action

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Supporters of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill for a long-range housing program are organizing a drive to get the legislation before the House for action, it was disclosed yesterday.

A non-partisan veterans' group, headed by Representatives Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.) and John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.), has scheduled a National Veterans Housing Conference since February 29. Representatives of all the major veterans' groups are on the committee for arrangements.

A movement is also under way to obtain the necessary 218 petitions to discharge the House Committee on Banking and Currency from consideration of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill, so that the measure can come to the floor for action. Veterans are expressing considerable indignation because a petition last year obtained fewer signatures than a petition to discharge the same committee from consideration of the Townsend plan to aid the aged.

Some 1500 veterans from every State in the Union are expected to attend the National Veterans Housing Conference, which will probably be held in the Department of Commerce auditorium.

Committee spokesmen said that plans for the conference include speeches by President Truman, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), coauthor of the bill, and General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Javits represents the Jewish War Veterans on the committee; Kennedy, the Veterans of Foreign Wars; William E. Greener, jr., the American Veterans of World War II; Paul R. McCauley, the American Legion; Audie Murphy, the Disabled American Veterans; Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., American Veterans Committee, and Robert F. Wagner, Catholic War Veterans.

The long-range housing bill was reported favorably by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee last year, but the House leadership has shown no signs of wanting to speed housing legislation.

A joint Senate-House Committee to investigate the housing shortage that was appointed last session has held lengthy and exhaustive hearings and expects to be ready with a report in the near future.

The committee may hold one more session Wednesday to hear some black marketeers, Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), the vice chairman, said. McCarthy disclosed that the committee would probably recall Isadore Gensberg, New York dealer in scarce commodities who defied the Congress to keep him from making an 18 per cent profit.

Clark Backs Bar to Visit Of Scholar

Attorney General Tom C. Clark yesterday stood firm on the tight new rules for alien visitors to this country.

Among other things, the rules say no visitors covered by them may make speeches or take part in propaganda activities unless they get an ok from the Government. Clark said the rules would not bar newspaper men, students or teachers unless they were barred by the law to keep out anarchists, Communists and the like.

Clark took this view in a wire to Dean Carl W. Ackerman of the Graduate School of Journalism at Columbia University. Dean Ackerman had protested the rules, saying they would be fatal to Columbia's plan for a Latin-American Press Institute in September.

As long as academic freedom is to be under the control of the Justice Department, the dean added, Columbia will have to call off its plan to help 18 foreign countries set up schools of journalism.

Dean Ackerman protested the refusal of an entry permit to Dr Miguel Acosta Saignes, director of the Venezuelan School of Journalism. Clark said yesterday that "presumably" Dr. Saignes was barred under the law against Communists.

But Dean Ackerman told The Washington Post he had seen no evidence that Dr. Saignes was a Communist, and that the Venezuelan scholar flatly denied he was or ever had been.

Clark told the dean that he had "completely confused and misconstrued" the new rules. But Dean Ackerman told The Washington Post that as they stand the rules affect the relations of every college in the Nation with students, teachers and universities all over the world.

He said he was sure a solution could be worked out, and that he would be glad to come to Washington to meet Clark or other officials, to work out a program.

Sergeant Would Forget Wife's Death With Jap

Yokohama, Japan, Jan. 22 (U.P.). A 40-year-old Army sergeant, informed that his schoolteacher wife had died in an apparent suicide pact with a Japanese artist, begged today that news of the deaths be kept out of the newspapers, because it was "bad for the occupation."

As for himself, M/Sergt. Leonard Lorance, Portland, Oreg., wanted to forget all about the tragedy. Lorance's Australian wife, Sylvia, 30, and Rokuo Mitsuhashi, former art instructor at the Yokohama girls school, died of poison Tuesday.

Persons who knew Mrs. Lorance at the Yokohama American Army Dependents School, where she was a teacher, said Mitsuhashi had been a frequent visitor to the Lorance home and that he and Mrs. Lorance had become fast friends as the result of a common interest in art.

They said she dyed her blonde hair jet black the day before her death, and that she had been subject to alternate spells of elation and depression.

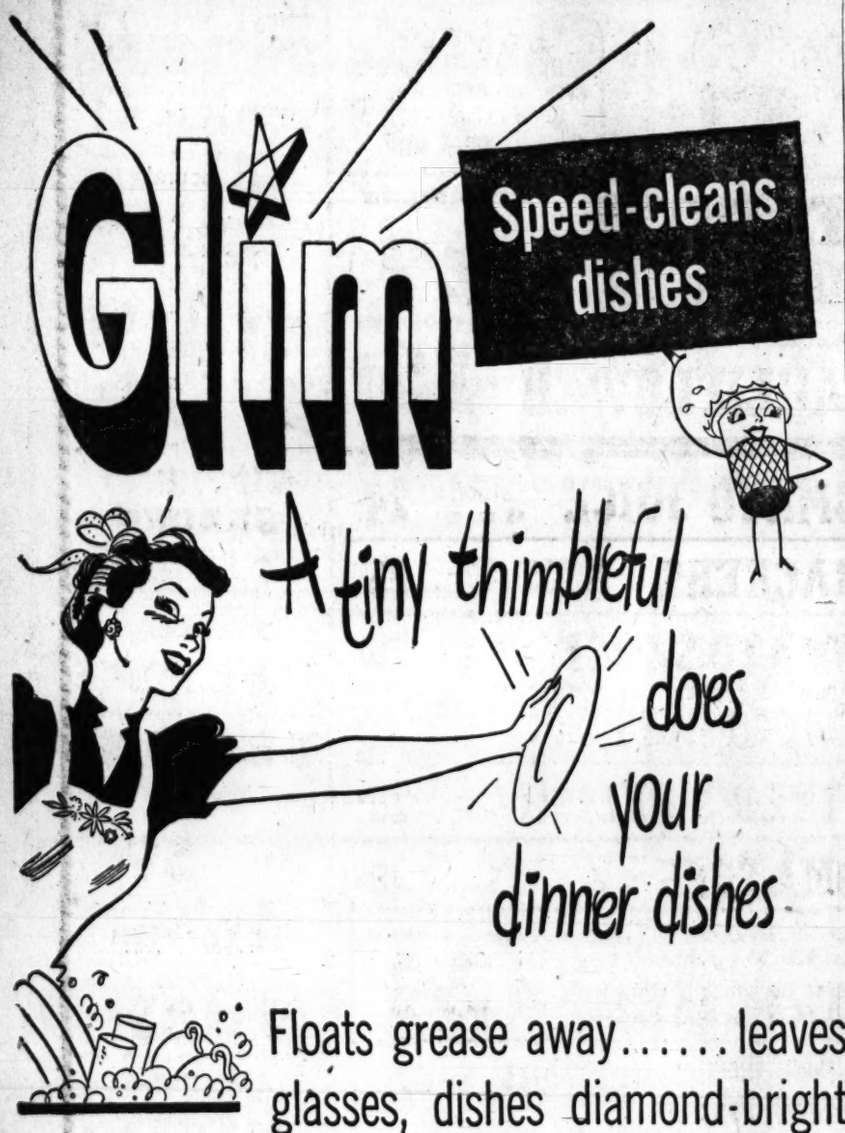
Glim
Speed-cleans dishes



A tiny thimbleful does your dinner dishes

Floats grease away..... leaves glasses, dishes diamond-bright

Cuts grease faster than soap!
Clinging grease vanishes from the dirtiest dishes, pots and pans. Even sticky egg stains are cut away clean. Glim surrounds grease, floats it away fast.

Cleans dishes faster than soap!
In go the dishes, off comes the dirt. Rinsing's easier and no wiping needed. Not even a grimy dishpan ring to clean. Glim makes dishwashing faster, easier than soap.

Dishes gleam like ma-a-ad!
No soapy streaks! Glassware, silver shine like diamonds—free from dulling soap film. Glim doesn't just wash the dishes—this wonder liquid cleans them cleaner than soap!

Leaves hands feeling surgically clean!
Glim leaves hands cleaner than ever before. Yet no soap made—powder, flake or bar—is safer, gentler, or milder to hands. Unlike soap, Glim contains no harsh alkali. In tests with eleven leading soap and soapless dishwashers, only Glim proved 100% non-irritating to all types of skin.

Suds faster than soap!
No stubborn soap particles to dissolve. For instant suds in hard or soft, hot or cold water—pour Glim into dishpan. Add water full force. Glim is easy on hands!

CIO Board Rejects Third Party 33-11

Bridges Says Union Won't Be Bound; Declares Truman Doesn't Have Chance

By The Associated Press

The CIO executive board, by a vote of 33 to 11, last night opposed any third party in 1948 as "politically unwise."

Murray

Harry Bridges, president of the International Longshoremen's Union on the West Coast, promptly announced that the longshoremen wouldn't be bound by the action.

Bridges said he was still for the third party candidacy of Henry A. Wallace, that the Democrats don't stand "the chance of a snowball in hell" of electing President Truman this fall.

CIO President Philip Murray announced the vote adopting the anti-third party resolution after an eight-hour board session. The resolution does not mention Wallace by name.

Fitzgerald Dissents

The nine vice presidents, who discussed the resolution Wednesday, voted 8 to 1 in favor of it, Murray told a news conference. The lone dissenter was Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the CIO United Electrical Workers.

The CIO board resolution asserted that "we believe that our support of a third party would weaken the possibility of electing a progressive Congress."

The AFL has not yet taken a position on the Wallace third party movement, but AFL President William Green personally has said that organized labor would oppose Wallace and that he thought the third party was a "political mistake."

Murray said emphatically that there had been no threats from any union leaders to withdraw from the CIO as a result of differences over the political stand.

Murray also specifically denied that Bridges had been removed as CIO director for northern California.

Can Do Nothing, He Says

The CIO president told newsmen that "so far as I can see there is not a thing" that the organization could do if member unions represented by dissenters in the meeting should decide to support Wallace contrary to the majority of other unions.

"There is nothing in the resolution that is compelling in the sense that it is compulsory," Murray said. "The CIO has been asked by its thousands of members in the course of the past two weeks to indicate through the executive board what its attitude would be toward a third party.

"It is the obligation of the executive board to provide guidance to the membership. It does not necessarily follow that they will accept that advice."

The resolution said that "at this time the CIO is in no way committed to any presidential aspirant."

"By a unified fight for a progressive program," it said, "and by the maximum registration and vote the CIO believes that the greatest good can be achieved in 1948 for a world peace, security and progress of the people."

Bridges told a news conference later that the Longshoremen would not be bound by the executive board action, but emphatically pledged his continued support to the CIO Political Action Committee.

He said "I do not know" when asked whether he would continue in his California regional CIO post.

Bridges saw in the executive board action an indirect indorsement of President Truman for a four-year term.

"If the CIO takes the position that it won't support a Republican, and it won't support Wallace, then that amounts to a left hand indorsement of Truman because they know he is going to be the Democratic candidate," Bridges said.

World Bank Shows Profit For First Time

By The Associated Press

The 46-nation World Bank's operations broke into the black for the first time during the final quarter of 1947, the bank reported yesterday.

Income exceeded expenses and set-asides for a special reserve fund by $1,317,610, enough of a net to wipe out the previous quarter's deficit and give promise of eliminating all past deficits by March 31, the bank said.

The bank statement for the final quarter of 1947 showed income of $4,513,694 from charges on the $497,000,000 in loans it has granted. Expenses were listed at $2,547,853 and the special reserve set-aside as $648,231.

The four borrowing countries, France, the Netherlands, Denmark and Luxembourg, still have 197 million dollars of their 497-million-dollar credits to draw on, the statement said, noting that Luxembourg had used the equivalent of $300,000 in Belgian francs during the quarter instead of drawing funds in United States dollars.

Total subscriptions by member countries were given as $8,263,100,000.

Acosta Will Try For Distance Mark in Plane

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP).—Bert Acosta, veteran speed and distance flier, said today he is planning to shoot at the long-distance flight record of 11,777 miles now held by the United States Navy.

Acosta

Details of the flight still are not completed, Acosta said. He plans to go to Kansas City tomorrow to pick up a new plane.

Acosta has been flying since 1911. In the pioneer days of aviation he set a speed record at Omaha, Nebr., and a distance mark between Omaha and Philadelphia, he said.

Ex-Mayor of San Francisco Backs Home Rule for District

Washington citizens have "every reason to kick" against their status as political eunuchs in the opinion of former Mayor Roger D. Lapham of San Francisco.

Lapham

"Local residents," he said yesterday, "ought to have the right to govern themselves and have a say in the affairs of their own municipality."

Bronzed by California sun, Mayor Lapham stopped briefly here en route home to visit his friend of a quarter century, Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, with whom he served during the war on the National Defense Mediation Board.

Governing a large area like the District without any political control or representation by local taxpayers, he declared, must be quite an experience. San Francisco has a population almost identical in size with Washington.

As mayor for four years, Lapham had to give up the idea of junking the famous cable cars because the voters objected, although the cars were a drain on the city treasury.

"City governments is essentially a housekeeping government," he said. "But it's the most interesting job a man ever had. If variety is the spice of life than a mayor should life forever."

Slayer of Two Killed by Wife At His Order

Columbia, Me., Jan. 22 (AP).—An elderly blueberry grower and a young housewife were slain today and then their alleged slayer died from a rifle bullet he directed his wife to fire at him, authorities reported.

Sheriff Ray S. Foster said Thomas Drinkwater, 53, killed Harley Worcester, 79, and Mrs. Glenis Ellingwood, 20, during a domestic quarrel in Worcester's home, wounded a State trooper and then told his own wife, Alice, 41:

"I'm not going to spend the rest of my life in jail. You can shoot me or I'm going to shoot you and the baby."

Mrs. Drinkwater fired once at her husband, Foster reported, and it misfired. Drinkwater reloaded the gun and passed it back to her. She pulled the trigger again and Drinkwater fell to the floor, shot through the chest.

Krug Post Offer Gets Lewis 'No' in 300 Harsh Words

John L. Lewis used 300 uncomplimentary words yesterday to reject a request by his arch foe, Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug, that he serve as adviser on bituminous coal problems.

The United Mine Workers' boss, who has been feuding with Krug since the Goverment forced him to call off last spring's coal strike, wrote the Secretary that he could "conceive of nothing more anemic or futile than . . . attempting to give private advice to you."

"You have previously demonstrated your total lack of ability to comprehend the problems of the coal industry, as well as your complete lack of concern for its requirements," he observed.

Furthermore, he said, the national coadvisory council that Krug proposed was similar to that set up to advise on oil problems.

"It is to be fervently hoped," he added, "that the consumers of coal will be spared the present unhappy fate of the consumers of oil."

Eligibility To Bargain

The Taft-Hartley Act, foolishly in our opinion, says that unions are ineligible to receive the protection of the National Labor Relations Board unless their officers sign non-Communist affidavits. The act does not say, however, that such unions are ineligible to bargain with employers. For a great many years, thousands of unions have represented their members in relations with employers and have negotiated mutually satisfactory contracts without any recourse or reference whatever to the NLRB. It is all to the good that at last one Federal official, Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach, has pointed out this obvious fact. Testifying on Tuesday before a House Education and Labor Subcommittee, he made it clear that in the GSI cafeteria dispute, the sole barrier to orderly collective bargaining is the management's refusal to bargain.

For having said this and for having, very sensibly, closed the Labor Department cafeteria to spare it the embarrassment of being picketed, Mr. Schwellenbach was accused by Representative Clare Hoffman of taking "a CIO stand" in the strike. The bent of Mr. Hoffman's own bias—and the bias of his subcommittee colleagues—was amply evidenced by the line of questioning addressed to the Secretary and by the abusively irrelevant queries flung at Undersecretary of the Interior Chapman. In the view of the subcommittee, apparently, any official who does not actively abet union-busting is pro-CIO. Given the prevalence of this view, there is precious little the Secretary of Labor can do to bring about a peaceful settlement of the GSI dispute. But it seems rather absurd to condemn him for trying to make peace.

Dollar Hoards

Mr. Hoover echoes Senator Lodge in thinking that a way should be found to compel wealthy Europeans who have invested their money in dollar securities to contribute to support of the Marshall Plan. When the Senator toured France last summer he was shocked at the sight of Frenchmen living in luxury on their dollar hoards while most of their countrymen were struggling to obtain the bare necessities of life. Moreover, he considers it "stark injustice" to tax Americans in order to finance the Marshall Plan while permitting wealthy European beneficiaries of the plan to go scot free.

While sharing Mr. Lodge's indignation at the sight of heedless extravagance in the midst of dire poverty we trust Congress will turn a deaf ear to any demand for forced liquidation of European-held investments in American enterprises. The British liquidated a considerable proportion of the assets belonging to their nationals during the war in order to acquire dollars with which to purchase materials for carrying on the war. As a result of that liquidation returns from overseas investments have been severely cut, thus depriving Britain of interest on dollar investments that would have helped to finance her postwar purchases in this country. The net effect has been to increase the dependence of Britain on American aid.

If we were to force liquidation of foreign-owned American assets as a condition of obtaining Marshall Plan funds, presumably the British government would be called upon to dispose of the remainder of the American holdings of her citizens, as would France and other participating countries. Such action would provide funds for immediate use, but in the long run would cut off perennial sources of dollar earnings that enable those countries to finance imports of goods. The policy would not only be unwise for economic reasons, it would be certain to arouse opposition to acceptance of the Marshall Plan among groups whose cooperation is sorely needed to insure its success.

Testifying this week before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, Secretary Snyder said he doubted very much that it "would be wise policy for the United States to require European countries as a general rule to liquidate the property owned in the United States by their nationals as a condition for receiving aid from this Government." He explained that some holdings would be difficult to liquidate, some assets are already pledged for loans, and in any case the proceeds of liquidation would cover only a small part of the cost of the Marshall Plan. And without these investments the balance of payments situation of the participating countries would go from bad to worse. If foreign governments wish to liquidate some of these holdings in order to pay for imports, that, of course, is another matter. In that case the United States might be called upon to help them to obtain control of assets belonging to their nationals. That raises an important question of policy on which Secretary Snyder expresses no opinion.

Gifts Vs. Loans

Former President Hoover urges Congress to insist upon a hard-and-fast line of distinction between Marshall Plan gifts and loans. He thinks that nonrepayable advances or gifts should be made only for purchases of consumption goods such as food, coal, fertilizers and cotton by countries unable to pay for them. All other Marshall Plan aid, in his opinion, should take the form of loans to be repaid from the increased output made possible by the steel and other capital goods to be furnished under the plan. Mr. Hoover is also opposed to the use of American funds to finance purchases of the Marshall Plan countries from Canada, Argentina and other Western Hemisphere countries. These countries, he says, should provide the credits required by the 16 Marshall Plan countries to finance purchases of their surpluses.

Mr. Hoover's proposal would so alter the character of the Marshall Plan as to defeat its purpose of hastening European economic recovery. For apart from gifts to needy countries of food, fuel and a few other commodities which, Mr. Hoover estimates, might amount to three billion dollars in the next 15 months, countries seeking our help could obtain it only by incurring debts that would force them to increase their exports simply to meet the interest charges on such debts. In some cases, it will, of course, be possible and desirable to make advances in the form of loans to countries that are only temporarily handicapped by shortages of capital goods and can reasonably expect in the near future to provide for their own needs and in addition export goods in quantities sufficient to pay for necessary imports and service debt charges. But, in other cases, the task of reconstruction will take a long time, even with our help, and most of what is produced will or should be used to expand domestic industries and revive domestic agriculture. Surpluses available for export will be small and will be needed to pay for essential imports. Countries in that position would be seriously handicapped in their effort to get ahead if forced to increase exports prematurely in order to earn dollars for repayment of debts.

The Harriman Committee decisively rejected the proposal indorsed by Mr. Hoover for setting up distinctions between grants-in-aid and credits on a commodity basis. It pointed out in its report that some countries would be able to pay for all their requirements, including food, whereas other countries would find it "less easy to repay even their loans for capital equipment." Consequently the committee recommended that the agency administering the plan should have the power to deny grants-in-aid status to relief goods. For the same reason it should be left to the administrative agency to decide whether Marshall Plan funds used to purchase machines and other capital equipment should in any given instance be an outright gift or a loan.

John J. McCloy, president of the International Bank, is on record in favor of reliance in the main on grants instead of loans. He says: "Financing in the amounts now needed, if provided primarily in the form of loans, would impose an intolerable burden on many of the participating nations and would create a very difficult transfer problem . . . Further, the giving of grants will speed the time when private financing can take over the field. If Europe is choked with loans there will never be any prospect that private financing will resume." Mr. Hoover not only ignores the transfer problems that would arise if European countries were loaded down with Marshall Plan debts, but he forgets that the countries of the Western Hemisphere that he calls upon to extend large credits to Europe are already seriously handicapped by the inability of their European customers to pay them in dollars. As a result, the amount of aid they can give Europe is strictly limited, because of conditions beyond their control.

After the First World War the United States made the mistake of trying to hasten European recovery by means of an excessive volume of loans. Those were private loans granted without proper supervision over their use. In that respect the Marshall Plan, is different, since the uses to which projected loans are to be put will be subject to control. However, the collapse of that first postwar rehabilitation program was largely due to the heavy burden of debt charges resulting from reliance on foreign credits. The frantic efforts of debtor countries to push exports in order to earn dollars to meet those charges led to financial collapse, followed by the disorders of the thirties that culminated in a Second World War. Mr. Hoover of all people should appreciate the dangers of again relying heavily on foreign loans to restore a Europe that is infinitely weaker than the Europe of the 1920s.

Alien Land Law

The effect of the Supreme Court's decision in the Oyama case is to forbid California to take a small farm away from an American citizen of Japanese origin under its alien land law. With that outcome we suspect that the great majority of citizens, at least those who are genuinely devoted to constitutional democracy, will agree. Yet it is difficult to imagine a more unsatisfactory decision being handed down by the highest court in the land.

In the first place, there was not one opinion in this case or even a clear-cut division between a majority and a minority of the court. Instead, five opinions came down, with not more than two justices adhering to any one of them. Chief Justice Vinson spoke for the court with the wholehearted approval of only Justice Frankfurter. Justices Black and Douglas concurred together; so did Justices Murphy and Rutledge in a separate opinion. Justices Reed and Burton dissented together and Justice Jackson dissented alone. The logic of the Chief Justice's conclusion seemed to a majority of his brethren to call for a flat outlawing of the alien land law as an encroachment upon constitutional rights. But no majority could be obtained for such a ruling. The court stopped at a halfway mark that seems to be no mark at all because of its obscurity. Consequently, no one can say with any degree of certainty what the law is on this subject.

The court refused to let California apply its alien land law in this case because it would have deprived Fred Oyama of the equal protection of the law guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment and encroach upon his privileges as an American citizen. It refused to say, however, whether California may prevent Oyama's father, a Japanese ineligible for citizenship, from owning land. The elder Oyama had bought land in the name of his son and worked it as his son's guardian. An arrangement of this sort is legal if entered into in good faith, but California claimed that in this case it was an evasion of her alien land law. In rejecting this contention the court took only the shaky ground that the State had saddled Oyama with "an onerous burden of proof which need not be borne by California children generally."

The dissenters pointed out in vain that this "onerous burden of proof" rested alone on Japanese minors owning land in California because of the prohibition against land ownership by Japanese aliens in California. Certainly this comes closer to recognizing the root of the evil. But California has merely taken advantage of the Federal legislation which singles out a few peoples and forbids them to become citizens. So long as that legislation remains on the books it may be regarded as an invitation to the States to write discriminatory laws. We think there is a good case for outlawing the alien land laws by action of the Supreme Court. The Fourteenth Amendment forbids each State to deny equal protection to "any person (not merely any citizen) within its jurisdiction." But the case would certainly be stronger if Congress itself were to eliminate discrimination from the naturalization and immigration laws. After all, the Fourteenth Amendment gives Congress a specific obligation to enforce its provisions by "appropriate legislation."

Plugging The Leaks

In seeking a means to halt the leakage of information vital to the national security, Defense Secretary Forrestal must compromise between two dangers. One obviously is the harm that can be done if through indiscretion important data in the realm of military research and technical progress continue to be made available to potential enemies. It should be obvious that seemingly inconsequential bits of information often can be pieced together to give the whole direction and pattern of American endeavors. The danger on the other side is that the corrective will be more extreme than necessary—that it will go beyond the real requirements of security and perhaps muzzle information which the public should have and on which basic scientific advance depends.

The key to the compromise is in promoting confidence on the part of the media with which the military must deal that the restrictions are justified in each instance. It goes without saying that in order to promote this confidence there must be some house cleaning in the military services. Lack of coordination and individual jealousies must be overcome in adherence to uniform security rules. Moreover, the public must be assured that a continuous effort is being made to declassify material no longer bearing on security. Above all, there must be no suspicion that security is being invoked to cover ineptness.

Beyond this the job is basically one for information media themselves. Assuming a conscientious desire of these media to avoid disclosure of harmful material, the problem is to make readily available facilities for advising what information is harmful and what is not harmful. In this connection Secretary Forrestal, it is reported, now intends to call a conference of press, radio and movie executives to determine, after acquaintance with the facts, what subjects should be kept secret. The logical outgrowth of this effort would be the establishment of a civilian advisory board within the military establishment to which inquiries would be submitted at all times. This would avoid both the drawbacks of additional legislation and the antagonism created by formal censorship. It would leave the ultimate responsibility where it belongs, with the individual publications themselves.

In the last analysis, there is no such thing as an inherent right to information essential to the national defense. The need for an area of secrecy has been recognized from the first days of the Republic. It is recognized today in such matters as atomic energy—on which, incidentally, a press advisory board similar to that proposed for the military establishment is now functioning. This same concept of security must be extended to cover other elements of defense to which breaches of information, accidental or otherwise, have already constituted a threat. The very existence of a free society depends on self-restraint. In this case the consequences of irresponsibility are frightening.

Fairmac's Reasoning

For many weeks the Fairmac Corp. flatly refused to bargain collectively with its employes. About 10 days ago, the corporation announced for the first time that "with due regard for the safety of the 15,000 Fairlington residents and workers," it "cannot do business" with the AFL union representing its employes because it does "not intend now or at any time to turn over the operations of Fairlington to a group which seems to be dominated by foreign-inspired philosophies." The corporation replied to the plea of the Catholic priest of Fairlington, that it sit down with the union to adjust their differences, by characterizing the pastor's rebuke as an "amazing defense of Communist practices."

I am reliably informed that the union's international officers have signed the so-called non-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley Act, although in this particular case the signing is of no moment since in any event the National Labor Relations Board lacks jurisdiction.

Whence, then, comes the charge that the union is communistic? A day or so before the corporation initially assumed its "patriotic" position, a clerical employe of the union, holding no office of any kind in the union, became involved in a fracas during the course of the picketing, and charges and countercharges were brought in Criminal Court in Alexandria. The clerk's adversary was represented by the son of the presiding judge. Examination of the clerk by his honor's offspring—over the objection of the Commonwealth attorney—disclosed that the clerk had at one time been a member of the Communist Party.

I am inclined to think that the corporation is turning a wholly irrelevant circumstance to its use by a process of reasoning so tortuous that in happier times the emotional appeal it may now engender would be laughed down for the absurdity it is. Through what is doubtless a cloud on my brain, I perceive a purpose to mislead the public so that it will mistake for patriotism the sickening spectacle of an employer's flagitious determination to flout elementary principles of democracy and the basic human rights.

Clegg Case

As a mere citizen of an "unaroused" community, I would not criticize you for paying the legal fees of one of your employes. How then, could you expect anyone to criticize Chief Barrett for protecting those who work for him?

Prevention of crime is the first obligation our police force owes you and me. Why do you insist on hampering them? I was charged in a Hyattsville, Md., court, years ago, with an unjust traffic charge and paid an unreasonable fine; yet I am not going to condemn general police work on account of that. Criminals are "slick workers," does it offend you if our police employ "slick methods" to combat them? Arrests for "investigation" have prevented more crime, and apprehended more vicious criminals, than anything I can think of. If an occasional citizen is held unjustly, that is too bad, but it could never outweigh the good that has come from this phase of police work.

G. A. FISHER.

Major Barrett and company have been unsportsmanlike enough to flounce Mr. Clegg's personal life about, which, it seems to me, has no tangible bearing upon the case itself. This isn't all. Our own Washington Post, the most liberal paper in the entire city, has become the object of a most insidious, vile, decidedly stupid attack by the police; an all too obvious attempt, through gestapo methods, to muzzle "freedom of the press." My hearty congratulations go to the entire staff of The Washington Post for their splendid coverage and expose of the disorganized state of the Metropolitan Police Department. Many more thanks are due you for your editorial of January 16, "Intimidation: 1948 Style," a job more than well done.

White House Balcony

The President has decided to go ahead with the $15,000 construction of a balcony on the south wing of the White House despite the opposition of the Fine Arts Commission and the protests of many citizens' associations. Determination may be a good trait but many veterans would like to see the focus of that determination brought to bear upon better housing.

Since the resident of the White House is a temporary occupant, the dictates of good taste would suggest that Mr. Truman wait until after the November election and then, if reelected, refer the matter of suggested change to Congress. There are several men who are perfectly willing to move into the White House just as it is.

Permit Red Tape

The real estate section of The Washington Post of January 18 contained a list of the do's and don'ts in regard to getting a permit for alterations and changes within a home. Perhaps no department of city government proves so vexatious to the home owner as inspection and its subsection, permits. The city asserts its right to tell the individual citizen what he may install or change within his home, or on his grounds, primarily because of the danger to safety within that home, to future occupants of that home, or to surrounding homes. No one objects to the principle.

In practice, however, a man wishing to add to or improve his dwelling, upon arriving at the permit office, immediately is viewed with suspicion and made to feel as if he is in the prisoner's dock in a foreign country, where he is presumed guilty unless he can prove himself innocent. Ask for somebody. Does he know anyone here? If he doesn't, he may as well forget it. If he does, has he got a plan? Come back with blueprints. Then start arguing. First, does it comply with zoning requirements? Here's a book; study up on it. Is there plumbing or electrical work involved? He wants to do it himself? Where's his plumbing license—also his union card.

Suppose you want to build a fence around your property, bought some 5-foot fencing, and a policeman told you you had to get a permit. Oh, you can only built a 4-foot fence, so you have to bury a foot of it. If you add to your house, better watch those lot lines, or you'll have to saw something off. Yes, it's a headache.

ATC-NATS Consolidation

In answer to the charge of inefficiency in the Air Transport Command made in a letter by "E. P. Unum," published January 18, it must be considered that NATS is strictly an organization for the movement, by air, of cargo and personnel from point to point, whereas the Air Transport Command embraces a whole group or family of services such as the Air Transport Service, the Airways and Air Communications Service (AACS), the Air Weather Service, the Air Rescue Service and Flight Service.

The Air Transport Service performs for the Air Force the function which the Naval Air Transport Service performs for the Navy.

The AACS mans a vast global network of electronic and radar aids to aerial navigation (some used by NATS!); a far-flung high speed teletype and radio service to relay information about the movements of military aircraft (and civil too); control towers at airports over the globe; cryptographic services and a message service for the entire Air Force.

The Air Weather Service provides global weather service for the Air Force, the Ground Force, the Navy and United States and foreign commercial carriers. It secures much of the weather data used by our own United States Weather Bureau.

The Air Rescue Service operates an integrated rescue service for aircraft and sea vessels in distress. In this, it cooperates fully with the Coast Guard, frequently taking orders and instructions from the Coast Guard in the accomplishment of a joint rescue mission.

Flight Service obtains and maintains information on weather, field and flight conditions throughout the United States. It disseminates (through AACS facilities) advance warning flight plans on the movement of all military aircraft.

All this, the Air Transport Command does. Let us see if the comparison in efficiency is then so disadvantageous. For instance, one subordinate service of ATC, the largest, AASC, numbers about 13,000 highly trained technicians providing service to Air Force, Navy, foreign military aviation and commercial airlines.

This is one reason why the personnel figures of the Air Transport Command may compare unfavorably with those of the Naval Air Transport Service.

I can understand the objections of "E. P. Unum." It is a bitter thing to lose identity, to see an organization with a shining record be parceled among the Medes and Persians, and to swallow the bitter pill of subjugation.

But this went on, and goes on within the Air Force, too. My own outfit, AACS, was proud and efficient, numbering about 50,000. It was independent, a service to the entire Allied armed effort. It was a military CAA on a scale never before seen. Its story can be read in a book recently published by Louis Shores, Highways in the Sky.

Now we are relatively small, though still larger than NATS. We were gobbled by the Air Transport Command in the interests of efficiency. There was a deal of bitterness for a time, because these consolidations always reduce the opportunity for the top dogs to get themselves promoted.

But these things pass quickly in the resulting extension of activity and increased efficiency. Though I am not a regular soldier, the so-called "gobbledygook" of my swivel chair Air Force staff-carriers and eagle-wearers does not sound like the ranting of self-anointed prophets. It sounds like the calm execution of a necessary plan designed not for self-aggrandizement but for the safety of this Nation. The Air Force boys are sweating too hard over really knotty problems even to have nests to feather.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

CAB Chairmanship

HERE IS a piece of family arithmetic. It is the real case of Mr. A., who came to Washington to a fairly important Government job, with some responsibility for shaping policy, at $10,000 a year.

After taking a pretty severe kicking around from Congress, from eager beavers in his own department and from a part of the press, Mr. A got out. In the relaxed mood that followed, enjoying his first real vacation in a long time, Mr. A tried to figure out what his venture into the Government had cost him.

Roughly it came to $80,000 a year, figured out as follows: No. 1. An outright cut in salary from $60,000 to $10,000. No. 2. The cost of maintaining a home in Washington in addition to the established family residence where the children were in school—$20,000. The balance of the loss was made up by the fact that, as a Government official with no active connection with his several businesses, he could no longer deduct certain expenses, directly and indirectly related to business operation, from his income for tax purposes.

Now, obviously, Mr. A is a wealthy man—self-made, it happens. This is not to enlist sympathy for Mr. A, nor was he seeking sympathy. In fact, he probably would have stayed on in the Government if so many axes had not been whetted for him.

But this case does illustrate, it seems to me, the penalty that a Washington job exacts. While Mr. A. could have lived for a lot less than $20,000 a year in Washington, as a responsible official he could not hide out in a small bedroom. The kind of sacrifice made by a man on a lower-income level may be ever greater, since it may mean giving up a private job to come to Washington with no assurance that he will be able to get the job back.

THE PRESIDENT has been criticized for putting military men in civilian positions. The latest case in the headlines is that of Air Force Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, who has now been turned down a second time by a Senate committee for the post of chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. Criticism of that appointment appeared in this column.

Yet this should be seen from the President's side of the desk. Here is the history of how Kuter was nominated.

For several reasons it was decided not to reappoint Chairman James M. Landis. After this decision was reached a list of names of possible candidates was prepared.

This list was carefully studied. Most of the names were crossed off for one or the other of two reasons. The men who would have qualified as disinterested administrators had no background in aviation. It would have taken them three to six months to learn the job at a time when action was urgent. On the other hand, those with an aviation background had connections that seemed to disqualify them.

After much combing over, several men seemed to have the proper qualifications and no serious disqualifications. Four of these qualifiers—all civilians—were sounded out. They all declined to consider the job. They gave salary as one reason. They gave abuse by Congress and the aviation industry as another reason.

WHEN THE act creating the Civil Aeronautics Board was passed in 1938, the salary of board members was fixed at $12,000. But Congress has persistently refused to make more than $10,000 a year available, thus cutting what was already a small enough salary for a man with the capacities that such a position implies. In the aviation industry he would get not less than $25,000 a year.

In the face of four rejections by civilians, the President felt he had no alternative but to turn to a capable soldier-flier who would accept orders. Because he felt he could not ask Kuter to sacrifice his military status, with flying pay, etc., the President asked Congress to pass a special law exempting him.

It has been argued, and with some merit, that "sounding out" is not the way to get men to come to Washington. But Mr Truman has tried the personal "command" and he has been turned down, which is not a pleasant experience for the President of the United States.

Before in history the military man has seemed to be the only way out or at any rate the easy way out. The fumbling Roman Senate turned to strong military men in the days of the decline and fall. It is an ominous sign.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, with still another resignation, is on the point of breakdown. That should be a cause of genuine concern to the airlines, since public confidence is involved.

Chest Solicitation

The manner in which funds for the Community Chest are solicited from the workers in various companies and the Government is to me by far the Chest's greatest disadvantage.

One is not only asked and expected to give but is now in many cases forced into it against his will. If a person does not contribute, he is asked again and again, and, as in my case, finally summoned in to see the chief, who lectures him about his obligations.

The idea seems to be that the top man will receive a black mark against them if they can't point to satisfactory contributions. Also this year I have been informed of cases where an individual's pay has been involuntarily withheld as a Chest contribution. As far as I'm concerned this is going too far for the sake of charity.

Civil Aviation

A Communication

THE RECOMMENDATIONS of the President's Air Policy Commission propose another change in the governmental organization affecting civil aviation.

Periodically, it seems, there is an urge for change; the subject is almost constantly agitated and frequent changes actually have been made. One wonders when things will stay put: perhaps time and controversy spent upon organizational questions might more profitably be devoted to the substance of aviation's problems.

The organization today is this:

The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) is a five-man independent agency which is vested with the powers of economic and safety regulation, and of accident investigation. It is "in" the Department of Commerce only for housekeeping purposes.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA), headed by an administrator, constructs and operates the airways and enforces and administers the safety regulations adopted by the board. It also has the general function of promoting and encouraging the development of civil aviation. This administration is completely in the Department of Commerce, with an Assistant Secretary between the administrator and the Secretary of Commerce.

THE PRESIDENT'S Air Policy Commission would change the name of the CAA to Department of Civil Aviation, headed by a secretary (instead of an administrator), directly under the Secretary of Commerce. Aside from the rather imposing changes in nomenclature, all that this really means is the elimination of the Assistant Secretary between the Secretary of Commerce and the present CAA.

The President's commission would also transfer from the CAB to the new "department" (i. e., the present CAA) the function of determining the safety regulations so that safety regulations would be adopted, administered and enforced by the same people.

It would also take the function of accident investigation away from the CAB and vest it in a newly created, independent, three-man Air Safety Board which, like the CAB, would be "in" the Department of Commerce only for housekeeping purposes.

A BIT of history may give perspective.

In the Air Commerce Act of 1926 Congress first provided for aviation safety regulation and Federal airways operation. The Department of Commerce was given the job, with an Assistant Secretary exclusively concerned with aviation matters. In the economy wave of 1933 the President, by executive order, provided that the Assistant Secretary should no longer be exclusively concerned with aviation so that his functions could be consolidated with others in the Department of Commerce.

Until 1934 the Postoffice Department exercised such functions of economic regulation as the Government undertook. In 1934 such functions, somewhat elaborated, were placed in the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In 1935 the Federal Aviation Commission, provided for by Congress to study aviation matters, recommended that a new and independent commission be created to handle all regulation of civil aviation. The President opposed such a new commission, advocating that, until an over-all transportation agency was created, economic regulation of civil aviation continue in the ICC.

Early in 1938 a committee of several of the executive departments advocated the creation of a new and separate agency to handle all the economic regulation of civil aviation and all the safety, operational and promotional work theretofore handled by the Department of Commerce. This agency would be independent with respect to matters "subject to review by courts of law" but otherwise would be subject to "the general direction of the President." This was a somewhat vague distinction.

THE FOREGOING recommendation was not adopted by Congress. Instead, in the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938 it set up a new Civil Aeronautics Authority entirely separate from the Department of Commerce and transferred to it the functions of regulation theretofore exercised by that department and by the ICC, giving it in addition certain new regulatory powers. This authority was a five-man independent agency. The act also created an administrator of Civil Aeronautics independent of the Department of Commerce, but subject to presidential direction, who would construct and operate the airways, enforce and administer the authority's safety regulations, and exercise general powers of promoting civil aviation. An independent three-man Air Safety Board was also created to investigate accidents.

This setup lasted for two years. Then the President reorganized it. He abolished the Air Safety Board and transferred its functions to the five-man Civil Aeronautics Authority, thereafter to be called the Civil Aeronautics Board. This board was put "in" the Department of Commerce but only for housekeeping purposes. Aeronautics Administration was established under the former administrator of Civil Aeronautics and was moved completely into the Department of Commerce under an Assistant Secretary.

Thus matters stand today.

AT LEAST since 1933, conflict between the Executive and considerable bodies of opinion in Congress has been manifest with respect to these organizational changes. To speak very generally the Executive has tended to emphasize the importance of presidential control over civil aviation matters not involving strictly quasi-judicial or quasi-legislative regulatory functions, whereas Congress has emphasized the importance of maintaining independence in the exercise of those regulatory functions. These differences in emphasis have led to important differences in views as to where certain detailed functions should be reposed. Some of the apparent confusion in what has been done is undoubtedly attributable to efforts to compromise these differences.

Confusion has also been caused by some unfortunate nomenclature—as well as by the very frequency of change.

WITH ALL that has gone before, it is difficult to wax enthusiastic about still another change.

The most recent proposal is not as extensive as would appear at first blush. About all that it would do would be to restore the situation as it existed prior to 1933 with the following three exceptions:

1. Instead of having a Bureau of Air Commerce in the Department of Commerce headed by an Assistant Secretary for Aeronautics, there would be a Department of Civil Aviation headed by a secretary, but subject to the Secretary of Commerce—and through him the President—exactly as was the old bureau.

2. Instead of having accident investigation carried out by an agency under the Executive, it would be done by an independent board only nominally "in" the Department of Commerce.

3. Instead of having economic regulation under the Executive, as was the fragmentary regulation before 1934, it would be done by an independent board only nominally "in" the Department of Commerce.

THE PROPOSAL presents these issues:

Will the elimination of an Assistant Secretary between the Secretary of Commerce and the administrator and the CAA, and calling the CAA a "department" and making the administrator a "Secretary," add to the dignity of an agency handling civil aviation? It is difficult to see how changes in names can mean much—but the elimination of the Assistant Secretary's interposition might be desirable.

Is there need for a separate and independent agency of Government to handle accident investigation? This question has always been highly debatable—in part due, perhaps, to the confusing implications of calling such an agency an "Air Safety Board" when it does not in any way regulate air safety, instead of calling it an "Accident Investigation Board."

Is it wise to transfer from the independent CAB the quasi-legislative function of adopting safety regulations and to give that function to an executive agency also charged with administration and enforcement? The President's commission rightly says that such a move would greatly lighten the very heavy load of work now pressing the CAB and enable it to concentrate on the vital economic questions which face it. Others might say that economics and safety are too intimately bound together—at least so far as the airlines are concerned—to make such a divorce feasible or desirable.

Finally, as long as changes are recommended, why not make the CAB independent of the Commerce Department even for housekeeping purposes? It is very doubtful that the department's housekeeping for the CAB has been particularly efficient or economical.

In any event—whatever is done—it may be suggested quite seriously that the importance of organizational tinkering is probably overemphasized, that civil aviation has probably already been subjected to too much of it, and that the truly important thing is to provide the men and money to do a good job. There is plenty of evidence that staffs and funds have been inadequate. The commission's report makes that quite clear.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Eisenhower Candidacy

THE PORTLY MEMBERS of the Republican National Committee are retreating from Washington, leaving behind only the echo of their oaths "not to let it happen again in 1948." They remember with distaste how an uprising of the party's rank and file snatched the Republication nomination for Wendell Willkie in 1940. If the great majority of these organization leaders have their way at the oncoming convention, the rank and file are not to be permitted to do the same thing again for General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower.

This is the chief impression left behind by the Republican National Committee meeting—that the masters of the party organization mean to name a candidate as close to being a 100 per cent Old Guard, organization man as they dare to offer to the voters.

Probably the majority of them would privately prefer Senator Robert A. Taft, but a good many seem to lack the courage to back their private preference. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey obviously shares with Taft by far the strongest pledge support, yet the organizations find him a trifle too brisk, up-to-date and domineering. Equally obviously, the field is therefore open for other candidates: Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, if he wants it; or Gov. Earl Warren of California, perhaps. The important thing is that in choosing their entry the party leaders want no one who is new to the game and to them.

At the same time, the party chieftains recognize the explosive possibilities of the Eisenhower candidacy. They could not do otherwise, since it was ticking away in their midst with every indication of being a time bomb. On the whole, it is the oddest political phenomenon seen in recent American political history, surpassing in strangeness at least the great 1940 putsch for Willkie. It deserves to be better understood.

IN THE first place, a queer chapter of accidents has placed the Eisenhower candidacy on an entirely new footing. Some time ago, a small group of prosperous young New Yorkers organized the National Draft Eisenhower League. Its leader, Stuart Scheftel, who has magazine and other interests, has run for Congress in the past, but even Scheftel is fairly new to politics, and the other members of the group, like Senator Henry Cabot Lodge's brother-in-law, Henry Sears, have almost no political experience whatever. To this group Senator Charles Tobey of New Hampshire, in the eyes of the party organization one of the most eccentric Republican politicians, also attached himself.

A little later, Senator Tobey urgently proposed that the Draft Eisenhower League enter General Eisenhower's name in the New Hampshire primary. Scheftel and the others wisely hesitated. Scheftel was already engaged in getting Eisenhower's name withdrawn from the primary in Oregon, which he has now succeeded in doing. Tobey argued, however, that if a good slate of Eisenhower delegates were not offered, men without real standing would put themselves forward as a political speculation. On this basis, the Draft Eisenhower League announced that it would sponsor an official slate of delegates in New Hampshire.

UNTIL THIS moment, General Eisenhower had every right to expect that his expressed desire to keep out of politics should be taken absolutely literally. His first impulse, when the New Hampshire news broke, was apparently to issue a statement on the famous Sherman pattern. Word that he would do so was passed out by men very close to him. His associates in the Army are known to have taken the position that he ought to speak out. But at the last moment, the general seems to have changed his mind. The anticipated request for withdrawal of the New Hampshire delegates was not forthcoming. Justly or unjustly, this has left the impression that General Eisenhower must now be presumed to be willing to accept a draft unless he states the contrary.

On top of this sequence of events have now come the repeated polls showing General Eisenhower to be by far the strongest Republican candidate. The result is a condition of confusion hardly to be surpassed.

Nor is this meaningless confusion. If Eisenhower should win in New Hampshire, he could do very great harm to the other candidates, and especially to Governor Dewey, who has also entered the primary there.

In this confusion, only one point is clear. Whatever the rank and file may want, and whatever may be the outcome in New Hampshire, the Eisenhower candidacy cannot succeed if it does not include a professional job of rounding up delegates for the convention. Meanwhile, it must be added that the reactions of the Republican leaders constitute a curious commentary on the failure of the party organization to keep up with the political times. Next to the Eisenhower candidacy, the candidacy of Henry A. Wallace was their favorite subject of discussion. And this was so because they were greatly hoping Wallace's candidacy would enable them to elect the kind of Republican that the country, by all signs, positively does not want.

The Gallup Poll

Labor Favors Eisenhower, One in 10 Supports Wallace

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 22.—Labor union members pick President Truman in preference to either Gov. Thomas E. Dewey or Senator Robert A. Taft as their choice President in 1948. But in a poll "trial heat" against Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the President runs second to Eisenhower among union members at the present time.

Henry A. Wallace receives the involved but also because both the support of approximately one labor union member in 10 in the poll.

The candidate preferences of union labor have a vital bearing on the election not only because of the substantial number of votes CIO and AFL are planning to take an extremely active part in the 1948 campaign.

The Institute tested the present-day sentiment of union members by asking a cross-section how they would vote if three-cornered races were being held today involving Truman-Dewey-Wallace, Truman-Eisenhower-Wallace and Truman-Taft-Wallace.

Here are the findings:

Truman-Dewey-Wallace

Truman	45%
Dewey	35
Wallace	10
No opinion	10

Truman-Eisenhower-Wallace

Truman	37%
Eisenhower	46
Wallace	8
No opinion	9

Truman-Taft-Wallace

Truman	53%
Taft	23
Wallace	11
No opinion	13

Organized labor's prime interest in the 1948 race is said to be the defeat of members of Congress who supported the Taft-Hartley act to regulate labor unions. In view of the opposition of labor leaders to the act, the comparatively low support for Senator Taft in the trial heat is not surprising.

The fact that General Eisenhower outpolls President Truman among union members may, however, come as a surprise to some political observers. In analyzing the poll vote it should be borne in mind that the general is not associated in most voters' minds with partisan matters. Eisenhower's percentage is perhaps a good deal higher than it might be if he were nominated, because as a Republican candidate he would have to take some of the slings and arrows of union leaders for the GOP record in Congress on union legislation. At present because his views on labor and on general political matters are largely unknown, the unions have no particular criticism to offer him.

Political Box Score

Shortly after Henry A. Wallace announced his candidacy for President on a third-party ticket, the Institute began a Nation-wide survey of political sentiment. In addition to the labor union vote reported in an adjoining column, the findings to date have been:

NATIONAL VOTE

1. Truman 46 per cent, Dewey 41 per cent, Wallace 7 per cent, no opinion 6 per cent.

2. Truman 40 per cent, Eisenhower 47 per cent, Wallace 6 per cent, no opinion 7 per cent.

3. Truman 51 per cent, Taft 31 per cent, Wallace 8 per cent, no opinion 10 per cent.

OUTSIDE THE SOUTH

The poll showed Dewey leading outside the Southern States as follows: Truman 41 per cent, Dewey 44 per cent, Wallace 8 per cent, no opinion 7 per cent.

NEW YORK

Wallace's candidacy may deal a serious blow to Democratic chances of carrying New York State. Poll results for that key State were:

1. Truman 38½ per cent, Dewey 41½ per cent, Wallace 14 per cent, no opinion 6 per cent.

2. Truman 29 per cent, Eisenhower 52 per cent, Wallace 12 per cent, no opinion 7 per cent.

3. Truman 42 per cent, Taft 32 per cent, Wallace 16 per cent, no opinion 10 per cent.

Treasury Plans To Protect Bond Prices at Par

Secretary Snyder said yesterday the Treasury has "no intention of letting the prices of Government bonds go below par.

He said the drop in prices of Government bonds sold on the market—which Snyder stressed are entirely distinct from Government savings bonds—resulted from cooperative action of the Federal Reserve System and the Treasury to "tighten up on inflationary pressures."

The action, begun Christmas Eve, consisted of lowering prices for which the Federal Reserve System buys the bonds. The drop did not carry prices down to par, but there has been much speculation on whether fiscal authorities would let them go below par later.

Snyder told reporters the action had been approved by "the bankers." He said they "complimented us for taking a courageous step" in letting bond prices go down thereby lifting the interest yield.

Snyder in turn praised the voluntary program of the American Bankers Association to restrain bank lending that might add to inflationary pressures. He said it "looks like a very aggressive program."

Presidential War Powers Held Essential

By Elton C. Fay
Associated Press Reporter

Can the President send the armed forces into a "preventive attack" on an aggressor poised to atom bomb United States cities, or must he wait for Congress to declare war?

Col. Louis E. Coira of the Air Force operations division asserted yesterday the President has the constitutional right in such a case to go ahead on his own.

And in times like these a President "must be prepared to accept the responsibility for issuing the order," Coira contended in an article written for the Air University Quarterly Review.

To back up his argument that a President need not wait for Congress before dispatching emergency forces against another nation, Coira:

1. Cited William Whiting, author of the book "War Powers Under the Constitution," as saying "the chief object of a declaration of war is to give notice thereof to neutrals, in order to fix their rights and liabilities to the hostile powers."

2. Declared the basis for the President to order a preventative attack "exists in constitutional law as evolved by usage of presidential decision."

Coira pointed to President Polk's order in 1846 sending troops into territory in dispute with Mexico; McKinley's dispatch of the battleship Maine to Havana Harbor; the occupation of Vera Cruz in 1913 by orders of President Wilson and the entrance of American troops in Siberia against Bolshevist forces in 1918. He wrote that "the years during which Franklin D. Roosevelt occupied the Presidency saw no major change in constitutional interpretation regarding authority to commit the armed forces."

The Air Force writer said this Nation must be especially alert because of "the deplorable condition of our traditional allies "at a time when we are confronted with resurgent and aggressive nations."

The Air University Quarterly Review is the publication of the Air Command and Staff School at Maxwell Field, Ala., from which Coira recently graduated.

Air Force officials said the opinions the colonel expressed were his own, and not necessarily those of the Air Force.

Government Without Ethics

A Private Citizen Challenges the Rise of a Potential Dictatorship in the U. S.

The recent arbitrary and discriminatory action of the Federal Government through Secretary of Agriculture Anderson in rationing grain to the distillers smacks strongly of police-state control methods. Worse than that, it shows absolute disregard for the integrity of government itself.

When the distillers voluntarily agreed to shut down production of alcohol for a 60 day period, they were promised that "no effort will be made to extend the shut-down."

Then Secretary Anderson, using Section 4B of the Taft Anti-Inflation Law, disregarded the Government's promise—dictatorially interpreted the law as being retroactive—and arbitrarily forced a discriminatory and unfair ration system on the distillers.

The stated purpose of the Government was to save wheat—but a statistical analysis of the distilling industry's wheat consumption makes this stated purpose ridiculous.

The actual purpose would appear to be a combination of politics and an effort to achieve some form of prohibition through subterfuge.

There is nothing new in the tactics adopted. Dictators have used them for years—first to make a promise and later to break it, at will—and second, to achieve police-state control over the desired objective.

It is rather depressing to see such a spectacle in our own Government.

Of course, most of you who read this probably won't bother to do anything about it. Dictators know this and that is how they achieve their power.

Encroachment on the rights of the people is usually subtle—but gradually expands until the population wakes up and finds out "it can happen here" and they are powerless to do anything about it.

Today it discriminates against the liquor industry. Tomorrow it may discriminate against the paper industry. And the next day perhaps against your industry.

There is no stopping totalitarian methods once they are permitted to get a foothold. As Thomas Jefferson once pointed out: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." That vigilance requires a revision of Section 4B of the Taft Anti-Inflation Law under which Secretary Anderson acquired his arbitrary powers. An extension of that law containing that section will be acted upon by the Congress within the next few days—and it is essential that it be amended to prevent further use of such dictatorial powers by Secretary Anderson.

I hold no brief for the liquor industry and I am not in any way connected with it—but I have a great respect for fair play, justice and equality in government—and am American enough to believe that our Government "of the people, by the people and for the people" should retain the high code of ethics, integrity and honesty which has made us the greatest nation in the world today.

If you agree with me, write or wire Senator Taft and your Senators and Congressmen to amend Section 4B in such a way as to eliminate the possibility of any industry being ruined for political expediency.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

Many men think women cannot be trusted too far, while women think men cannot be trusted too near.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

President Modifies His Stand Opposing Federal Pay Raises

PAY RAISES: The President yesterday modified the stand he took last week in opposition to Federal pay raises.

He told his press conference that the salaries of top-flight people should be increased in keeping with their duties. He recalled that he had repeatedly urged higher salaries for Federal officials. The President cleared up his position in commenting on his trouble in finding a new chairman for the Civil Aeronautics Board.

It isn't generally known, but the President was urged to ask the Congress to raise top-bracket salaries in his budget message. It's reported that he personally struck out the reference. Instead he told the Congress that he was opposed raises at this time, and he suggested the Congress beat down living costs.

DCE's: The House Civil Service Committee yesterday took a drastic step to find jobs for laid-off career workers.

It approved a report that recommended the withholding of funds designed to pay the salaries of war service and temporary employes who hold jobs that jobless career people are qualified to fill. It suggested the money be ordered withheld by riders to the many agencies' appropriation bills. The riders would go into effect on September 30.

The report charged that several departments and agencies had used "devious methods" to retain their war service people, and that there were career people with many years of service who were qualified to fill their jobs.

The last count showed less than 700 jobless career people in this city. Civil Service expects several hundred more to be placed within two weeks and the problem to be solved long before September 1.

However, the committee pointed to a real weakness in the Civil Service system. Chairman Rees explained that many people who had qualified through competitive tests weren't being certified to jobs, and that many war service people were in this group. He demanded a speed-up of the certification system.

The chairman could have added that people who had taken tests more than a year ago hadn't even been told if they had passed. And many who have qualified haven't been certified.

FARMS: Georgia Hall is being closed at the big Government Girl dormitory at Arlington Farms. It will be shut down on February 1.

However, the operators say there is plenty of room to accommodate the Georgia girls in other residence halls at the farm. They explain that the Georgia closing is an economy move, and that there are no plans to close other halls, despite contrary reports.

NOTES: The President said yesterday that he was considering the reappointment of M. S. SZYMCZAK to the Federal Reserve Board, and that of DR. EARNEST H. GRUENING to be governor of Alaska . . . Commerce yesterday appointed WILLIAM R. DAVLIN as chief of its area development division. He's a former TVA official . . . JOE FLYNN, formerly of Selective Service, has joined the press staff at National Defense . . . Several Senators are supporting HAROLD B. MILLER to be chairman of CAB. Miller is on Senator Brewster's aviation staff. He's a former admiral in charge of Navy's public relations. The President, however, said he wasn't under consideration by him for the post.

CONTEST: Our Government Girl contest is rapidly drawing to a close. You girls must get in your pictures no later than next Wednesday midnight to be eligible for prizes. The winner will be used as a model in the Mary Worth comic strip, be given $200 in cash, and be sent on an all-expense trip to Bermuda for nine days. Contest rules are on the comic page.

RETIREMENT: The Senate today will debate the Taft bill, which has been substituted for the Langer-Chavez retirement bill. Several changes proposed in the Taft bill were revealed here yesterday. Other features are:

Any employe who leaves the Government would have the option to withdraw his retirement money in a lump sum, plus interest, or else accept an annuity. Length of service and age wouldn't be a factor. In the House-approved bill, any employe who had served five or more years would be given an annuity.

The provision for retirement after 25 years of service regardless of age for employes who are laid off is stricken from the Taft bill.

Present retirement ages would be unchanged in the Taft bill. However, a person who had served 10 years and who reaches 70 would be forced to retire. An employe could delegate a survivorship benefit to his widow only under the Taft bill.

Browne P-TA Cites High Court's Rule On Schooling

Board Is Asked To Reconsider Its Stand on Use Of Blow and Webb

The Browne Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association yesterday asked the Board of Education to reconsider the use of Blow and Webb schools as annexes to Browne.

Belford V. Lawson, jr., attorney for the P-TA, told board members that recent decisions of the Supreme Court also made it imperative that the board provide equal facilities for Negro children "not tomorrow but today."

Lawson said that the P-TA group was not responsible for the strike by parents, which has kept 200 students out of Blow and Webb since December 3. The two schools are former white elementary schools.

Four in Picket Line

Plans of the striking group to throw heavy picket lines around Blow and Webb yesterday morning simmered down to four pickets at Blow. Attendance at the two buildings was about a third of the enrollment.

He repeated a request that strikers have made that white students at Eastern High School be transferred to other high schools, that Eliot and Stuart Junior High School students be moved into Eastern, and the two vacated junior high buildings be turned over to the Negro children.

Lawson criticized Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning for reporting that such a move might result in race trouble in the northeast.

Court Ruling Awaited

George E. C. Tayes, Negro member of the board, said that he doubted if the board could reverse its stand on Blow and Webb while a suit is pending in District Court which in effect charges the board with acting in bad faith.

Hayes referred to a suit filed Wednesday by parents of two Browne students asking District Court to enjoin the school board and Corning from providing "inferior" facilities. The suit also asks $110,000 in damages.

65 Families Join to Aid Needy Abroad

A unique Falls Church plan to share food and clothing with needy Europeans, the December brainchild of two town residents, has snowballed to include 65 participating families.

Word of the sharing plan is being mailed to communities all over the country, according to Mrs. John Graham, 216 Little Falls st., who with her husband pioneered the idea.

"The plan" calls for three families to band together into "sharing teams." Working from a master list of European families, they pool their cash, clothing, and food and arrange to ship them.

When a sharing team becomes a going concern, one of its families is expected to leave and form a new "sharing team." This feature has helped pyramid the plan to its present size.

Word of this idea, in mimeographed form, is being mailed to CARE offices all over the United States by the Washington office of the relief agency.

A nine-member "steering committee" has been set up to provide information on the plan for people who hear of it by word-of-mouth, Mrs. Graham said.

The idea has been presented to local civic groups, and the Rev. Francis W. Hayes, jr., minister of the Falls Church, has urged every church member to help form a "sharing team."

Board Asks Fowler If More Hospital Funds Can Be Used

Budget Officer Walter Fowler was asked by the Commissioners yesterday to ascertain whether funds could be made available for hiring additional cooks and obtaining more heated food trucks for Gallinger Hospital.

These items were recommended Tuesday in Assistant Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger's report on the Gallinger Hospital food situation. Commissioner Guy Mason delivered the report to the Commissioners at yesterday's board meeting.

Seckinger made his investigation after Dr. Sol Katz, chief medical officer of the tuberculosis department, charged that patients were receiving improper food.

Rabbi Prero to Speak On 'Unfinished Portrait'

Rabbi Amram Prero, national director of B'nai B'rith youth organizations, will speak today at 8:30 p. m. at B'nai Israel Synagogue, 14th and Emerson sts. nw., on "The Unfinished Portrait."

Abraham Kipperman, who recently returned from Haifa, Palestine, will discuss "The Haganah As I Know It" today at 8:30 p. m. at Agudath Achim Congregation, 909 Quackenbos st. nw.

Five Fair Witnesses Testify in Lawyer's Defense

The Washington Post

DAUGHTERS, TOO, STRENGTHEN HIS ALIBI—Leaving District Court after testifying in the defense of Attorney James J. Laughlin, who, with a Washington physician, is being tried on abortion charges, are (from left) Betty Laughlin, 23, and Mary Laughlin, 21, the accused lawyer's daughters, both of 3830 Livingston st. nw.; Cecelia Marie Desmond, 22, of 3314 Mount Pleasant st. nw.; Mrs. W. Jenkins White, 22, of Raleigh, N. C., and Mrs. Mabel Steele of 2070 Belmont rd. nw. All but Mrs. White were on the stand yesterday to strengthen Laughlin's alibi defense. She testified in his behalf Wednesday

X-Ray Tests Total 45,000 In Nine Days

Response Pleases Officials; Too Early For Over-all Picture

Some 45,000 District residents have been X-rayed in the first nine days, ending Wednesday, of Washington's mass chest X-ray survey.

Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, survey director, yesterday was "well satisfied" with the organization, public response and progress of the survey. Aim of the survey is to X-ray every Washington—estimated at a total of more than 600,000.

Reading of the films by medical specialists and confidential disclosure of the results are running within two days from the time of the X-ray. Negative reports have been in the mails for some days.

Beginning Monday, all persons whose films have indicated possibility of tuberculosis will be called in for a second, larger chest X-ray. A large percentage of these "suspect" cases, officials said, will be eliminated by the second check.

The officials said it was too early in the survey to make an accurate estimate of the percentage of tubercular Washingtonians.

Instructional sessions are being held for staff supervisors of D. C. Health Department nurses to expedite handling and treatment of suspect cases.

Wholesale Prices Within 1% of Record '20 Peak

Wholesale prices edged higher in the week ended January 17 to within 1 per cent of the all-time peak of May, 1920, after World War I.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics index of prices of more than 900 products rose for the eleventh consecutive week, led by prices of farm products.

The week's advance was .6 per cent and took the index 65.5 per cent above the 1926 average.

This is 1.8 per cent higher than a month ago, and 17.5 per cent above the same week a year ago.

Farm products as a group reversed a decline of a week earlier and went up 2.3 per cent during the January 17 week. There were sharp increases for grains and most livestock.

However, food prices declined and averaged .5 per cent lower during the week.

Average prices of commodities other than farm products and foods rose .3 per cent during the week, their seventeenth week of steady advances.

Woman to Make Trip in Iron Lung

Mrs. Margaret Averill, 30-year-old polio victim and wife of a Capital Airlines executive stationed here, will be moved from Chicago to Baltimore this weekend in an iron lung.

Mrs. Averill, who with her husband, Robert Averill, lived in Alexandria several years ago, will leave Chicago at 11:40 a. m. (EST) Saturday aboard a specially designed pullman car and is scheduled to arrive in Baltimore at 9:50 a. m. Sunday.

The Averills, who moved to Chicago in 1946, have three children, Peter, 6; Robert, jr., 4, and Katherine, 1½ Mrs. Averill was stricken with polio and hospitalized on February 26, 1947. She is being sent to the Baltimore Children's Hospital School Respirator Center by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Oyster Meeting Set

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 22 (AP).—The Anne Arundel County oyster committee of the Maryland Commercial Watermen Association will make recommedations regarding county bars in the upper Chesapeake Bay at a meeting tomorrow night at the State House.

'Man Named George' Linked To Mrs. Hobbs' Pregnancy

ously mentioned by Government witnesses as the date of the first, and unsuccessful abortion attempt. They had testified that Laughlin was present in the home of a nurse, Mrs. Irma Petrain, 2215 H st. nw., at night on those dates.)

"As we were entering the building," Miss Laughlin said, "we saw Miss Pickard (Mrs. Hobbs) leaving. She was walking rapidly and carrying a suitcase."

Miss Laughlin said her father came into the office at "about 7 p. m." She testified Laughlin told her he'd hurt his eye and she said "he had one of us call the Episcopal Eye Hospital" for an appointment.

(Records fo Laughlin's alleged visit to the hospital are missing notwithstanding a search.)

She declared she, her sister and Laughlin went to the hospital in a cab, had the eye treated and then were driven to Wearley's restaurant by a physician at the hospital.

Miss Laughlin asserted the three went home after dinner, arriving about 11 p. m. and that all then retired for the night.

She said she bade her father good night while he was in bed and that he didn't leave the house the rest of the night.

Backs Doctor's Testimony

Next day, she testified "when I got up at about 11 a. m. I saw Dad. He was just coming into the house." She testified Laughlin told her he had been to Dr. Benjamin Rones, for eye treatment.

(Rones had previously testified that the lawyer visited him on that date.)

She said Laughlin went "straight to bed" and that she left the house about 12:55 p. m. The witness said she next saw her father when she returned at about 5:10 p. m. "He was still in bed," she asserted.

She testified she left for work at a bookstore at 6 p. m. and upon returning at 9 p. m. found Laughlin "still in bed."

Sister Corroborates Story

Miss Laughlin told the court she saw her father the following day, March 22 "early in the morning." She said "he was going to West Virginia that day."

(Charles Flasphaler, a law associate of Laughlin's had previously testified, he and Laughlin went to Romney, W. Va., on a matter of litigation March 22 and returned about 11 p. m. the next night.)

Miss Laughlin said she next saw her father March 23 "about midnight." Her testimony was corroborated by her sister, Mary.

A former schoolmate of Mary's, Miss Cecilia Marie Desmond 9314 Mount Pleasant st. nw., told of having dinner at the Laughlin's March 21 with the lawyer present all evening.

Earlier Mrs. Steele testified that Mrs. Hobbs had once asked her "not to say anything" about "the nude pictures," and about having relations with a man in a closet at the Shoreham Hotel, when someone opened it and "both tumbled out."

Police Superintendent Robert Barrett will be called to testify today concerning a party given for him when he was made detective chief, Laughlin said yesterday.

Bay Authority Talks Continue This Morning

Richmond, Va., Jan. 22 (AP).—Attorney General Harvey B. Apperson said today a conference with the Attorney General of Maryland on provisions of a bill to be introduced in the Virginia General Assembly to set up a bi-State Chesapeake Bay Authority will be continued tomorrow morning.

The Attorneys General of the two States conferred for more than three hours in Apperson's office today.

The Maryland Attorney General, Hall Hammond, arrived here this afternoon accompanied by F. W. C. Webb and Robert H. Archer, two of the Maryland members of the Interstate Study Commission on Fish and Shellfish in the Chesapeake Bay and Potomac River.

Also attending the conference were C. O'Conor Goolrick of Fredericksburg and Tayloe Murphy of Warsaw, members from Virginia of the Chesapeake-Potomac Commission which recommended recently to the Governors of both States that a joint authority composed of representatives from each be set up and given full control of:

Fishing and crabbing in the Chesapeake Bay and all its tributaries and oyster production in the Potomac. Both States would share the cost of maintaining the authority.

Apperson said considerable discussion was devoted today to various features of any legislation in the matter and the group also talked with Governor Tuck during the afternoon.

The proposal has received the indorsement of Gov. William Preston Lane of Maryland but there have been some objections to it in Virginia. Hammond has said that the Maryland delegation will assist Virginia's Attorney General in any way possible in preparing legislation setting up a bay authority.

Holy Cross Dance

The Holy Cross Alumnae Association will hold its annual dance today at 8 in the Kennedy-Warren. Mrs. R. L. May is chairman.

Plant Closing

Md. Straight Rye Output Due to End

Baltimore, Jan. 22 (AP).—An old Free State tradition—production of Maryland straight rye whisky—may become a thing of the past when the Nation's distillers end their grain saving shutdown, it was indicated today.

Officials of the Frank L. Wight Distilling Co., at Lorelei, Baltimore County, said the State's lone remaining distillery turning out the rye probably will not reopen when the distilling holiday ends.

The firm is a wholly owned subsidiary of Hiram Walker & Sons, Inc. No formal statement of reasons for the closing of the plant was issued.

Howard Walton, president of the Hiram Walker Fooderham & Worts, Ltd., a Canadian firm with headquarters at Walkerville, Ont., and the overall corporate owner, said only that Hiram Walker is not planning further operations at Lorelei.

The Lorelei plant, sold to Hiram Walker for a reported two million dollars in 1941, includes four warehouses as well as the distillery and produced about 400,000 cases of whisky annually.

The organization has a payroll of about 150 persons.

Richmond Buildings Burn

Richmond, Va., Jan. 22 (AP).—The three-story Real Estate Exchange building and a two-story brick structure adjoining it in midtown Richmond were gutted by flames early today as almost every fire company in the city was pressed into service to prevent the spread of the blaze.

Principals to Meet

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Jan. 22 (AP).—A conference of high school principals from eastern West Virginia, northern Virginia and central Maryland is planned here February 4 by Shepherd College. Speakers include Dr. Dan J. Hull of the United States Office of Education, Washington.

Wiley Sees D.C. as Judicial No Man's Land

Court Ruling Cited Which Upset Law Covering Suits Here

Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) suggested yesterday that a recent Federal Appeals Court decision on court rights of District residents has made Washington "a judicial no-man's land."

Senator Wiley, speaking to the Federal Bar Association at its luncheon in the Willard, renewed his earlier proposal that a Constitutional amendment may be needed to take care of the civil rights of District residents.

His comments referred to the recent decision of the Fourth Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., which called unconstitutional a 1940 Act of Congress which gave citizens of the District the same rights that citizens of the States have to sue and be sued in Federal courts.

The act gave Federal District Courts original jurisdiction in suits arising between a resident of the District, Alaska or Hawaii, and a resident of a State or Territory.

He said the question of the court rights of District residents had been variously decided in court decisions, and he added:

"One thing is, however, certain and that is that when the citizens of the District are denied a privilege accorded to those of the States, the situation is unusual and unfortunate.

"Chief Justice Marshall's statement about the anomaly of the situation under which the United States courts are open to aliens and citizens of other States but not to District of Columbia Citizens, stands as a very clear definition of the present problem."

About 150 persons attended the luncheon meeting. William G. Hamilton, first vice president, presided.

PUC Studies Md. Transit Firm Request

A request by Anchorage Transportation, Inc., to extend its service from the Maryland-District line to downtown Washington was taken under advisement by the Public Utilities Commission yesterday after a four-hour hearing.

PUC granted Daryal A. Myse, attorney for Capital Transit Co., 30 days in which to file a brief opposing the extension.

Myse argued at the hearing that the extension would be unlawful because the PUC has not issued a certificate stating that the "competitive" line is necessary for public convenience. He said the extension would provide "considerable" competition to CTC.

Harrison Kahn, attorney for the Anchorage company, maintained a PUC certificate wasn't necessary because the company already had certificates issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizing it to operate between the District and points in Maryland.

Kahn emphasized that the company would carry only interstate passengers; would not transport persons between points within the District.

Henry Burroughs, president of Anchorage Transportation, Inc., told PUC that many Maryland riders had requested the extension as a matter of convenience.

The company, which now delivers to the District line passengers from Baltimore, Westminster, Ellicott City and other Maryland points, wants to extend service to 12 st. and New York ave. nw.

District Catholics In U.S. Limelight, Archbishop Says

Officials Judge Church by Example Set Here, Prelate States at Reception

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, last night pointed out that his new archdiocese takes in "what is now probably the most important single city in the world."

Speaking at the Catholic University gymnasium, where he was tendered a reception by laymen of the archdiocese, the new spiritual leader of 165,000 Catholics in Washington and five nearby Maryland counties said:

"In our midst are to be found representatives of every nation and government . . . Here, too, are located the national headquarters not only of our own great Government, but also of all those semipublic and private organizations and groups that represent every important segment of life in the United States."

D. C. Catholics in Cynosure

He told the men and women of his archdiocese that to these groups "you represent the Catholic Church, and the lessons they learn from their contacts with you will do more to fix and determine their impression of the church than all that they may learn by studying books."

These groups, Archbishop O'Boyle said, will see in Catholics here "fellow-Americans whose organized Catholic life in this section of the country goes back more than 300 years."

"They see," he continued, "a group whose forebears played a notable role in the founding of our Republic and who, in the intervening years, have been loyal citizens in good days and bad."

In the future, Archbishop O'Boyle said, he would have them see a people "who by their fidelity to their duties as Catholics and as citizens have continued to merit the deep respect of their neighbors and of their Government."

In closing Archbishop O'Boyle dedicated the archdiocese "to the greater honor and glory of God and to the salvation of souls" and pledged himself "to sustain you in your Christian activities."

The welcoming address to Archbishop O'Boyle from the laymen of the archdiocese was delivered by John A. Reilly, president of the Second National Bank and also the board of trade.

Reilly outlined the highlights of Archbishop O'Boyle's career, described the church history of the territory now contained in the new archdiocese, and related the beginnings of Catholic University of which the archbishop now becomes chancellor.

He told the archbishop that "your flock is reverently grateful to Almighty God for blessing us with your brilliant leadership. We pledge to you our full cooperation and support."

"May your excellency's years as our spiritual Father," he said, "be abundantly lled with health and that happiness that follows a life of service to God and country.

"This is our hope and silent prayer as you assume your new duties as the first Archbishop of Washington."

Suitor Tried Frameup, Court Told

The aspiring suitor of another man's wife chose the wrong kind of law to get the husband off the scene, Municipal Court was told yesterday.

Judge George D. Neilson held Howard Hicks, 23, of 629 Acker st. ne., for action of the grand jury on a perjury charge after Hicks allegedly admitted faking a robbery charge against the husband.

According to Detectives George C. Prather and Ivy L. Murphy, Hicks, as "James Brown" swore out a warrant for the arrest of Francis Warren, 25, of 1209 4th st. nw., charging Warren had stolen his billfold.

Warren, the husband, was arrested last Saturday. He promptly denied the charges and told police "Brown" was Hicks.

Detectives visited Hicks' apartment Wednesday, found him hiding under the bed, they said.

Prather and Murphy told the court Hicks admitted faking the charge because he wanted to go out with Warren's wife and "figured that was the only way I could do it—have him locked up."

The charge against Warren was dropped and Hicks was held on $500 bond.

Noisy Yegg Caught Trying To Open Safe

A 16-year-old boy who hasn't learned to mix stealth with safe-cracking was held by police yesterday in connection with at least eight housebreakings and burglaries.

The youth made so much noise trying to open a safe at the Safeway Store, 635 H st. ne., early yesterday, that he attracted two policemen.

Lieut. Thomas Edwards and Corpl. Gordon Vance heard the clanking of a crowbar and butcher's cleaver against the safe. They said they found the boy still trying.

Held for further questioning, the youth has admitted burglaries of stores at 412 H st. ne., 421 H st. ne., and 1364 Florida ave. ne., police said.

A former inmate of a New York reformatory, he told police he has been living in a room at 1108 8th st. ne., since coming to Washington three weeks ago.

G. W. U. Elects Frank A. Howard, Lawyer, a Trustee

Frank A. Howard, New York lawyer and head of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey's research, development and patent activities, has been elected to the board of trustees of George Washington University.

University President Cloyd Heck Marvin has also announced the re-election to the board of Robert E. Freer, a member of the Federal Trade Commission. A trustee since 1941, he received a B. A. degree from the university in 1931 and also holds a Bachelor's and Master's degree in law.

Howard, who is director of the Ethyl Corporation and the Disco Co., organized the Standard Oil activities which he heads and built up the Standard Oil Development Co. into one of the largest technical organizations in the industrial world. Two years ago, he founded at GW the annual Howard lectures for engineering students, which bring industrial leaders to the university's classrooms. Howard received a B. S. from the university in 1911 and a B. L. in 1914.

2 Cars Overturn After Skidding On Fairfax Road

Within 40 minutes yesterday, two cars skidded off a road in Fairfax County and overturned at almost the same spot without serious injury to either driver.

At 7:35 a. m., Capt. Walter Sandusky of McLean, Va., travelling east on Route 7, 2½ miles east of Tyson's Corner, skidded on an icy turn, ran his car up a short bank, and overturned. Sandusky was treated for a shoulder cut at Arlington Hospital.

While police investigated the accident, another car driven by Darius W. Gaskins of Vienna, Va., skidded on the same turn, ran off the opposite side of the road, and overturned. He was uninjured. There was no passenger in either car.

Training Flights Made by B-29s to Germany, Japan

The United States Strategic Air Command is conducting routine Superfortress training flights to Germany, Japan, Alaska and the Caribbean.

This was announced at Strategic Air Command headquarters at Andrews Field yesterday as a squadron of B-29s of the Twenty-eighth Bomb Group, Fifteenth Air Force, took off for Germany from Weaver Air Base, S. Dak.

Yesterday's flight was destined for Furstenfeldbruck, Germany.

Two of the Superfortresses left to fly the 4300-mile northern route by way of Westover (Mass.) Air Force Base and Iceland, while the others were routed by way of McDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Fla., and the Azores, a 5900-mile flight.

COOL MIRACLE. Most dancers spin out in an airy flurry of chiffon, tulle or lace. Not so Consuelo who's appearing in the Mayflower Lounge with Artini. For the afternoon cocktail hour show she wears a tight-fitting wool suit trimmed with yards of fur and a fantastic hat. How she keeps that bonnet on while Artini tosses her around is anybody's guess. What's more remarkable, considering that most dinner-suited male dancers finish their acts in a slather of perspiration, is that Consuelo remains as apparently cool as an icicle, but much prettier.

HOW KAVAKOS CLICKS. With Buddy Rich and his band at Club Kavakos for a 10-day stay, it becomes increasingly evident that the Club K. name band policy is paying off on the nose. Ted Weems and his "Heartaches" orchestra drew big crowds despite the January cold and generally sluggish nitery business . . . Come February 1 the Kavakos attraction will be Elliott Lawrence who's been named as the outstanding bandsman of 1947 in Billboard, Look and the Orchestra World.

The Interstate Society will hold its Saturday dances in the Roosevelt Hotel's Victory Room beginning tomorrow night. Food and beverage service will be available in the hotel's adjoining cocktail lounge and loggia.

Area News in Brief

School Is Choice Of Woman Driver

A woman attorney escaped a fine in Municipal Court yesterday by agreeing to attend the recently organized traffic school for motorists.

The other driver in the collision decided against attending the school. He was fined $100.

The woman lawyer is Mrs. June L. Green, 33, active in the Women's Bar Association of the District. She lives at Dublin-on-the-Severn, near Annapolis, Md.

The other driver was Richard E. Allen, 37, of 779 19th st. ne. The two autos collided on January 19 at 4th and F sts. nw. Both drivers were charged with colliding.

Judge Aubrey Fennell found both guilty. He postponed sentencing of Mrs. Green until she has completed the three-week course at the traffic school.

Salesman Sentenced

A 23-year-old District egg salesman was sentenced yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court to 18 months in the Maryland House of Correction on a charge of indecent exposure.

Robert Lee Dawson, 1216 18th st. ne., who then appealed his conviction by Judge Alan Bowie, was accused by Prince Georges County police of exposing himself to several teen-aged girls in Cheverly and Landover Hills on November 6.

New Paint for Roads

Night drivers soon may find it easier to see center lines and zones on District streets. Traffic Director George E. Keneipp revealed yesterday that his department will obtain 1500 gallons of new reflectorizing paint, containing small glass beads, as an experiment in increasing night-time visibility of street markings. The paint will be purchased from the Prisms Safety Corp. of Huntington, Pa., at a cost of $5475, Keneipp said.

Mason Hearing Today

The Senate District Committee will hold an open hearing at 10:30 a. m. today on President Truman's nomination of Guy Mason for his third 3-year term as a District Commissioner. The hearing will be in room 82B in the Senate wing of the Capitol.

Accident Cost Listed

Persons who drove autos while "under the influence of intoxicating liquor" caused 182 traffic accidents, 61 injuries and 5 deaths here last year.

Total cost in the District for property damage traffic accidents, injuries and deaths due to all causes totaled $4,210,275 in 1947, it was reported.

Injured in Fall

Salvadore Scalco, 66, of 705 Otis pl. nw., suffered a fractured skull yesterday when he fell from the door of a boxcar in the rear of 1300 Maine ave. sw. Scalco, who was inspecting a shipment of potatoes, was taken to Emergency Hospital in serious condition.

Traffic Law Tightened

Montgomery County police were ordered yesterday to begin "strict enforcement" of a state law which requires motorists to stop 10 feet behind, or in front of, a school bus receiving or discharging passengers.

'Dimes' Drive Spurred

More than 30,000 letters have been mailed to Arlington residents urging their support of the county's 1948 "March of Dimes" campaign, drive director William W. Jefferay said yesterday. Fifty per cent of funds raised this year will remain in Arlington for treatment of its polio cases, Jefferay added.

Church Aided By Lincoln Being Razed

A church that Abraham Lincoln helped establish here was being torn down yesterday.

St. Augustine's Catholic Church at 15th and L sts. nw.—its Gothic spires reaching 60 feet into the sky since the 1870's—soon will be a pile of rubble.

And after that, perhaps a parking lot.

President Lincoln, in 1865, attended a "strawberry festival" on the White House lawn, proceeds of which went to establish a parish for Negro Catholics called St. Martin's.

St. Martin's stood on L st. between 15th and 16th sts. Parish boundaries extended from the Mall to the northern line of Mount Pleasant and from 3d st. to Rock Creek. In 1874, with dedication of and opening of St. Augustine's Church, the parish was changed to that name.

St. Augustine's, sold for $300,000 two years ago to two Washington lawyers, measures 130 by 200 feet. It seated 1000 parishioners beneath its high, vaulted ceiling, and another 1000 could be held in the assembly hall underneath the church.

Its congregation has moved a few blocks away to its new church at 1715 15th st. nw. The Rev. Alonzo J. Olds, who came to St. Augustine's in 1904, is pastor.

Yesterday, the man who is tearing the old church down was scanning the challenging A-shaped slate roof with wary eyes.

Gilbert C. Fisher, one of three owners of the Ace Wrecking Co., said it would be "a very hazardous and dangerous job" to tear the roof apart.

Fisher, who began razing Wednesday, figures the job will be done in less than 90 days. Presently working with a crew of 15, he will soon have 30 men knocking the building apart.

P. E. Baker

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 22 (Spl.).—Funeral services for P. E. Baker, 65, Spotsylvania County merchant, will be held at the Wheeler & Thompson funeral home at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Baker died of a cerebral hemorrhage at his home early yesterday. He came here from Baker, Oreg., in 1924 as manager of the J. C. Penny store. For the last 10 years he ran his own store in Spotsylvania.

He is survived by his father, C. H. W. Baker, and a brother, C. H. Baker, both of Portland, Oreg., and a son, Paul G. Baker of Fredericksburg.

Two Women Seek Veteran's Estate

First Wife Contends Navy Man's Divorce Was Obtained by False Testimony

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 22 (AP).—Mrs. Nola Frances Connelly of Huntington, W. Va., challenged a divorce obtained by her late husband and claimed she, and not his second wife, is entitled to a widow's benefits in a case before the Maryland Court of Appeals today.

The court's opinion will determine whether the West Virginia woman or Mrs. Aurelia Dorothy Connelly of Washington is eligible for a widow's pension and contingent benefits of a $10,000 national service life insurance policy.

Both properties developed from the death of Boyd S. Connelly while he served in a Navy construction battalion in 1943.

Mrs. Nola Connelly asked the Court of Appeals to overrule a verdict of Judge Herman M. Moser in Baltimore City Circuit Court which made the second Mrs. Connelly the "lawful widow."

Attorneys arguing the Huntington woman's appeal maintained Connelly fraudulently won an absolute divorce from her in Baltimore in 1940.

At that time, they charged, he falsely testified he did not know where his wife lived, he was a resident of Baltimore and he had no children. Actually, three children were born during his first marriage.

One week after obtaining the decree, Connelly married Aurelia in Forestville, Md. In 1943 he joined the Navy. Two years later she filed for divorce and the decree would have become effective July 6. But Connelly died July 4 in California.

Connelly was named as appellee in the case today, with his second wife as an intervenor.

His Government insurance policy named Wanda Connelly, a daughter by his first marriage, as beneficiary, and "the widow" as contingent beneficiary.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS
Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste
If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Engel Gets Brush Off on Army Charges

By the United Press

Secretary of Army Kenneth C. Royall gave Representative Albert J. Engel (R., Mich.), a military brush-off yesterday when the Congressman filed a belated complaint about "dirty work" in the Army.

Engel told the House that when he was touring the China-India theater with some other members of a Military Appropriations Subcommittee shortly after VJ-Day he discovered the Army was destroying all kinds of valuable supplies like gloves, flight jackets and airplane parts.

The Congressman said their official guide was Maj. Gen. George C. Richards, the Army budget officer. He said Richards "did everything in his power to cover up and prevent our committee from obtaining information."

So, said Engel, he reported the incident recently to Royall. And the Secretary, instead of reprimanding Richards has promoted him to the post of Army comptroller.

The Congressman said Richards probably would be promoted to lieutenant general.

Jelin, Producer, Killed in Explosion In Apartment

New York, Jan. 22 (AP).—Max Jelin, 40, Broadway theatrical producer, was killed late today in an explosion which wrecked his apartment and damaged two others on the fourteenth floor of a newly constructed luxury residential building in mid-Manhattan.

The apartment building is at 300 East 57th st. near the city's exclusive Sutton pl. sector.

Detective James Markley said the explosion was caused by an accumulation of gas in the Jelin apartment. He said four jets were found open on the kitchen stove.

Pan American Plane Sets Record to Eire

Pan American World Airways has announced that its Clipper Flying Eagle set a new record of 10 hours 52 minutes on a through flight from Washington to Shannon, Eire, on Wednesday.

Piloted by Capt. James E. Kowing and aided by a 55-mile tail wind, the Clipper shaved 4 minutes from the previous record while carrying 24 passengers and 10 crew members over the 3360 miles.

Condensation from "THE REACH OF THE MIND" in Reader's Digest

What do recent studies reveal about the unknown powers of the human mind—mind-reading, clairvoyance, "mind-over-matter"—even the prospect of proving survival of personality after death? February Reader's Digest brings a 14-page condensation from J. B. Rhine's startling new book. Don't miss this report of actual experiments that have stirred the scientific world—a tale of seeming fantasies told by a matter-of-fact scientist from Duke University.

Also in Reader's Digest

How smart are you? How rapidly can you think under pressure? Do unexpected situations and the necessity for split-second decisions throw you off balance? Try this amusing quiz—the kind used in many standard mental tests. It may reveal just how much you ARE on the ball.

HERE'S WHY
YOU SHOULD USE 15% LESS HEATING OIL
THIS WINTER
The heating oil supply situation is critical. Unless you and all other users of heating oil burn 15% less than normal during January, February and March, your home may be cold! Today the industry's production is the greatest in history—BUT—still not enough to meet the record demand. To save your 15%, take these steps now: Set thermostat at 68°... turn down to 60° at night or when away... keep radiators off in all unused rooms... use fireplace whenever possible—keep flues closed when not in use.

Bank Loans In D. C. Soar 39% in Year

By S. Oliver Goodman

Combined loans of Washington's 19 banks soared 39 per cent in 1947 to an all-time high of $242,755,000.

The total was $67,415,000 greater than at the end of 1946, according to a compilation released yesterday by the office of United States Comptroller of Currency.

Commercial and industrial loans aggregated $89,131,000 for all the local banks on December 31, 1947, compared with $64,339,000 at the end of the previous year. Real estate loans advanced to $79,759,000, compare with $55,366,000.

Investments in United States Government securities were reduced substantially, dropping to $505,853,000 from $580,114,000.

Combined assets amounted to $1,096,608,000, a gain of $5,534,000 for the year.

The comptroller's report showed combined deposits of $1,023,899,000 as of December 31, 1947, against $1,028,485,000 on October 6, 1947, and $1,021,899,000 on December 31, 1946.

Principal changes in capital accounts included a rise of $450,000 in capital stock, an upturn of $1,212,000 in surplus, a gain of $483,000 in undivided profits and an advance of $1,187,000 in reserves.

NEW CHAIRMAN: Wilmer J. Waller, president of the Hamilton National Bank, was elected chairman of the Washington Clearing House Association. He succeeds Robert V. Fleming who, having served three successive terms, was not eligible for re-election. Other officers of the clearing house, as chosen at Wednesday's meeting, are: Charles H. Doing, vice chairman; Victor B. Deyber, secretary; George H. Bright, manager, and William H. Cradlin, assistant manager. Chosen members of the Clearing House Committee for two years are John A. Reilly and C. F. Jacobsen.

Man and Wife in Car Case Differ Over His Identity

Police faces, red all day after a neat brush-off by the whole Miller family, returned to normal hue last night.

But Clifford Miller, head of the family, still had them a little addled over his name, which he insists is Harvey Clarence Carlson and shows a Social Security card to prove it.

Mrs. Miller, mother of 2½-year-old twins, insists his name is Miller.

Miller first tangled with Maryland State Police at Waterloo barracks yesterday morning after the car in which he, his wife and children were riding was wrecked near West Elkridge, Md.

Miller eased out of the station, however, leaving the family there. Cooperative police loaded Mrs. Miller and children into a car, took them to the District line, where they were picked up by Detective Theodore Haage of Metropolitan Police for the ride to what Mrs. Miller told him was home—1239 12th st. nw.

Later, Haage, hoping to pick up Miller, returned to that address; learned the Millers hadn't lived there for two years.

Last night, First Precinct Pvt. W. A. Dize, ferreting out a tip that the Millers lived at 824 8th st. nw., rapped on the door. He walked in unannounced when he heard a window opening, he said, and caught Miller climbing out of a window, shoeless.

Police said the car wrecked at West Elkridge was stolen Wednesday night from a 12th st. parking lot. Owner by Anthony Magrinow, 2009 Wyoming ave. nw.

As of late last night, police were still questioning Miller—or Carlson.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 22 (F)—A late rally led by corn canceled a good part of early losses extending to around 6 cents in wheat and 5 cents in corn and oats on the Board of Trade today. Late firming tendencies in the yellow grain largely reflected good cash demand and limited country offerings.

Wheat finished ¾ to 4 cents lower than yesterday, May 2.97⅛@2.97⅜; corn was unchanged to 1⅛ lower, May 2.67⅜@2.68, oats were ⅛ to 2⅛ lower, May 1.38@1.37⅞, and soybeans were unchanged to ¼ cent lower, March 4.22.

GOLD-GRUBBING TRIO: Tim Holt, Walter Huston and Humphrey Bogart in the Warner's "Treasure of Sierra Madre" a story of three Americans prospecting in the mountains of Mexico

Second Suit Filed by Veterans

Another suit accusing the Federal Finance & Realty Co. and R. B. Ferris, a contractor, of fraud and sharp practices was filed yesterday in District Court.

It was the second suit brought this week by a veteran purchaser of a new home involving the same defendants.

Yesterday's suit, filed by George F. Morgan of 4513 38th st., Brentwood, Md., identified Maurice and Rose Schlein as operators of the finance and realty company which arranged and financed his purchase of a new home and Ferris as the contractor who built it. Address for all of the defendants was listed as 915 New York ave. nw.

On Tuesday, a similar suit was filed by Paul J. Raimonde of 4502 38th pl., Brentwood. Morgan and Raimonde are both represented by Attorney Josiah Lyman. Morgan asks $10,000 damages, Raimonde $19,500.

In both suits it is alleged that the veterans contracted to buy the homes at $8500 but that the price was later hiked to $10,000.

In addition, the veterans complained the homes were not built to specifications.

Morgan in his suit said his home did not contain kitchen range and refrigerator as promised.

The veterans charge that the homes are coal heated, although gas or oil heating was promised.

In his suit Raimonde charged also that his roof leaks, that cheap material was used in the construction and that the house was improperly finished.

Morgan charges additionally that his floors were improperly sanded, the basement leaks and the roof was not built to specifications.

One on the Aisle—

Such Honesty Is Rare

Huston Superb At the Warner

By Richard L. Coe

THE WARNER AT LAST has a gripping and fascinating picture. "Treasure of Sierra Madre" probably will not please everyone, but it is out of the ordinary, is done with an honesty all too rare and boasts a superlative performance by Walter Huston.

It is the story of three men's quest for gold in the mountains of Mexico. Their hard-won success and ultimate failure point an unmistakable lesson.

The film just misses being a complete success (the ending, for instance, is overdrawn by a few minutes after some straining to tie up the yarn), but it aims higher than most Hollywood products. Director John Huston, who wrote the screen play from a novel by the nearly anonymous B. Traven, has had the honesty to make a picture as he saw it. Such integrity is welcome.

They're not a pretty lot, these three. Humphrey Bogart is the most brutal, a man without conscience who's been in the gutter and only knows that he wants the gold to bring him the easy life he's never had. Tim Holt plays a young wanderer with the dream of owning his own orchards, a dream that can be realized if he gets the gold. Walter Huston acts—and acts is the word—a wise old prospector who knows what the touch of gold will do for a man because he knows what it's done to him.

This trio, brought together by circumstances, strike out into the mountains for gold. It is to be an equal partnership, but Huston warns that as soon as they find gold in their pans dissension will break out. It does.

The Curse of the Treasure

Each man suspects the other will make off with the treasure. The mountains become, to their individual eyes, unfriendly terrain. When another prospector seeks to join them, they plan to kill him, but his death is postponed when he discovers bandits on their trail. They beat off the bandits, but next fall with suspicious looking natives.

These Indians, though, are friendly, and it takes Huston's patience to make their harmless intentions clear. When he goes off to doctor a dying Indian boy, the trio is broken, and it isn't long before Bogart's distrust of his remaining companion comes to a boil. He kills Holt, or at least thinks he does, loses his mind and before he can reach a civilized outpost he's killed by the bandits and the entire treasure is tossed to the winds by the ignorant thieves—who think the dust is merely ballast for the ostensible hunting trip the men have been on.

A Fine Huston Portrait

The finale is sheer bravura—Holt and Huston have managed to join up again, and they discover Bogart's death and that the wind has blown the gold dust back to the mountains from which it came. The men laugh at the irony of their fate, and it's a minor pity that Director Huston managed to fade out on only one ironic laugh. His extra minute is just a bit too tidy.

Walter Huston's acting under his son's direction is a masterpiece. He's got long, rolling speechs which he delivers not only with gusto but with speed, and the difference between him and his two chief colleagues lies in this commanding delivery. You miss nothing he says, tongue-twisting as some of those lines are. Yes, it's a real pleasure to watch this fine actor.

Bogart and Holt, while they can't compete with such a veteran, are convincing enough, and there's a fine portrayal of a Mexican bandit by Alfonso Bedoya. There are no female roles of any importance, though this may be hard for you to believe. Tim's father, the veteran Jack, has a small role, and Bruce Bennett plays the luckless chap who makes it a brief foursome.

Max Steiner's musical background is generally effective and he's to be commended for not giving in to Aaron Copland's "El Salon Mexico," though he comes mighty close.

For all its grime, too, you'll find flashes of earthy humor. But the real quality I admired about "Treasure of Sierra Madre" is that such an unlikely picture actually has come from Hollywood.

"TREASURE OF SIERRA MADRE." Warner Brothers release produced by Henry Blanke. Screen play by John Huston from a novel by B. Traven. Photographed by Tez McCord. Directed by Huston. At the Warner.

—With Shirley Povich

ROBERT MURPHY, the Boston labor relations expert, who tried to unionize the major league ball players a couple of years ago and struck out, is now taking dead aim on the club owners with another weapon. He has packed his blunderbuss with a new charge—that the reserve clause binding a player to a club from season to season is illegal.

POVICH

But only in Murphy's hands is it a new charge. Prominent law men have maintained for years that the reserve clause is in restraint of trade and would be invalidated by any modern court. However, Murphy is the first to make an issue of it in the last 20 years. He has submitted to to the Massachusetts State Legislature a proposal to outlaw the reserve clause in baseball contracts.

There is some doubt, however, just whom Murphy is trying to befriend. Certainly not the club owners who are panicked at the thought of seeing all their players declared free agents at the end of each season. And the ball players are not viewing Murphy as a friend, either. The ball players committee has rushed their representatives, Johnny Murphy and Dixie Walker, to the hearing to express their opposition to the proposal.

LABOR MAN MURPHY appears simply to be taking another tack in his efforts to organize the players. They could be driven into his arms, at least in Massachusetts, if the bill was enacted for then he would be dealing with free agents for whom he could bargain collectively. If successful in Massachusetts, he could initiate the same action in other States and thus achieve by law the organization he failed to put over by deals with the players when they were bound to the clubs.

There is something in error, however, in the testimony by Players Committee Chairman Johnny Murphy who pleaded yesterday for retention of the reserve clause, saying it was put in the contracts at the insistence of the players. That is not at all the history of the reserve clause. It was written into the contracts by the club owners, back before the turn of the century, as a property-saving device.

The players' representatives are correct, though, when they contend that doing away with the reserve clause would wreck the structure of baseball. It may be technically illegal, but baseball without the reserve clause could not survive and any tampering with it would sweep away the livelihood of the players.

THERE IS MEAT in the contention of the ballplayers that major league baseball as a profession would collapse without the right of the club owners to retain their chattels from year to year under the reserve clause contracts. Without the reserve rights to their players, without knowing how their teams would be constituted next season, the owners' huge investments would be jeopardized.

The rich clubs would end up with the best players, and the balance of competition would be thrown so completely out of whack that the league would be a mockery. Players entitled to shop around for the best contracts would gravitate to the richest clubs, and the league would blow up for lack of competition. They know it, the club owners know it, but Mr. Murphy apparently doesn't.

The reserve clause was upheld in its last court test, back in 1920, but there is no certainty that it would be held valid in these times. Judicial thinking has been revolutionized, and property rights of the club owners as represented by the reserve clause might not get the same consideration as they did a couple of decades ago if aligned against what might be the human and civil rights of complaining players.

SOME OF THE FOOTBALL people have already recognized the illegality of the reserve clause and have signed their important athletes to so-called personal service contracts to avoid any court test. The chief vulnerability of the reserve clause is its unilateral aspect that concedes to the club owner contract privileges denied the player.

The baseball contract which binds a player to a club from season to season stipulates only for the current season what he shall be paid by the club. The joker is the clause that binds the player to the club in succeeding seasons without stipulating his salary, except that it be mutually agreeable and in the event of failure to agree on salary, "the club shall have the right to set the figure."

That's no salary agreement at all. The player must accept the club's figure or be boycotted from his profession under the tight agreement among the clubs that they will not sign another team's players. The player has the right to appeal to the commissioner, but none of 'em have taken their cases that far in recent years.

Faurot Bows Out of Navy Grid Picture

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Naval Academy's football coaching problem was up in the air more than ever today as Don Faurot, considered the No. 1 choice to succeed Capt. Tom Hamilton, bailed out of the picture.

By telephone from Columbia, Mo., yesterday, the 46-year-old coach told The Washington Post:

"I have requested that my name be withdrawn from consideration as head football coach at the Naval Academy. I guess I was one of several 'felt out' for the job, but I decided to remain at Missouri."

Search Goes On

With Faurot eliminating himself, the search for a successor to Hamilton, who becomes athletic director June 1, goes on.

When the Academy junked its officer coaching system recently, it was announced that a list of 100 coaches was being considered.

Faurot admitted Wednesday that he had been approached by "Navy people" who were helping the Academy's committee named to find a coach.

The Missouri mentor served in the Navy's preflight athletic program during the war and relations between him and Hamilton, director of the program, were extremely close.

Faurot said he had no idea what the other coaches the Navy had under consideration.

"The names of Jim Tatum of Maryland, and I were the only ones I had heard about," he said, "but Tatum just signed a new contract with Maryland."

Over at Annapolis, meanwhile, Academy officials kept their official silence, saying only that "we are working on it."

When the new athletic policy was announced, the Academy said it would hire a civilian coach as soon as possible. Spring football practice at Annapolis begins March 1.

In addition to Faurot, the name of George Sauer of Kansas also has been mentioned often. Sauer, like Faurot, served as a football coach in Hamilton's wartime program.

Dons After Bob Neyland?

Los Angeles, Jan. 22 (AP).—General Manager Harry M. Thayer of the Los Angeles Dons Professional Football Club and Coach Bob Neyland of Tennessee conferred privately in Nashville yesterday, according to reliable information obtained today, discussing the possibility of the famed Vols' pilot coaching the All-America Conference team this year.

A source in Nashville advised that Thayer left the Tennessee capital yesterday, after a "prolonged and ultra-secret conference with Neyland.

Thayer made no mention of interviewing coaching prospects, but the Dons are openly in the market for one to replace Dudley S. DeGroot, who stepped out of the post midway in the 1947 season.

Neyland in many years at Tennessee has built up one of the finest coaching records in the business. He was a general in the United States Army in the late war.

Jacobs Quits After Louis' June Bout

Jacobs has owned Louis' contract since 1935.

Jacobs, 67, said that Felix Boccicchio of Camden, N. J., owner of Joe Walcott's contract, will be "down sometime next week to work out a contract for the return match."

Unladylike

Alfred, Me., Jan. 22 (AP).—A Superior Court jury today awarded $1000 damages to Alfred Beaudoin, Biddeford carpenter, who sued Promotor David Silverman for $1500 for injuries suffered when a woman wrestler was hurled onto him from the ring.

Beaudoin testified that one of two lady grapplers twice was heaved out of the ring and landed on his left shoulder, necessitating nine weeks loss of work and continuing treatments for the injury.

Rhodies Top Scorer

NEW YORY, Jan. 22 (AP).—Things are back to normal in national college basketball circles—Rhode Island State's Race-Horse Rams one again are pouring in points at a mile a minute.

A compilation by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau through games of January 17, showed today that the Rams of Rhode Island had rained in 693 points in their first nine games for an average of 77 per game.

North Carolina State is second with an average of 75.6.

3 Indians All-Stars

St. Louis, Jan. 22 (AP).—Despite their fourth-place finish in the American League. The Cleveland Indians placed three players on The Sporting News' All-Star Team, selected by members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, the baseball weekly announced today.

Aussies Still Out

New York, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—With the closing entry date nine days away, 22 nations were entered today in the 1948 Davis Cup inter-zone competition, but Australia, which lost to the United States in the 1947 challenge round, still was to be heard from.

Australia announced that it may not enter a team this year because of a shortage of top-flight players and because the association lost $6400 last year in an unsuccessful attempt to regain the cup which it won in 1939.

South Silent on NCAA

Atlanta, Jan. 22 (AP).—Football coaches and athletic directors from the Southern and Southeastern Conferences discussed the NCAA's new sanity code here today at two lengthy sessions, but no announcement was made as to any conclusions reached.

Bernie Skively, Kentucky athletic director and secretary of the Southeastern Conference Coaches' Association, said after the afternoon session that the group's opinions and suggestions would be handed to delegates attending the SEC's special meeting in Birmingham, February 21-22.

COMING BOY WONDER?—One of the youngest high school basketball coaches in the Nation is 18-year-old Johnny Colbert of St. Anthony's. He was graduated from the school last June and was appointed coach in November. Here, he gives instructions to Forward Johnny Quigley (left) before sending him into the game. Colbert's team puts a 4-1 record on the line against St. John's at 8 o'clock tonight at St. John's gymnasium. St. John's record is 8-1

St. Anthony's Quint Winning With 18-Year-Old as Coach

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Little St. Anthony's High School has the distinction of having one of the youngest basketball coaches in the Nation.

He is 18-year-old Johnny Colbert, who graduated from the school only last June and has held the coaching job since November.

The response of the team, composed of boys mostly his own age, has been excellent. St. Anthony's has won four of its first five games.

Johnny got the job by volunteering to take it without pay. He knew that the school's financial condition was such that it couldn't hire a high-salaried coach.

Father O'Brien, athletic director at St. Anthony's, agreed to Johnny's taking the post when young Colbert explained that someday he hoped to become a college coach. "The experience would help me a lot," he said.

He has to work for a living as a chaffeur for an electrical contractor. On the few occasions when he can't get off work to attend practices, his former team teammate at St. Anthony's, Eddie Moyle, takes his place as coach.

St. Anthony's, at 12th and Monroe sts. ne., has no gym. So the team practices at Merrick Boys Club and plays its "home games" at St. John's.

He has 14 games left on his schedule and expects his team to win at least 10 of them. It's no pushover schedule either. Among St. Anthony's opponents are Anacostia, Gonzago, St. John's and Calvert Hall of Baltimore.

The players who are expected to help St. Anthony's to a successful year are Joe Quigley, Jack Bohne, Larry Barry, Dave Wedding, Charlie Offutt, Lou Pennini, Bob Bezak, Bob Pruesser, Jack Wilson, Glenn Saffran, Leitfy Roe, Leo DiValentino, Tiny Torrey, Jack Sullivan and Buddy Taylor.

A lad of many talents, Johnny would like to take a stab at college professonal baseball and journalism before settling down permanently to coaching.

His college preference is Georgetown. He'd make a strong addition to the Hoya catching staff. Standing 5 feet 10, and weighing 180 pounds, he is a good right-handed hitter, has a strong throwing arm and has received feelers from the Browns, Red Sox and Giants.

Veeck Says Zany Antics Pay at Gate

Columbus, O., Jan. 22 (AP).—The Cleveland Indian promotional antics, which startled the staid American League and led some club operators to term them "undignified," drew a solid defense today from the Tribe's colorful chief, Bill Veeck.

Addressing some 300 minor league executives at the first annual rules interpretation and discussion conference called by minor league boss George M. Trautman, Veeck declared:

"Some of the boys say our stunts were not dignified. But I say they helped the Indians draw 1,521,978 fans for a new record. Frankly, I can't afford to be dignified. I don't have a lot of money in other businesses, as most of the American club owners do. If we don't draw a lot of money at the gate, I'll have to go back to work."

Veeck declared that baseball is the least progressive of all angles of the entertainment field; that the million and a half "gate" was rather dismal in view of the potential because "we drew the same 150,000 fans 10 times, instead of different fans."

He stressed that intraleague conversational tiffs led to payoffs at the gate.

"All of you have some guy in your league that you don't like. Well there's no use keeping it a secret. But if you are going to have a fight with a visiting club, be sure to insult them the day they come to town, not the last day of the series. It pays off better."

Of personal relationship with fans, Veeck said:

"Be certain to visit hte customers at the game. You have to watch the game from somewhere, so why not from the bleachers? You can't be ashamed of the seats you are selling, so you'd better be seen in 'em once in a while yourself."

Mexican Says U. S. Baseball Feud Is Over

Mexico City, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—Mexican High Commissioner of Baseball Alejandro Aguilar Reyes announced tonight that "all differerences between the Mexican League and organized baseball in the United States have ended."

He predicted formal recognition of the outlaw Latin loop by organzed baseball "in the near future" as a result of preliminary "peace talks" with Walter Mulbry, assistant to A. B. (Happy) Chandler, United States baseball commissioner.

"Mr. Mulbry told me that Commissioner Chandler is greatly interested in reachng an agreement respecting the sovereignty of Mexican baseball," Aguilar said in a formal statement.

Reyes said he was optimistic that a formal agreement "pardoning" the Mexican League for its raids on major league stars in 1946 could be reached.

Aguilar said one of the bases of such an agreement which he would insist on would be that any player who left organized baseball to play in Mexico would regain their playing rights in the United States. He said this was the most important problem.

Meanwhile, the so-called "peace talks" were adjourned indefinitely while Mulbry and his wife did some sight-seeing outside Mexico.

Mulbry said he would be out of Mexico City "three or four days" and added that he saw no "need" to continue the talks with Aguilar after he returns.

This appeared to indicate that he would await further orders from Chandler.

"All we had anticipated has been accomplished," Mulbry said earlier today. "My talk with Aguilar was merely a friendly gesture."

He declined to comment further.

Babey Rejoins Lions Tonight

Defenseman Walter Babey returns to the Lions' lineup for the clash with the powerful Cleveland Barons on the Uline ice tonight at 8:30. Babey has recovered from a broken thumb.

The locals dropped three of four previous encounters with the Barons but their lone win was scored at the Washington rink.

Cleveland brings to town one of the American Hockey League's top scorers, Ab DeMarco, who has rammed in 52 points.

The Porteous brothers, Dan and Frank, and young Don Slater will lead the Lion attack. This combination has proved particularly effective in recent matches.

Jack Evens Series, 9-9, Hands Bobby Worst Loss

Jack Kramer defeated Bobby Riggs, 6—3, 6—4, to even their nation-wide series at 9-9 before a crowd of approximately 7000 last night at Uline Arena.

Kramer broke Riggs' service once in each set, but those two breaks were all the rangy Kramer needed. He won his own serve on every occasion to hand Riggs his most decisive defeat since the series began.

Pancho Segura and Dinny Pails wage to a draw in their tennis match last night before a crowd of 7000 spectators at Uline Arena.

Segura took the first set, 6—0, but Pails came back to grab the second 11—9.

Breaking Pail's service three times in the first set, Segura took the opener, 6—4. The pigeon-toed Ecuadorian quickly caught the crowd's fancy with his bullet-like two-handed forehand drives.

Pancho broke Pails' service in the initial game and after Pails' drew even at 2—2, Segura moved into a 4—2 lead. Again Pails evened the count, but scrambling about the court in spectacular style, Segura broke Dinny's service and held his own to take the set.

Segura got off to a quick 2—0 lead in the second set but Pails tied it up at 2—2 and went ahead, 4—3. Pancho drew even and from that point on they swapped games until Pails finally took the set, 11—9.

Because of the length of the final set, the match was halted with the score one set each to allow Riggs and Kramer to take the court.

'Blacklist' Hit By Murphy

Boston, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—Robert Murphy, self-styled champion of professional athletes, charged today at a legislative hearing that major league executives operated a "baseball blacklist" which prevented players from testifying there on behalf of a law to outlaw the sport's "reserve clause."

Murphy said that many players opposed the clause, which provided that at the duration of a contract with any club in organized baseball, they remain the property of that club until sold, traded or signed to new terms.

Murphy said he was acting at the request of ball players whose names he said he would not reveal for fear of having them placed on the "blacklist."

However, the only two spokesmen for organized baseball were both veteran major league players, selected as player representatives of the American and National League. They both insisted that the elimination of the clause would "ruin baseball."

The spokesmen were Outfielder Dixie Walker of the Pittsburgh Pirates, representing the National League, and Relief Pitcher and Coach Johnny Murphy of the Boston Red Sox, representing the American League.

They said that if the reserve clause were outlawed, all star baseball players automatically would be bought up by the wealthier clubs.

Area Colleges, Schools Send 19 To Philly Track

Four Washington area schools will have 19 representatives in the Philadelphia Inquirer track meet at Convention Hall tonight.

Maryland and Georgetown have seven in college competition and 12 performers from Cardoza and Phelps are entered in interscholastic events.

Maryland entrants include the one-mile relay team of Ed Matthews, Bob Palmer, Mario Salvanelli and George McGowan; Karl Ruback in the high hurdles, an Jim Umbarger in the 1000-yard handicap.

Billy Mitchell will compete in the 50-yard high hurdles for Georgetown. Cardoza has entrants in four events and Phelps will be represented in the one-mile interscholastic relay.

New Zealand Bets Show $40 Per Capita

Auckland, New Zealand, Jan. 22 (AP).—New Zealand racing had a record betting year in 1947, tax officials said today. They said that $72,650,000 was bet last year, an average of $40 for evey person in the dominion.

The taxmen added that at least a similar amount was bet with bookmakers, illegal in this country and on which no record was kept.

Japs, to Save Face, Hold Own Olympics

Tokyo, Jan. 22 (AP).—Japan, barred from the international olympiad next summer, plans to hold its own "olympic games" at the same time.

This was announced today by the Japan Olympic Society as a gesture "to express respect and felicitation to the international olympics, and also to demonstrate the healthy existence of Japanese athletics."

Terps, Cards Box Tomorrow

A capacity crowd of more than 3000 is expected for the annual boxing match between Maryland and Catholic University tomorrow night at nine o'clock at the C. U. gym.

It will be the twelfth in the series and the Terrapins hold a 5-4 edge with two draws. The Maryland Sugar Bowl champs lost a 4½-3½ decision at West Point last week and Catholic U. lost its opener to Virginia, 5½-2½.

Maryland is sending three undefeated fighters into the ring, although Al Salkowski, 125-pounder, was held to a draw by Army's Vernon Quarstein. Salkowski meets Tommy Cronin who drew with Virginia's Allen Hollingsworth last week.

The others with unblemished records are Ed Rieder, 155-pound knockout artist, who meets Bucky Ennis, Cardinal footballer, and Andy Quatrocchi, 130.

In the heavyweight class Charlie Rohr, C. U. 190-pounder who knocked out his Virginia opponent, clashes with Monty Whipp, 210, who lost to Joe Kiernan, of Army.

A Rose By Any Other . . .

What's in a Name? Plenty for Horsey Folks

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

ACCORDING TO THE ADAGE, a rose by any other name would smell as sweet. But you can't get the horsey folks—race-horsey, that is—to admit there isn't something in a horse's name.

Haight

Down through the years, thoroughbreds have been named for just about everything and everybody. They have been tagged with all sorts of jumbled quotations and mixed letters. In fact at least two were designated by single letters, the shortest names on record being I and O.

Horse people never went into anything as burdensome as the dog enthusiasts — for instance, Rosecrest of Wellington Manor, III—but until the Jockey Club limit the number of letters, we did have some that went in for longitude.

Many owners have a yen for all names to begin with a certain letter. Best known was the late Kentucky Col. E. R. Bradley and his famous "B's" for Bubbling Over, Broker's Tip and many others. Washington's John Manfuso was strictly an "A" man, naming Aneroid, Art Brown, Ashame and many others.

Horses' names run in cycles. Time was when it was fashionable to include the name of the sire in every offspring's monicker. Most of us remember the Shasta, Fair, Wise and other like group names that went to hundreds of steeds.

BY GOING back over the list of horses, it is possible to tell, by the majority of names, to which era they belong. After World War I, horses popped up like Man o' War, Doughboy, Machine Gun, etc. The depression days brought Dead Broke, Bank Crash, Bread Line, etc. The growing of commercial air travel was reflected in Air Hostess, Forced Landing, Propellor, etc.

Names have gone along with aerial progress, too. For instance, last year's Kentucky Derby winner, Jet Pilot. At Hialeah, there is a baby colt owned by the famous Calumet Farm who is called Flying Disc.

In looking over the list of Kentucky Derby and Preakness winners, it is noticeable that almost without exception the winners have had good, solid names. The likes of Freezy Sneezy, Shady Sady, Housemaid's Knee, Sallapatica, Asyouis, and Screwball are conspicuous by their absence. In both big races, horses with one name are in the majority — Assault, Polynesian, Pensive, Alsab, Whirlaway, Lawrin, Omaha, etc. There isn't a winner with a name with a humorous slant.

Few horses named for persons have been successful in either race. Not since 1929 has there been such a success. Oddly, that year both the Derby and Preakness winners were in that group —Clyde Van Dusen and Dr. Freeland. Incidently, both won in the mud, but we can't say they dragged the names in the mud.

THERE HAVE been many aptly-named horses. One of the best known was a stake performer, Royal Blunder, who raced for years in Maryland. He was by the sire Royal Minstrel who, they say, took breeding matters in his own hands and jumped a fence.

During the early days of Hialeah, a horse appeared in the entries named La Cherie. This happened to be the name of a notorious woman in Miami, P. A. B. Widener. Mr. Real Big of the track, said a horse with that name could not run at Hialeah.

So the owner applied and was given permission to change it to Hadtobe. The joke was on Widener, however, because henceforth the thoroughbred's name was shown as "Hadtobe (formerly raced as La Cherie)."

Doubleheader at Armory Tops High Card

B-CC, Blair Clash at College Park

Two star attractions are on today's 20-game schoolboy basketball card for the Greater Washington area.

In an 8 p. m. interhigh doubleheader at the National Guard Armory, Western's Red Raiders and Eastern's Ramblers risk their co-occupancy of first place against two of the strongest contenders. Western meets Woodrow Wilson and Eastern takes on Central.

In the other feature Bethesda-Chevy Chase clashes with Montgomery-Blair at 8 p. m. at College Park. This is the first of two meetings between the two schools that will decide the Montgomery County championship.

Unbeaten Western will be favored to cop its eighth victory of the season. The Raiders count as their interhigh victims Roosevelt by 43-32 and Coolidge by 32-30. Wilson nipped Central, 30-28, and lost to Roosevelt, 35-31.

Spearheading the Raiders has been lanky Wayne Brizendine with 29 points in two league games.

Eastern has beaten Coolidge, 47-43, in league play, but holds an unimpressive 2-4 record against a nonleague slate of foes.

After dropping their opener to Wilson, the Vikings of Central came back last week to upset McKinley Tech, 56-40.

The Montgomery County game pits two of the top suburban teams against each other. Blair has a 7-1 record compared to Bethesda's 7-2.

Russians Shift Oil Price Stand

Vienna, Jan. 22 (U.P.).—Russia has dropped without explanation demands that the price be doubled on oil products delivered to the Austrian government from Soviet-operated fields at Zistersdorf, one of Austria's chief material assets, the government said today.

A spokesman for the Austrian government would not elaborate on a single sentence of the communique saying the Russians had given up their demand officially.

Bids and Proposals 6

COMMISSIONERS, D. C., WASHINGTON, D. C., January 19, 1948. Sealed proposals will be received in Room 509, District Building, until 2:00 P. M., E.S.T., January 30, 1948, and then publicly opened and read for the Cleaning and Lining of Watermains at Various Locations in the District of Columbia, involving approximately 16,000 feet of 20-inch diameter watermain and 7,300 linear feet of 24-inch diameter watermain. $3,000,000
WASHINGTON SUBURBAN SANITARY DISTRICT, MARYLAND.
BOND SALE
GUARANTEED BY MONTGOMERY AND PRINCE GEORGES COUNTIES.

Sealed proposals will be received until 2 o'clock p. m., Eastern Standard Time, on Wednesday, February 4, 1948, by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission at its office, 4017 Hamilton Street, Hyattsville, Md., for the following bonds of the Washington Suburban Sanitary District, dated February 1, 1948, maturing February 1 in the years hereinafter stated, without option of prior payment:

$3,000,000—Series "QQQ" bonds, maturing annually $75,000 1949 to 1988, both inclusive, to be issued under the authority of Capter 122 of the Acts of 1918 of the General Assembly of Maryland, as amended, for water main and sewer construction.

Denomination $1,000; principal and semiannual interest (A and F-1) payable at the Prince Georges Bank and Trust Company, Hyattsville, Md., or at the Equitable Trust Company, Baltimore, Md., or at the Chemical Bank and Trust Company, New York City, N. Y., at holder's option; general obligations; unlimited tax; coupon bonds registerable as to principal alone; exempt from taxation by the State of Maryland and by the counties and municipalities in said State; unconditionally guaranteed as to both principal and interest by Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties by indorsement on each bond; form of bonds substantially the same as bonds of the last preceding series. There will be no auction. Bonds will be delivered about March 1, 1948, at place of purchaser's choice.

The Series "QQQ" bonds will be awarded at the highest price, not less than par and accrued interest, offered for the lowest interest rate bid upon, not exceeding 4% per annum, in a multiple of 1/10 or 1/8 of 1%, and no bid may name more than one rate for the bonds of this issue.

Each proposal must be enclosed in a sealed envelope marked "Proposal for Bonds," and be accompanied by a certified check upon an incorporated bank or trust company, payable unconditionally to the order of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission for 1% of the amount of bonds bid for. The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

In the event that prior to the delivery of the bonds the income received by private holders from bonds of the same type and character shall be taxable by the terms of any Federal income tax law, the successful bidder may, at his election, be relieved of his obligations under the contract to purchase the bonds and in such case the deposit accompanying his bid will be returned.

The approving opinion of Messrs. Mitchell and Pershing, New York City, will be furnished the purchasers without cost.

WASHINGTON SUBURBAN SANITARY COMMISSION
DWIGHT B. GALT, Chairman.
LACY SHAW
LELAND G. WORTHINGTON,
Commissioners.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, JANUARY 23, 1948

Youngs' Fete Highlights Party Front

ENGINEER COMMISSIONER and Mrs. Gordon Young entertained at the second in a series of afternoon parties yesterday at their home on Hawthorne st., inviting 100 or more of their friends from diplomatic, service and resident society.

To brighten a dull mid-winter day Mrs. Young had chosen a long black print frock splashed with bright flowers she had arranged a symphony of pink flowers on the candlelit tea table.

Mrs. Daniel I. Sultan, widow of the District Engineer Commissioner, and Mrs. Alan Clark, jr., wife of Colonel Clark of the Engineer Corps, had been asked to assist.

At the tea table in turn were Mrs. Harold Burton, Mrs. John W. Snyder, Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, Mrs. Karl Stefan, Mrs. Conger Pratt, Mrs. Walt Horan, Mrs. John D. McMillan, and Mrs. Charles C. Glover.

Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson were among those dropping in during the course of the late afternoon and others were Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Leslie Groves, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. David McCoach, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. George Richards, Col. and Mrs. Robert Fletcher, Col. and Mrs. George Cocheu, Maj. Gen. Frank Cocheu, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Richard H. Jordan. Mr. and Mrs. John Steelman, and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Biffle.

Then there were Judge and Mrs. George Neilson, Justice Richmond Keech, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Galloway, Commissioner and Mrs. Guy Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mosier, Mr. and Mrs. John Wiley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tompkins, Mr. and Mrs. James O'Donnell Moran, Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Witt, and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Taliaferro. Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja stopped in; so did Sir Wilmot and Lady Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGarraghy, and Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Ruddock.

Dinner Dance Honors Miss Anita Cajigas

MISS ANITA CAJIGAS, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, who will be married next month to Flying Officer George Mattusch, Royal Canadian Air Forces, was guest of honor at a dinner dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beekman last night. Mrs. Walter Beekman, niece of the hosts, assisted in receiving.

Among those dancing sambas, rumbas and square dances were Senator and Mrs. Dennis Chavez, Dr. and Mrs. Cajigas, Mme. Vladimir Rybar, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Arnold, Miss Beatrice Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brite, Judge and Mrs. George Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Macpherson, Comdr. and Mrs. John Elwell, Representative and Mrs. Eugene Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan H. Crowell, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, Mrs. Walter Fleming of Rochester, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Hurwitz and the latter's sister, Mrs. Dolly Silverman, here from London.

Mrs. Cleveland Newton gave a luncheon party yesterday for Miss Cajigas. The party was given for a company of 34 at the Congressional Club.

Among the guests were Mme. Camille Chautemps, Mme. Vladimir Rybar, Mrs. August Boas, Mrs. James Souby, Mrs. James Durnan, Mrs. Arthur Vennell, Mrs. James Macpherson, Miss Beatrice Moore, Miss Dorothy Rutherford, Mrs. Louis Renfrow, Mrs. Jackson Davis, Miss Julie Halloran, Mrs. Edward Eugene Cox, Mrs. Walter Wyeth, Miss Cynthia Hill, Mrs. Norman Keith, Mrs. Jean Pierre-Ga-

Women Stars From 'Behind the Mike' To Convene Here

By Peggy Preston

WHAT'S life like behind the mike for women broadcasters? What manner of person is back of that easy, casual voice that comes over the airways, dispensing information and advice on a multitude of matters, introducing a parade of important, glamorous guests?

Today we're going to introduce you to a few of these women. We'll go "behind the mike" for interviews with them for a change, and you can learn what they look like, how they dress and what their working days are like.

They were hard to corral for interviews this week. Every radio gal in town is up to her ears in work for the fifth annual convention of the Association of Women Broadcasters, which will be held here, January 28 to February 1, at the Mayflower Hotel. National membership is 1150 and most of these are expected to be on hand for the meeting. Local members, headed by Ruth Crane, acting national president, have arranged a schedule that would tax the stamina of Atlas.

They'll speed the visitors from sightseeing tours to panel sessions; from lunch to a full afternoon of speechmaking; from dinner to receptions and from embassy teas to a party in their honor at the home of Mrs. George Mesta. It's really going to be something to talk about—when they get time.

But women of radio are used to having only seconds to spare. One general impression we got in our series of interviews was that life on the airways is a hectic one—but that's the way the girls like it. They wouldn't change jobs with anybody.

PRESENTING:

Hazel Markel, titian-haired acting program manager of WTOP, who proved women can attain top executive jobs in radio when she received the appointment early this month . . . Now does a double job, continuing as director of education and community service for the station, and is also heard every Sunday at 9:30 with "D. C. Dateline" . . . Is a confirmed "joiner," belongs to almost every important club in town, holds office in many of them . . . Her day starts at 9 a. m. and each hour sees her tackling new phases of her interesting job, which corresponds with that of managing editor of a newspaper.

Married to a newspaper man, she has a comfortable apartment in Georgetown, but seldom is in it . . . for recreation she likes a quick trip to New York to see the latest Broadway plays . . . Her love of the theater dates back to her early childhood when she sang on the Orpheum Circuit in the Middle West . . . later went into stock, but was dissuaded by her family who thought she should go to college . . . After graduation taught dramatics, studied abroad (where she became a linguist) and sometime later went into the radio field in Portland, Oreg., and Seattle, Wash. . . . Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman Wants Son, 26, to Live at Home While Finishing College Work; But His Dad Says It's Bad for Man That Age to Stick to Mother

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My boy, 26, who served four years in the Navy, is now attending college in a distant city, taking advantage of Government compensation; but for economic reasons he wishes to come home and finish his schooling here.

My husband strenuously objects to this program. He says a grown man has no business being around his mother day after day and thinks it best that my boy not be at home too much.

He was home for about six months after leaving the Navy and liked to sleep late and listen to the radio and drink coffee throughout the day, but there was continual friction about it.

I thought it only natural that he would want rest and relaxation after four years in the Navy, but my husband said it was no way for a grown man to conduct himself. He will consent to his coming home only if he gets a job to keep him occupied when he isn't at school or studying; but his courses are much too heavy to permit that.

Dad's Industrious; Son's Intellectual

MY HUSBAND, a veteran of World War I, is a hard worker, always on the job from early to late, and has no patience with one who isn't a hard worker. My boy is more the intellectual type and doesn't like physical exertion.

I think my husband's attitude is most unreasonable and due to just plain jealousy. Once when he had been drinking our boy ordered him to leave home and stay away, which so enraged my husband that I feared he might inflict physical violence on the boy. He has never forgotten the incident and I think it colors his present attitude.

We have been married 28 years, own a comfortable home and all the conveniences one could wish, and I don't want a divorce. But I am determined to give my boy a home to which to come until he finishes school.

So the problem is: Whether to break up my home, to provide a place where my son can come for rest and relaxation? Or to force my husband to allow our boy to come here, where we are already established? I am anxiously awaiting your advice. B. A.

Dad Shows More Sense Than Mom

DEAR B. A.: You would be a fool to break up your home only for the purpose of trying to provide your adult-age son with a feathered nest and hovering mother-care for a few more years.

Have you read Dr. Edward Strecker's book "Their Mothers' Sons?" If you haven't, you should. It was written about the sons of mothers like you, and is based on the doctor's Army experiences with young servicemen still emotionally undelivered from "mom."

If your mind were open to truth, Dr. Strecker's sage, sympathetic but hard-hitting package of information would help you to realize that there is a lot of natural good sense (if also a streak of rankling jealousy) in your husband's tough opposition to your maternal attitude.

Wean the Son; Cleave to Dad

POSSIBLY it's already too late to make a man of your son, whose plausibly argued desire to return to the comforts of home suggests that he is beginning to run away from life back to infantile dependency, knowing that your arms are open to reclaim and hold him on that basis.

However, if he's still got a chance of reversing that unmanly trend and heading off such collapse of character, which will be a final collapse if you coddle him now,—if he's got a chance, the way you can help him get on his feet and hit his stride as a man among men is by (1) putting aside your own smother-love yen to fetch him back, and (2) generously using all your powers of persuasion to foster independence of spirit and self-reliant ambitions in him at this turning point.

In all probability you've been assiduously fomenting his homesickness by stressing your longing to see him, your concern for his comfort, the ease and conveniences that would be his at home, etc., etc.,—and my advice is: 1. Cut it out. 2. Read Dr. Strecker's book aforementioned. And 3. Hang on to your husband for dear life. Your existence would be based on sand without him. M. H.

Mrs. Truman's Coming, Too

First Ladies (in Doll Form) Will Be Tea Party Guests Of Democratic Club

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

DID you ever suspect there is a Dollology Club right here in Washington? Well, there is, and Mrs. Josephine Jones Taylor, who is showing some of her extraordinary dolls teatime tomorrow at the Woman's National Democratic Club, is vice president. There are 60 active members, and they've staged doll exhibits all over the country.

Mrs. Jones Taylor started her profitable hobby in self-defense when her big brothers manhandled her pet dolls. She sold some of her first creations for a few dollars, which was big money to a kid, but made her first success with those outlandishly long-legged dolls.

Because she acted the role of Dolly Madison in a school play, her next concoction was a replica of the fascinating First Lady in a bouffant ball gown. After Dolly Madison, Mrs. J. T. was definitely in the groove; other First Ladies followed. The Penwomen's Club, recognizing her really professional touch, boosted her enthusiastically. Now there are 35 First Ladies, most of them in inaugural costumes copied from those in the Smithsonian Institution. The faces, though, have been tough to make, since the Smithsonian makes no attempt at actual likenesses, uses the same head on all models. (The head, says Mrs. Jones Taylor, is copied from an early illustration of Cordelia in Shakespeare's "King Lear.") So she has done the most arduous amount of historical research, trying to ascertain coloring and features. Mrs. Truman, who, of course, shared no inaugural ceremony, by personal request is dressed in blue velvet. The set, all about 12 inches high, has been duplicated innumerable times. She's dipped into character dolls, making, for example, the dolls used on the book cover of Ethel Huston's "Uncle Lancey for President," and right now is completing a series of historical ballerinas, all in correct ballet poses. Other local "characters," immortalized in silk and wire, include Agriculture Secretary Anderson's daughter Nancy in her Cherry Blossom Queen costume, Louise Houghteling in debutant array, and hundreds of "miniatures" of brides, all daughters of friends and members of the Penwomen's Club.

Baby Dolls Have Their Season

CHRISTMAS time Mrs. Jones Taylor goes strictly commercial, making baby dolls—the newest sans buttons, hooks, everything in plastic material which can be swished clean with a cloth. During the war, by the way, she created display and lapel dolls, their skirts fashioned from War Savings Stamps.

She has experimented with all kinds of materials, but the hard way is still best—wire, padded with cotton, covered with silk so that everything from legs to fingers is flexible. Silk floss makes the hair, features are embroidered in silk, plastic stuff covers the hands so she can paint on real fingernails.

Dresses are all cut from scraps of antique or very beautiful materials. Her fans send her scraps of lace and velvet from all over the world. (She's in the local telephone book as Mrs. R. J. Taylor.) Mrs. J. T. works incessantly, spurred on, she says, because her husband insists nights on listening to all the radio murder mysteries, so it's impossible for her to read or do much of anything else! Her son is an artist, her daughter a lawyer, a legal adviser to Civilian Intelligence out in Tokyo. Meanwhile mama has a wonderful time with dolls!

THINGS WE'VE LIKED ABOUT TOWN. W. L. White's (author of "Report on the Russians") spirited vocal rendition of the Volga boat song.—The Amber bead bracelet of Mrs. William Bankhead, widow of the former Speaker of the House.—Mme. Ezio Pinza's black lace over pink satin evening dress with a row of tiny buttons down the bodice.—The tangerine ice, served in tangerine shells, at Colonel Schiffeler's reception for Pinza at the Hotel Raleigh.—Mrs. Clayton Adams' double bows amid her upswept curls—

MRS. ADAMS

The shirred satin muffs carried by the bridesmaids at Helen Marye Thomas' wedding to Jesse Spalding 3d; Mrs. George Malone's green, red, violet lace dress—from Lanvin, years ago, and prettier than anything you can buy today—the courtly manners of former Senator Ashurst of Arizona—State Department Joseph Satterthwaite's exciting account of his trip, as first United States political representative, to far away Nepal. Walking over the mountains to a hidden valley, stuffed with palaces filled with comfortable furniture, motor cars on the streets—all brought in pick-a-back by coolies.

Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow Entertain at Cocktails

MR. AND MRS. EMERSON BIGELOW who have been spending a good bit of time in New York in the last few months, caught up on news of their Washington friends at their cocktail party Wednesday at their Georgetown home.

They also caught a brief glimpse of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Milburn of Westbury, old friends from Long Island, and Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson Wheeler, who are motoring together to Palm Beach and stopped off in Washington for the day.

Others there were Col. and Mrs. Clayton Beaman, Col. and Mrs. Noah Brinson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Bartelt, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Diggs, Miss Janet Fish, Ralph Fleming of New York; Mrs. Homer Ferguson, without the Senator, who was busy on "the Hill;" Senator and Mrs. Ralph Flanders and the letter's sister, Mrs. W. H. Beardsley, who is visiting them from Vermont; Senator Theodore F. Green, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Houghteling and Mr. and Mrs. James P. Hendrick.

Still others were Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Huntington, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Magnuson, Mr. and Mrs. Chambers Oliphant, Dr. and Mrs. S. R. L. Penrose, he's president of the American University in Beirut; Dr. and Mrs. Oscar Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Nathan Wyeth and Frank Wisner, Special Assistant to the Secretary of State, and Mrs. Wisner.

Visit in Florida

Mr. and Mrs. David Stern left yesterday, by motor, for Miami, Fla., where they will vacation for several weeks.

MEREDITH YOUNG is newcomer to Station WOL, has made friends and influenced people with her "Listeners' Exchange" from 9:30 to 10 a. m. . . . Listeners write in letters expressing opinions, asking questions and answering questions heard in previous broadcasts . . . Sometimes they send their favorite poems, recipes, lists of books or music . . . They ask her everything from how to cook a fish to how to catch a beau, and Meredith has a ready answer for each one.

Pretty, with blond hair and wide eyes, Miss Young is married and has lived in Arlington most of her life, although she was born in Texas. Before joining the staff of WOL in November she served as chief of radio, Eastern area, Red Cross. Hobbies are acting (little theater groups), swimming and sewing.

Marshall Plan Denmark's Hope, Christensen Says

"The Marshall Plan is the guiding star of the people in Denmark," Carlo Christensen, chief of the Danish Chancery here, told members of the Capital Division, Women's National Farm and Garden Club at a luncheon meeting yesterday held in the YWCA.

He said that his people would find repayment high, but hoped to settle by selling farm and dairy products to the United States.

The speaker pointed out that two thirds of the Danish population are engaged in farming and the other one third in small businesses. "Denmark hopes to export a large quantity of grain this year," he said.

Mme. de Kauffman, wife of the Danish Ambassador, was ranking guest, and Mrs. Christensen, wife of the speaker, a special guest. Mrs. Robert Maltby, club president, presided.

On Being a Thoughtful Guest

Never go into your room or anyone else's room and place your suitcase directly on the bed. It not only is apt to soil the spread but many times bugs are attached to the bottom of the bag and you may cause yourself or your hostess some serious trouble in getting rid of them. If you have no trunk rest and must elevate the suitcase, place it on a radiator or wooden chair.

Primer for Pie Making

Novice May Bake Tender, Flaky Crust

By Lucia Brown

NO less a person than George Washington's cook gets credit for originating one of our country's favorite desserts—the fruit pie.

That was back in 1779, when the shortage of meat was being keenly felt by the Revolutionary Forces. Up to that time "pie" in America meant something made of beefsteak or kidneys and pastry. Through grim necessity, General Washington's cook got to work and made one out of apples. His "sagacity" won written praise from the Father of Our Country and started a fad that's lasted to this day.

History doesn't record how G. W.'s cook tossed together the pastry for this fruity tidbit. His procedure was probably pretty informal—a pinch of this, a "glob" of that, and a handful of something else—and bore little resemblance to modern, exact recipes.

It's these recipes, though, that make it possible for even a novice cook today to bake tender, flaky crust. There's no chance for leathery pastry—or for the crumbly, too-rich kind, either—if she follows carefully the following directions:

PIE SHELL

1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons lard or vegetable shortening
2½ tablespoons cold water (just enough to make stiff dough)

Sift flour once, measure, add salt, and sift together into bowl. Cut in 4 tablespoons shortening very thoroughly, using light strokes of blender or 2 knives. (Mixture should first become fluffy and fine like meal, then start to clump together.)

Add remaining 2 tablespoons shortening in several pieces and chop in lightly just until divided into pieces the size of large peas. Sprinkle on water, a small amount at a time, mixing lightly with blender or fork. When all particles are moistened, press pastry into a cake, cover with damp cloth, and let stand 15 to 30 minutes.

Roll out on lightly floured board to ⅛ inch thickness. Fit loosely in 9-inch pie pan. Trim pastry 1 inch larger than pan and fold edge to form a standing trim. Flute with fingers. Prick pastry with fork, pricking all over and very thoroughly around the bottom curve of the pan.

If the pie shell is baked without filling, have oven temperature at 450 degrees and bake 10 to 12 minutes or until slightly browned. If shell and filling are baked together, following baking directions in filling recipe.

Pastry Pointers

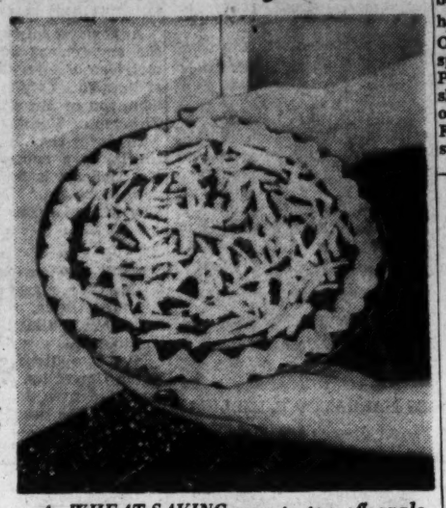
A PASTRY BLENDER is a fine aid in crust making. Blend 2/3 of the shortening in first with short, light, brushing strokes. Tilt the blender so that the end wire does the work. The last third of the shortening should be chopped in quickly, holding the blender upright. Stop just as soon as pieces are size of peas if you want flaky crust.

ICE-COLD WATER is best for pastry. Sprinkle it over the flour mixture, tossing with blender or fork so that all particles are moistened. Then press the loose mixture into a cake and let stand 15 to 30 minutes so the moisture becomes absorbed. (Use barely enough water. Too much makes pastry tough.)

PASTRY CLOTHS over the board and pin facilitate rolling. Flour each lightly and roll dough with light strokes. Roll in all directions, pinching cracked edges together. If pastry sticks, loosen with a spatula and dust flour on board. To lift the pastry, fold one half lightly over the other half. Place loosely to pie pan, open out, and pat down to fit pan well. Scissors are handy for cutting away the extra pastry.

Homemade Pastry Mix

A smart way to speed up pie-making is to prepare a large batch of your own pastry mix and keep it on hand in a jar. Use all pastry ingredients except water. Mix 4½ cups sifted flour, 2 tablespoons salt, and 1½ cups shortening in the manner just described. Keep it stored until needed. Then, for a 9-inch pie shell, use 1½ cups mix and about 2½ tablespoons water. For 2-crust pie, use 3 cups mix and about 5 tablespoons water.



A WHEAT-SAVING way to top off apple or mince pie is with cheese instead of crust. Scatter grated cheese over the top of cooked pie and place beneath pre-heated broiler until the cheese is melted and lightly browned. Serve hot

Hamburgers May Be Surprises

Put the delicious trimmings that usually go on top of a hamburger, on the inside! This way you'll not have to worry about a dripping bun, and besides you'll have a real surprise burger! Prepare a regular hamburger mixture of beef, salt and pepper. Make very thin patties. On top of each pattie place a very thin slice of onion, then a tablespoon of sweet pickle relish, and then another thin hamburger pattie. Pinch the edges of the patties together. Pan fry in lightly greased skillet or broil 2 inches below source of heat. When nicely browned on one side, turn and brown on the second side. Serve in a large bun. For a variation of this idea, use horseradish, catsup, or mustard instead of the pickle relish. Any of them will make a zippy meat treat.

LUXURY LINES

A large shipment of pats de foie gras from France has just reached Washington, the biggest since the war's end. The makings for homemade sundaes . . . one jar each of pineapple, fudge, cherry and walnut topping . . . are now on sale in an attractive kit that should make a hit with the youngsters in any household. Pickled avocados . . . for use in making unusual salads . . . are a new item with a local store.

MARKET MEMO

MORE and better "hen parties!" That's the aim of a campaign now in progress to get American families to eat "a hen a week" . . . and the Government, poultry growers, and food trade will appreciate your cooperation.

Aim is to eat up a lot of hens now that are eating up a lot of grain . . . poor producers that won't be laying many eggs this spring anyway. Grain will be saved for hungry Europe . . . pennies will be saved by American housewives, since hen prices aren't high . . . and a lot of good eating, in the form of chicken fricassees, pies, stews and salads, will be enjoyed by American families.

Good news on the vegetable market this week is that lettuce has dropped in price. It's down about a third at wholesale compared with a few weeks ago. Lots of lettuce is coming from the Southwest and prices are expected to go even lower. Celery, cauliflower and lima beans all are slightly cheaper, too. Fresh limas are unusually low for this time of year. White celery is more abundant and cheaper than green Paschall. Carrots are about the same as last week, but considerably cheaper than a few weeks ago.

Anjou and Bosc pears are good buys in the fruit field. Fine pears are about $2 a box cheaper at wholesale than last year. And have you tried any Temple oranges? The season is short on these and will be over in a week or so. They're a "zipper-skinned" fruit, a cross between the orange and tangerine. Flavored like fine oranges, they peel like tangerines.

WARNING-

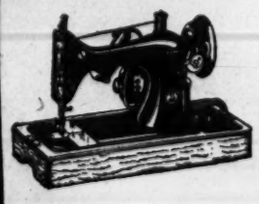
SEWING MACHINE BUYERS!

The only place you can obtain a new household SINGER* Sewing Machine — or one reconditioned by SINGER — is from your SINGER SEWING CENTER located conveniently near you!

Any other stores or repair shops which offer "rebuilt," "factory-rebuilt," or "reconditioned" machines are not sponsored in any way by SINGER.

HERE ARE THE FACTS!

So-called "rebuilt" machines are machines which have old SINGER heads, refinished to look like new, usually rebuilt with parts from other manufacturers, and placed on cabinets not built by SINGER. They are made to look like SINGER SEWING MACHINES, but they are not guaranteed by SINGER.



Listed below are the SINGER SEWING CENTERS located in the area served by this newspaper. At any of these places and ONLY at these places can you obtain...

1. Brand-new SINGER Sewing Machines (priced from $79.50)
2. SINGER Sewing Machines reconditioned by SINGER with warranted parts.
3. Guaranteed repairs by SINGER experts based on written estimates furnished in advance.

WHY YOU SHOULD ORDER NOW

Even though production of new SINGER Sewing Machines is now in full swing, the demand is still increasing. So, in order to get your new SINGER, put your name on the list now.

* FOR YOUR PROTECTION

SINGER sells its machines only through SINGER SEWING CENTERS identified by the Red "S" on the window and never through department stores, dealers, or other outlets.

Church Women Plan Evening Programs

Members of the newly organized night branch of the Washington Council of Church Women were entertained Sunday at a tea given by the Council president, Mrs. Theodore O. Wedel.

Chosen to represent their churches in a committee to plan evening programs for business and professional women were the following:

Miss Mary Collins, Miss Mary Nuchols, Miss Mildren Crump, Mrs. Jesse Anthony, Mrs. Freida Feissner, Miss Marjorie Swanson, Mrs. T. W. Taylor, Mrs. Helen R. M. Pinkney, Miss Marie Fiore and Miss Janet Stoebner.

The new group's first project will be a night service on the World Day of Prayer, the first Friday in Lent.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

Can you tell me if there is any place in Washington where I can get my ears pierced?
W. C. W.

Many doctors (general practitioners) will pierce ears so that old-fashioned type earrings may be worn. If you do not know a local physician, telephone one of the organizations listed under "Physicians Exchanges" in the yellow section of the telephone book and ask for the name of one, explaining what you wish to have done.

Can you advise me how to remove and prevent mold from forming in a clothes closet, on one outside wall, and also on the floor? Will the door have to be left open to avoid damp?
H. K. A.

Wipe floor and woodwork with a cloth dipped in water to which a little kerosene has been added. Or, if necessary, wash the wood with warm water and soapsuds. Leave the door open afterward and let wood dry out thoroughly. A commercial paint cleaner can be used, if you wish, to get the mold stains off painted surfaces.

If the air outside the closet is warm and dry, keeping the door open would be an easy way to prevent mold. However, humidifiers are sold by a local firm which can be used to keep damp closets dry. When these become saturated with moisture they can be put in the oven and dried out, then returned to the closet. Or you can buy solid calcium chloride and keep an open container of it in the closet to absorb the moisture. This must be replaced with fresh chemical when it becomes liquid. In using any humidifier, the door of the closet should be kept closed.

I washed my little boy's light blue cotton suit and, by accident, a red sock faded almost all over the pants. I boiled them in water and soap chips but with no success, although the color didn't fade. Is there anything that can be done to get rid of the stains? B. M. M.

Sodium perborate is a safe bleach for colorfast fabrics if it is used quickly and rinsed out thoroughly. It may remove the red spots, although such dye stains are quite stubborn. Sponge over absorbent pad with liquid made of 2 tablespoons sodium perborate to 1 cup of water. Or stretch the stained cloth over a bowl of hot water, dampen the stain with water, and dust the powdered sodium perborate on it. Let stand a minute or two; then sponge or rinse well with water. The perborate can be purchased in drug stores.

I have just purchased an old farm house which I am redecorating. The floors of the house are wide pine boards, two inches thick, and are now stained dark. I intend to have these floors sanded, but am uncertain whether to keep them the same color. My friends tell me that dark floors are very hard to keep clean. Is this so? And what would be the best way to clean them if I choose the dark stain? I should prefer to keep them the same color as I think it looks more authentic. R. A. H.

Some old pine has a warm, rich shade, and it may be when you get the floors cleaned off, you'll want to leave the wood in its natural tone. It is true that dust and lint show up more on a very dark floor. However, certain other types of dark soil don't show up as much as on light wood. The use of wax will facilitate your keeping the floor clean. It will make it easy to pick up the dust through regular use of an untreated dust mop. Badly soiled spots can be removed with turpentine or liquid wax. Scratches can be treated in the same way. Water will make white spots on a waxed floor and should be wiped up immediately. Such white spots require rewaxing. The floor should be completely rewaxed about twice yearly. If it becomes very soiled, all the old wax can be cleaned off with one of the prepared wax removers, which presents no fire hazard, or with turpentine, which should be used only in a well-ventilated room with all precautions against fire taken. The floor can then be rewaxed.

How do I polish a very tarnished decorative teapot which is probably made of copper? It has multicolored inlaid designs and was hand-wrought in China. The inside of the teapot is a dull silver or lead color. I have assumed it is made of copper since this is the color it most resembles, but I may be wrong in this assumption. B. B.

Apply a good quality metal polish to the teapot with a soft cloth. Use a soft brush on the designs. Let polish dry thoroughly, then rub with a fresh soft cloth to achieve a luster.

I have a woolen dress from which the cleaner has been unable to remove the odor of underarm perspiration. Is there anything I can do to remove this odor? R. N. E.

Moisten the area under the arm with clear water and dust it with powdered pepsin. Allow to stand for 30 minutes and brush thoroughly. If this doesn't remove all of the odor, repeat the treatment.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Runs His Business on the Easy Payment Plan

A subscriber writes to discuss several matters pertaining to food and clothing collections for shipment overseas. At the end of her letter there's a postscript which goes:

"Please let us know through the District Line whether you do all your work free of charge."

No, The Washington Post gives me some money every week, and then at the end of the year the Internal Revenue people call for whatever is left over.

However, the readers don't have to pay anything except attention.

SILENT—AS THE "L" IN SCIENCE, JIMMIE

Six-year-old Jimmie Frank of 10725 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., brought home his report card recently, and was studying it with great interest.

There was no grade for one of the categories, so Jimmie asked, "What's this word, Mother?"

"That's 'science'," replied Mrs. Frank. "Why?"

"Then I should have gotten an 'A' in it," countered Jimmie. "Doesn't science mean keeping quiet?"

PERSONAL NOTES

Jerry (Deep-Freeze) Strong, WINX: Look, bub, I was only kidding. But you cut me to the quick with that broadcast about "drawing the line at reading the District Line." Where do you get jokes like that, Jerry—out of your cold storage locker? Those jokes are so old they're stronger than Strong. Your oil conservation idea is oil right, but don't you think you've been fueling the public long enough? Or do you think there's no fuel like an oil fuel?

PIED TYPE DEPT.

George F. Teters of 4244 Benning rd. ne. forwards an ad which appeared recently in one of our afternoon contemporaries.

It offers an $8.95 television set for $739.

George says: "If it were the other way around, and I could get a $739 set for $8.95, they wouldn't have to coax me very hard."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Beautiful male cat, black with white throat and paws. Loves children." (Warfield 7347).

"We found a small, half-frozen pup on our doorstep, and because we couldn't keep him, we had to turn him over to the Arlington Dog Pound (Owens 7933). They'll have to put him to sleep unless somebody will give him a home. I've informed the pound that I'd be willing to pay the license fee if the pup is claimed by a boy or girl who can't afford it." (W. A. Brown, 3102 S. Hayes st., Arlington, Va.)

MISCELLANY

Our new telephone books will probably be in two parts because Washington has grown so large that a single book would be too bulky . . . Boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 18 who are interested in the Civil Air Patrol can get further information about it by calling Lieut. William L. Kiker, jr., at Ludlow 2391 after 5:30 p. m. . . . The two ladies who obtained kittens on Sunday, January 18, are asked to contact the donor at Taylor 2960 . . . Elaine Prestwood of 5030 Bradley blvd., Chevy Chase, Md., takes issue with the District Liner who called this column "wacky." Inasmuch as Elaine accompanies her protest with some cash for Children's Hospital, I find myself strongly prejudiced in favor of her side of the argument . . . Tokens for the hospital have been received from Attorney Harold S. Harrison (also cash) and from Rosalie Holloway of the Arlington Navy Annex . . . Memo to scores of muttering cab drivers: Mr. Keneipp says that he's going to lengthen that right-turn light which has been bottlenecking westbound Minnesota ave. traffic trying to go downtown via Pennsylvania ave. se.

ADD SIGNS

Irving Cooper of 2916 Georgia ave. nw. says that a tire store on 14th st. is displaying this sign:

"Tire Sale—All Sizes Reduced."

Mrs. Thelma P. Murio of 419 Oglethorpe st. nw. likes the sign which appears on a truck owned by a local repair company:

"Give Us The Breaks."

Joe Kay of 1132 Ninth st. nw. muttered to himself, "I know just what kind they are," when he saw this sign on Piney Branch rd.:

"Slow Men at Work."

ADD NAMES

Elizabeth Renalds of 312 W. Main st., Front Royal, Va., reminds us that South Carolina boasts a town named Ninety Six.

AIN'T WE GOT FUN!

And make some dough thereby
Would you agree, my sweet,

Mary Worth's Government Girl Contest Rules

Details of the Mary Worth Government Girl Contest follow:

1. The Mary Worth Government Girl Contest is designed to select a model Government girl upon whom the artist of the Mary Worth strip will base the drawing of the heroine of his Government girl episode.
2. All girls employed by the United States Government in the metropolitan Washington area are eligible.
3. Entries shall consist of photographs only, one photograph from each entrant, the photograph to be not more than one year old at the time of entry.
4. Any kind of black and white picture (no color shots or tints) may be entered, including snapshots, but be sure to get one that does you justice and is big enough for the judges to see what you look like.
5. Pictures must be entered unmounted. No frames, no glass.
6. The Washington Post will make reasonable efforts to return photographs but accepts no responsibility for their return.
7. Each photograph must be accompanied by a slip of paper pasted to the bottom of the photograph, carrying the following information, typed or printed: Name, local address, age, home address, type of work, Government office in which employed, plus signature. (For convenience, The Washington Post will print a form every day which can be used as an entry blank.)
8. Winner will be used as a model for the comic strip and will receive $300 in cash, plus Bermuda trip (given by World-Wide Travel Service Corp. and Hotel Bermudiana). Runner-up gets $50 in cash. Next 10 get $5 each.
9. Decision of the judges will be final. There will be no correspondence of any kind in regard to individual entries.
10. Entries postmarked later than January 28 will not be considered.
11. By entering the contest, the entrant binds herself to accept these rules and conditions as here stated.
12. Entries should be mailed to Contest Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 5, D. C.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Unity of Europe Is Answer

By Drew Pearson

The distance from Trieste to Paris is about half the distance between New York and Chicago. But the trip by the fastest train—the Simplon-Orient Express takes nearly twice as long. One reason is that so much time is wasted with red tape at the border of each country. During the trip you are awakened no fewer than 12 different times by customs, passport, and monetary inspectors wanting to look at your baggage, stamp your passport or check on the amount of money in your wallet.

Each time you are awakened you say to yourself: "Abraham Lincoln was certainly right."

In other words, if Lincoln hadn't made the difficult and momentous decision that the Federal Union must be preserved, travelers crossing the United States today probably would be showing passports at half a dozen State lines, and we would be suffering the same kind of headaches which have almost capsized Europe.

Realizing the importance of unity, Soviet Russia is now engaged in trying to weld eastern Europe and the Balkans into one homogeneous unit—the only sensible way Europe can operate. In other words, the boys from Moscow are stealing our idea. If we are smart, we won't let them get away with it.

Force vs. Persuasion

The Russians, of course, are trying to weld Europe together by force—ruthless force. Regretfully, Abraham Lincoln had to resort to force of arms. But there were many differences.

Most important, perhaps, was the fact that Lincoln was trying to preserve something already in existence, while the Russians are trying to create something which never before existed. And it's highly doubtful that by knocking people's heads together and by shooting peasant leaders who don't cooperate, you can make European nations work together for keeps in a United States of Europe.

What real success the Russians have had — and unquestionably they have had some—has been attained more by clever propaganda and sales arguments.

All of which is by way of saying that important as the Marshall Plan is, we have to go further and use it to build up first a United States of western Europe, and later a United States of all Europe.

Task Not Easy

Building up such a union is not going to be easy, but there are several ways of going at it. One of them is in the actual execution of the Marshall Plan.

Personally I share the anxiety of certain Republican Senators that we have good business executives in charge of the Marshall Plan; and perhaps the most efficient way to build up Europe would be to tell the engineers of the Pennsylvania Railroad to go in and reconstruct the French railways, while the New York Central would get the job of revamping the Italian railways—and so on.

This, however, would play right into the hands of the Communists. It would give them a heaven-sent opportunity to scream that American big business was trying to get its hands on the throat of European economy. In the end such a plan would cause more political harm than economic good.

On the other hand, I suggested to one or two foreign ministers while in Europe that a pool of international experts be set up under the Marshall Plan from which any member nation might draw in order to help rebuild its industries.

In most cases it would call on an American. But the fact that several countries were included in the pool would smother the Communist cry of imperialism. Even more important, it would get European nations into the habit of working together.

Count Sforza's Plan

The general reaction I received to this plan was good. Count Sforza, Foreign Minister of Italy, went even further than this. Explaining that he understood the Americans fear the United States money might be squandered, he suggested an international pool of inspectors to check on the expenditure of the money.

If the United States alone has its financial sleuths poking around Europe to see that Marshall Plan money is being wisely spent, we will become just as hated as the flinty-hearted banker of Hollywood fame who snoops around the poor widow's home waiting for her to default on her mortgage.

But if a group of Swiss, Swedish, Dutch, British, American, French and Belgian fiscal experts form an inspection commission to see that no money is wasted under the Marshall Plan, the United States is not put in the misunderstood position of being Uncle Shylock.

Furthermore, these other countries are just as anxious to prevent any one of their members from wasting money as is the United States. Because waste of money by any one country means resentment in the United States and in the long run less money for other countries participating in the Marshall Plan.

Ultimate Goal Possible

Finally, this kind of teamwork will help toward the ultimate goal of a United States of Europe.

It is understood, of course, that final and over-all direction for the Marshall Plan would remain with the United States.

These are just a few suggestions regarding ways and means of achieving the world's most difficult political goal.

The fact that the goal is difficult, however, does not make it impossible. The U. S. A. has won some other difficult goals in the past, the most miraculous being our own welding together of 13 struggling, disjointed, heterogeneous Colonies into the most powerful Nation on earth. Having achieved that miracle perhaps we can pass on some of our know-how to others.

Outlook in winter

The winter is a weary time . . . Or it is bright and gay . . . According to our attitude . . . And how we spend each day . . . We may be lonely for the sun . . . The leaves and grasses green . . . And all the flowers that are part . . . Of every summer scene . . . And we may miss the atmosphere . . . Of gazing at the moon . . . While someone dear is very near . . . And it is deep in June . . . But if we breathe the bracing air . . . And touch the falling snow . . . And if we try to warm our hearts Where friendly fires glow . . . The world will be a happy place . . . In which to work and play . . . And we shall thoroughly enjoy . . . The coldest winter day.
